HARDING TRAIN IN THE ROCKIES

TRIBUNE OFFERS HYDRO ELECTRIC SYSTEM FOR U.S.

Would Tie Seasons to Industries.

America geared to the sun and the asons—the watersheds of our conti- linked into a unit of energy pour- into a pool of power—this is ther prophecy, propaganda, nor apsody, but the assured goal of the ientific and economic forces at work out us.

In the Coloroto magazine today is own a reproduction of a relief map the United States upon which a aphic presentation of this conception as electrified continent has been rked out. The map shows the prin- al sources of water power, the nts of heaviest consumption, and nters of distribution. The artist has indicated the existing network of nsmission lines, and has imagined continental transmission system which they will eventually blend.

Moving Toward Unified Control.

is for THE TRIBUNE, we believe, to alize first the full measure of eco- forces which are driving the ctric power industry to eventual olidation and to discover unsus- potentialities of power produc- and economies of distribution, ich will result from the integration generating and transmission sys-

everal years ago this newspaper gested the idea of synchronizing coupling the industrial effort of American people to the seasonal namics of the land upon which they e. That paragraphic hint has been llowed by certain investigations, a neral idea of which is presented in is sketch. It is altogether probable at men now living will see farms, ctories, mines, and transport from ean to ocean and gulf to Hudson bay erated by electric energy derived om the same web of wires—the ctric reservoir of continental power. is also probable that this power stem, fed from the stream flow of e entire continent, will almost en- supersede the use of other prime overs. This is a sweeping synthesis facts and forces which have re- tly been revealing their relations part.

The idea of superpower zones is ready in practice, and prophets have been lacking to predict the even- al connection of all of them into a tional system. Many publicists and gineers have foreseen this possi- lity. One eminent electric engineer s recently worked out in consider- ble detail a practical sugestion for a tional superpower system, based, wever, almost entirely on present ndards of generations, both from am plants and water power.

Greater Project Involved.

But the data already assembled by THE TRIBUNE appear to lead much rther to more important conclusions an those to be derived merely from onal linkage and transfer of elec- energy over long distance trunk es. In a way THE TRIBUNE'S syn- sis bears all the earmarks of a dis- very, as it reveals for the first time balance of natural forces and time ctors, which appears to make possible fairly constant power load for the ole of North America based on the od power of its streams. The mean od stages of the continental drainage stem, at any rate, begin to appear as sible hydro-electric developments.

All previous estimates of potential dro-electric power have assumed t the maximum power development the continent must fall far short of s. What is called maximum poten- l horse power in current discussion in fact an estimate based on the flow the larger streams in the United tes for 80 per cent of the time.

This estimate undoubtedly was pted because in hydro-electric prac- heretofore it has usually been nd uneconomic to develop a stream much greater degree, even where market for secondary power is ple. But all such estimates have dered the power resources of the ams developed separately, and no mate now extant amounts to more n a small fraction of the energy ilable from the rivers of America at mean flood stages.

SHOOTS WIFE AND STEPDAUGHTER; TRIES SUICIDE

Margaret was upstairs with her brother Stephen when she heard her mother and her stepfather quarreling over her. She hurried downstairs. A few seconds later Stephen heard shots. He found all three stretched on the floor. The stepdaughter received only a flesh wound in the right arm, but fainted. All were removed to the Burnside hospital where physicians say Gasper, who is 49 years old, probably will die.

Pueblo, Colo., Aug. 4.—The town of Leoti, Kan., was visited by a tornado which was followed by a cloudburst late this afternoon, according to railroad reports received here tonight. These said a number of business blocks, including a hotel, a grain elevator and about 12 residences, were either partly damaged or totally destroyed.

So far as reports can be obtained, only three persons were injured.

Leoti is the county seat of Wichita county, has a population of approximately 1,500 persons and is located on the Missouri Pacific railroad.

QUIXOTES PERIL BULL FIGHT BULL

Toreadors Sue to Oust the "Chaplins."

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MADRID, Aug. 4.—A bitter battle of the old style, serious toreadors and matadors against the new-fangled "Charley Chaplin" burlesque bullfighters has developed into the legal stage. In all seriousness, a committee of veteran toreadors announced their intention of demanding a court injunction to prevent comic bullfighters from entering the arena on the amazing ground of cruelty to animals, that the antics of the burlesquers in kicking and slapping the bulls are cruel.

Millions for Sport.

Although Spain, with a deficit in the budget this year of two billion pesetas ($285,700,000), intends soon to approach the United States for a loan, I am reliably informed that the promoters of the Corridas are making colossal profits, even after paying popular toreadors ten thousand pesetas ($1,400) for every bull they kill, with six bulls in each program.

For more than a century the veteran toreadors and matadors have kept the public kidded as to what a dangerous business it is, and occasionally the toreadors are gored, a few being killed. Some of these are said to have entered the ring too full of the strong, red Spanish wine.

Then, a couple of years ago, a comedian, imitating Charley Chaplin, wearing a little derby, pants, flapping shoes, and toothbrush mustache, managed to break into a bull fight.

Instead of treating the bull with the greatest respect and fear, he walked right up, kicked the animal on the snout, and then grabbed its tail and made the bull tow him round the arena, occasionally leaping on the animal's back. By this and other stunts he proved the animal to be absolutely harmless and demonstrated the lack of danger, his performance being highly amusing to the fans.

Shock Is Nerve Breaking.

The old style toreadors immediately realized that familiarity breeds contempt and announced a boycott of the Chaplins, refusing to participate in any program in which the burlesquers were billed. But when the public showed themselves just as satisfied with the amusing buffoonery, the old style toreadors had to consent to share honors with the Chaplins or not work at all.

The Chaplins' position was weakened as they offered to dispense with the killing of horses, but the "sporting public" overwhelmingly rejected that idea.

The horses were firmly blindfolded before entering the arena, but since some fans began demanding that the bandages be taken off so that the animals could see the bull, attendants merely gouge out the horse's eyes before sending them into the arena. The fact that the animals are blind is not noticed by the spectators.

The So Brave Public.

The vocal cords of the horses are cut so that they cannot scream with pain when their bellies are ripped open by the long horns of the bull and their entrails fall to the ground. Sightless horses are held for the bull to charge and tear up until they are dead.

Each bull is allowed to kill two horses to whet his appetite. The frugal, businesslike promoters do not let the toros wound any other horses. Recently a horse, one of whose legs was broken in three places so that the limb waved like a rag, was forced to hop three legged around the arena, dragging its viscera, until the bull had completed disemboweling him.

Peachy looking girls, sedate mothers, school kids joined with men in shrieking applause at this "sporting spectacle."

NEW PRESIDENT, IN FIRST ACTION, URGES PRAYERS

Sets Friday as Day of Memorial.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Formally assuming the duties of chief executive of the United States, President Coolidge had a busy time of it during his first day in office.

He set up his headquarters at the Willard hotel, which will serve as the temporary White House, and his first important official act was to issue a proclamation setting aside Aug. 10, the date on which the late President will be buried in Marion, O., as a day of national mourning and prayer.

Secretary Hughes, by direction of the President, has telegraphed governors of states that a period of mourning would be observed by officials of the United States until Dec. 1.

To Carry Out Harding Policies.

Reiterating his previous statement of his intention to carry out the policies of the Harding administration, he made it clear that he would enter into no further discussion of public questions until after the burial of President Harding.

Furthermore, it can be stated with the full approval of the President, that no members of the cabinet have resigned nor is there any basis for reports that any immediate changes in the personnel of the government are contemplated.

It is understood that the President is desirous of waiving the custom under which cabinet members tender their resignations as a formality in case of the death of a President. Mr. Coolidge was the first vice president to sit in the sessions of the cabinet, so that he is well acquainted not only with the details of the important questions which have come before the President's official family but also with the particular qualifications of each member.

First Speech as President.

President Coolidge received the newspaper men of Washington at 11 o'clock this morning. He greeted them in the parlor of his suite in the Hotel Willard. The President, after shaking hands all around—there were perhaps 100 Washington correspondents present—made his first speech as President. He said:

"Gentlemen: There isn't anything I can say at the present time about the policies of the administration. There will not be anything until after the final interment of the President.

"I am glad of the opportunity to greet you and shake hands with you. The executive offices will always be open, so far as possible, to give your readers what may be given to them.

"A good many of you I know personally. This is your government. You can exercise a great and helpful influence over the administration and I know you will give the administration that necessary coöperation."

The rooms of the Coolidges are the same which they have occupied during the last two years and are located on the third floor of the hotel. Police are on guard in front of the hotel and parking space for a distance of half a block on both sides of the street is reserved for the White House automobiles.

To Attend Morning Services.

Tomorrow morning President and Mrs. Coolidge will attend services at the First Congregational church, which is located in the downtown section half a dozen blocks distant from the hotel. The presence of the President and his wife promises to mean that this church, which even on ordinary occasions is noted for its large crowds, will be filled to overflowing.

After the church services the President and Mrs. Coolidge expect to spend as much of their time resting in their suite as possible. Both are feeling the strain of the last forty-eight hours and it is probable that they will remain in comparative seclusion, seeing only intimate friends. The President does not desire to hold any conferences with government officials during the day.

President's Son, 14, Keeps On Working in Field

Hatfield, Mass., Aug. 4.—While President Coolidge was en route to Washington yesterday, Calvin Coolidge Jr. was at work under a hot sun in a tobacco field. Calvin Jr., 14 years old, attired in khaki trousers, an old shirt and well worn shoes, was working for $3.50 a day. The day is nine full hours. He said that the elevation of his father to the presidency would make no change in the Coolidge mode of life.

FUNERAL PLANS FOR PRESIDENT GIVEN IN DETAIL

Train bearing President's body will arrive in Chicago at 4:25 p. m. (daylight saving time) Monday.

Leave Chicago over Baltimore and Ohio railroad (from yards) at 5:30 p. m.

Arrival at Washington will be at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The body will be taken directly to the White House, escorted by the cabinet, the chief justice of the Supreme court and leaders of congress.

At 10 a. m. Wednesday the body will be taken to the capitol. The state funeral services will be in the rotunda. The body will lie in state until 6 p. m., the public being admitted in the last two hours.

The special train bearing the body will leave Washington at 7 p. m., arriving in Marion Thursday morning.

Final services and burial in Marion on Friday, the exact time of which has not been decided.

300 Jailed in Rum Raids on Chief's Order

Hundreds of breathless hoboes lined the curbstones on the near west side last night, and more than 300 of their brother wanderers and friendly bootleggers occupied cells in the Desplaines street station as one of the greatest booze clean-ups ever made by the police in that district reached its height.

By midnight more than thirty saloons, flats, soft drink parlors, fruit stores, restaurants, barber shops and coffee houses had been raided, and the squad room at the station was piled high with stills, barrels of moonshine, beer and wine, and jugs and bottles, containing everything from real whisky to "white lightning."

Every person found in a place at the time the evidence was seized was taken into custody and booked as an inmate of a disorderly house, while the proprietors were charged with violating the eighteenth amendment.

Dodge Raiders in Vain.

Capt. William F. Russell gave orders to his men to carry out the anti-booze order of Chief Morgan A. Collins to the "letter of the law," no matter who might be hit.

Hundreds of down and outers hurried from one sawdust floor to another in attempts to keep ahead of the raiding parties and finally sat down on the curbstones, trembling, as if an earthquake had struck their haunts.

Four patrol wagons were kept busy carrying the prisoners to the station and huge trucks had to be commandeered to transport the evidence.

Find "Ocean" of Wine.

In the basement of one place, that of Thomas Copoas, at 166 North Halsted street, the police found ten hogsheads filled with Greek wine, so huge they could not be removed through the doors or windows.

In none of the other districts was the chief's order carried out with such thoroughness, although sporadic raiding occurred in several other districts.

"I am cleaning the district," said Capt. Russell. "If there is a single place left untouched in this district by morning, it won't be our fault."

The raids were led with such swiftness by Detective Sergeants William Shubert, Sidney Sullivan, and Malachi Murphy that the "bos" has little opportunity to make their "get-away." Nor were gambling places overlooked. These, however, had been "tipped off" when the raiding started, it was found, and the police found nothing except the gambling paraphernalia. This was smashed.

The raiding was still in full swing at midnight. Before morning, it was expected, more than 500 will occupy cells.

Raids in Other Districts.

In the Chicago avenue district detectives, working under Capt. Patrick Gallery, brought in Dominick Catalano, 1245 Webster avenue, who runs a barber shop at Ohio and Franklin streets; Julius Armenoli, 448 North Franklin street; Joe Marigrane, 442 West Division street, and Earl Smith, who gave no address. Smith was carrying moonshine.

Half a dozen places were raided in the Sheffield avenue district by Detective Sergeants Joseph Hughes and John Moffat, working under orders of Capt. James L. Mooney. Other raids on gambling dens, disorderly flats, and a few bootlegging places, were made by the police of the 50th street, Hyde Park, Woodlawn, and Stockyards stations.

During the night chief of Detectives Michael Hughes gave his 175 men at the detective bureau Chief Collins' instructions on bootlegging.

"If any such thing is going on among you men," he said, "I want you to quit, and quit quick."

BULLETIN.

On Board Harding Funeral Train at Ogden, Utah, Aug. 4.—(By the Associated Press.)—The special train bearing the body of Warren G. Harding shortly after 10 o'clock tonight (midnight, Chicago time) started over a portion of the route it traveled just thirty-nine days ago carrying Mr. Harding, then well, happy and hopeful, to the Pacific coast and Alaska.

The same people of Ogden that on the morning of June 26 welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Harding to Utah with cheers, music and flowers tonight stood in silent reverence.

The train paused here but a few minutes and then continued on its way, passing between here and Cheyenne over the same route traveled June 25 and 26. It is due to reach Cheyenne at 1:15 p. m. tomorrow.

BY RICHARD OULAHAN.

[Correspondent of the New York Times and Chicago Tribune.]

On the Harding Funeral Train, Elko, Nev., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—In the mournful journey she is making with the body of her husband, Mrs. Warren G. Harding finds consolation in the tributes of respect paid her dead husband by the people all along the route.

Everywhere, since the funeral train left San Francisco at 7:25 o'clock Friday night—just twenty-four hours after the sudden and tragic death of President Harding—there has been an outpouring of men, women, and children to show their sympathy for the widow and their regard for the memory of the man who was the head of the national government.

All through the night people are gathered at the railway stations and crossings to see the passage of the funeral train. There appeared to be no diminution in their numbers in the chill and darkness of the small hours of the morning.

Crowds Stand Reverently.

At practicaly every place the scene was the same. The people were grouped, standing silently and reverently, the men with bared heads, the women with hands at side, the children looking wonderingly at the long line of cars composing the special train.

Ex-service men, many wearing their wartime uniforms, stood at salute. Where they bore their flags they gave that tribute of honor known as dipping the colors.

No stops were made by the train except when it was necessary to change engines or for other operational purposes. At Reno, before 6 o'clock this morning, during a brief stop, the bells of churches, schools and public buildings were tolled.

The governor of Nevada, James G. Scrugham, was there with state and city officials. People were massed in the railway station in large numbers. Organizations of war veterans were drawn up in military formations. Floral wreaths from the state and the cities of Reno and Sparks were placed on the train.

Same Night and Day.

So it was through the night and so it was through this day as the funeral train made its way eastward over an arid sage brush country, its desolation broken at intervals by small towns and villages.

Those who gathered at the railway stations and along the wayside were able to catch a glimpse of the bronze metallic casket in which the body of the dead President lays. Through the windows of the private car in which President Harding had made his last journey in life, they could see the casket on a raised catafalque guarded by men in uniform bearing arms.

Two soldiers in khaki, a sailor in the familiar blue dress, and a marine in blue, stood there, rigid, leaning on their rifles, one man at each corner of the platform on which the casket rested.

Soft Light Shows Casket.

Through the darkness of the night the observation end of the car, where the casket was placed, was flooded with a soft light which brought into sharp relief the catafalque, the casket and the figures of the guards.

That was all the silent, reverent people saw as the train passed. At each point where crowds had gathered the train was slowed down.

But between stations the train ran at a rapid rate to keep to its fast schedule, necessary to enable it to reach Washington on Tuesday afternoon. An idea of the speed of the funeral train may be gained by the statement that it is scheduled to reach Chicago in four hours' less time than the fastest transcontinental express makes the journey from Sacramento, through which the funeral cortege passed shortly after midnight this morning.

Mrs. Harding Gives Way to Tears.

Mrs. Harding retired shortly after 8 o'clock last night. She was greatly fatigued and slept well. Her remarkable self control gave way at last in a flood of tears, but this was a help rather than a detriment. Ever since the sudden death of her husband on Thursday night she had stood out against a possible collapse.

"I won't break down," she had said again and again, driving the nails of her fingers into the palms of her hands.

Today, refreshed by her sleep, she is full of courage. She talks frequently of her husband. Sometimes, when a little incident is recalled, her lips quiver and tears form in her eyes. Then she braces herself and shows the determination that is in her.

It was her own suggestion that led to the simple service conducted over the body of the late President just before it was removed from San Francisco on Friday.

Expresses Belief in Prayer.

"I could not take him away without prayer," she said. "I believe in prayer."

The private car Elmonte has been attached to the funeral train just ahead of the car containing the body of the dead President. This was done for the accommodation of Mrs. Harding. She was offered additional sleeping and living compartments in this car, but she would have none of it. She informed the railway officials that she would make the return journey to Washington in the same car in which she and her husband had journeyed to the Pacific coast and would occupy the room she had occupied on that journey. This room is a few yards away from the observation compartment in which the late President's body lies.

The room in which President Harding slept on his transcontinental tour is unoccupied. It adjoins the observation end.

Devoted Friends with Widow.

In the funeral car with Mrs. Harding are Gen. and Mrs. Sawyer, and Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Jennings of Marion, O. These four are her devoted friends. They were intimates of the Hardings in Marion.

The observation end of the funeral car is a floral bower. Its ceiling is almost concealed in great festoons of China asters, with every shade of purple from heliotrope to a deep royal. There are ropes of these asters from three to five inches thick.

Those who went west with Mr. Harding, and who are returning on the car bearing his body back east, have exchanged accounts of experiences which have to do with the personality of the late President.

Liked to Mingle with Crowds.

Mr. Harding was gregarious. He liked people, seeing great numbers of them, and shaking hands with them was a diversion, providing they did not come seeking favors or endeavoring to influence him for selfish purposes.

It might have been expected that a President would be in no mood to see long queues of strangers.

"No, I like it," he said on more than one occasion, "they want nothing. They come to shake hands with me because they want to pay a tribute of respect to their President. They are unselfish and they are friendly. I like to look into their friendly faces. It does not tire me to see them. On the contrary, it rests me. I feel refreshed over the experience."

It was this liking for association with the people that had much to do with the death of President Harding. He never sought to avoid them even when to meet them meant a heavy addition to an already heavy program.

Many times, tired with the fatiguing experiences of the program in his honor, the President would sit up on his train until late at night or leave orders to be awakened early in the morning to comply with the request of towns along the way that he give their people a chance to see him.

COOLIDGE QUITS FARM LEAVING ONE JOB UNDONE

Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—President Coolidge left one task unfinished when he moved on to Washington yesterday.

Sitting at dusk in a hammock on the porch of his old home at Plymouth Notch, high on a hill, the President—then with no such affairs of moment on his mind as now—noticed a few days ago evidence of dry rot in one of the great maples which surround his father's farmhouse.

For some moments he sat in silence puffing at his cigar and studying the menace threatening the tree. Then he decided to take the rot, and, turning tree surgeon, the next day he dug it out.

He planned to fill the wound with cement yesterday—but he was raised to the presidency. So he packed his bag and left the task to his father, casting a final glance at the maple before leaving the farm that has been the home of the Coolidges for three generations.

Falls to Death on Steps of His Own Basement

After Peter D. Harrity of 2136 Logan boulevard, a bailiff, had failed to return home during the night, his wife yesterday morning found him dead at the foot of the stairway leading to the basement of their apartment.

RITES IN CAPITAL WILL BE SIMPLE BUT IMPRESSIVE

Public to View Body Lying in State at Capitol.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The state funeral of President Harding, set for next Wednesday, will be one of the most impressive ceremonies ever held in Washington. It will be a dignified but solemn spectacle with members of the cabinet, Supreme court, and the foreign diplomatic corps riding in line and patriotic, fraternal and civic organizations represented in the procession.

Details are rapidly taking shape under the direction of Col. Clarence O. Sherrill, United States army, military aide to the President, and superintendent of public buildings and grounds, for ceremonies which begin when the funeral train arrives here early Tuesday afternoon.

Marked by Simplicity.

Col. Sherrill has had lengthy conferences with President Coolidge since the latter's arrival in Washington last night, also with Secretary of State Hughes, and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas, assistant leader of the Republican majority in the senate, and announced that the funeral will be marked with simplicity.

Definite decision to go ahead with the plans for an impressive state funeral had to await final word and approval from Mrs. Harding, which came this morning. Administration leaders in Washington felt that the precedents of a high state funeral such as were observed in the cases of Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley ought to be followed in the case of the late President. The plans for the Harding state funeral are almost identical for those of the McKinley ceremonies.

Rotunda Scene Solemn.

The scene within the capitol rotunda during the funeral will be impressive and solemn. In the center of the great circular floor of marble will be placed the sarcophagus on which will rest the casket. Grouped around the bier will sit members of the family, the Supreme court, the diplomatic corps, the cabinet, governors, senators, representatives, high officials, and others to be invited and admitted by card.

These ceremonies will not be open to the public. While the rotunda is large, it lacks capacity to seat more than the large official contingent and members of the family or friends Mrs. Harding will invite.

Looking down upon the scene will be the great Trumbull paintings, representing events in American history, and preserving a pictorial record of the beginning of the American revolution and historic scenes down to the resignation by Washington of his commission.

Wilson Can't Attend.

Woodrow Wilson, because of the condition of his health, will be unable to attend the funeral exercises in the rotunda of the capitol next Wednesday. One of President Coolidge's first acts on his arrival in Washington was to urge Mr. Wilson to attend the ceremonies. Admiral Grayson replied that Mr. Wilson would not be able to attend.

Col. Sherrill in announcing the inability of Mr. Wilson to attend the Wednesday ceremonial issued the following statement:

"President Coolidge has conferred with ex-President Wilson in order to ascertain his wishes in reference to attending the funeral exercises over the remains of the late President Harding, and offering to make any arrangements agreeable to Mr. Wilson for his participation in the exercises.

"Mr. Wilson has indicated his appreciation of the courtesy extended by President Coolidge, but regrets his inability to participate on account of the condition of his health. Admiral Grayson is in communication with Mr. Wilson and indicates that while the ex-President will not be able to participate in the ceremonies, he is in a satisfactory state of health."

Coolidge Issues Order.

The executive order, signed by President Coolidge, relating to the funeral, was as follows:

"On arrival of funeral train in Union station, the President, escorted by military aids, with members of the cabinet, the chief justice, the acting president pro tempore of the senate, and the speaker of the house of representatives will accompany the remains to the White House.

"On Wednesday at 10 o'clock a. m. the remains will be escorted to the capitol. The hearse will be preceded by a suitable military escort, followed by the civic procession, in proper order.

"On arrival at the capitol the remains will be placed in the center of the rotunda, where the funeral services will be held. The President will then proceed from the capitol to his apartment in the New Willard hotel.

Body to Lie in State.

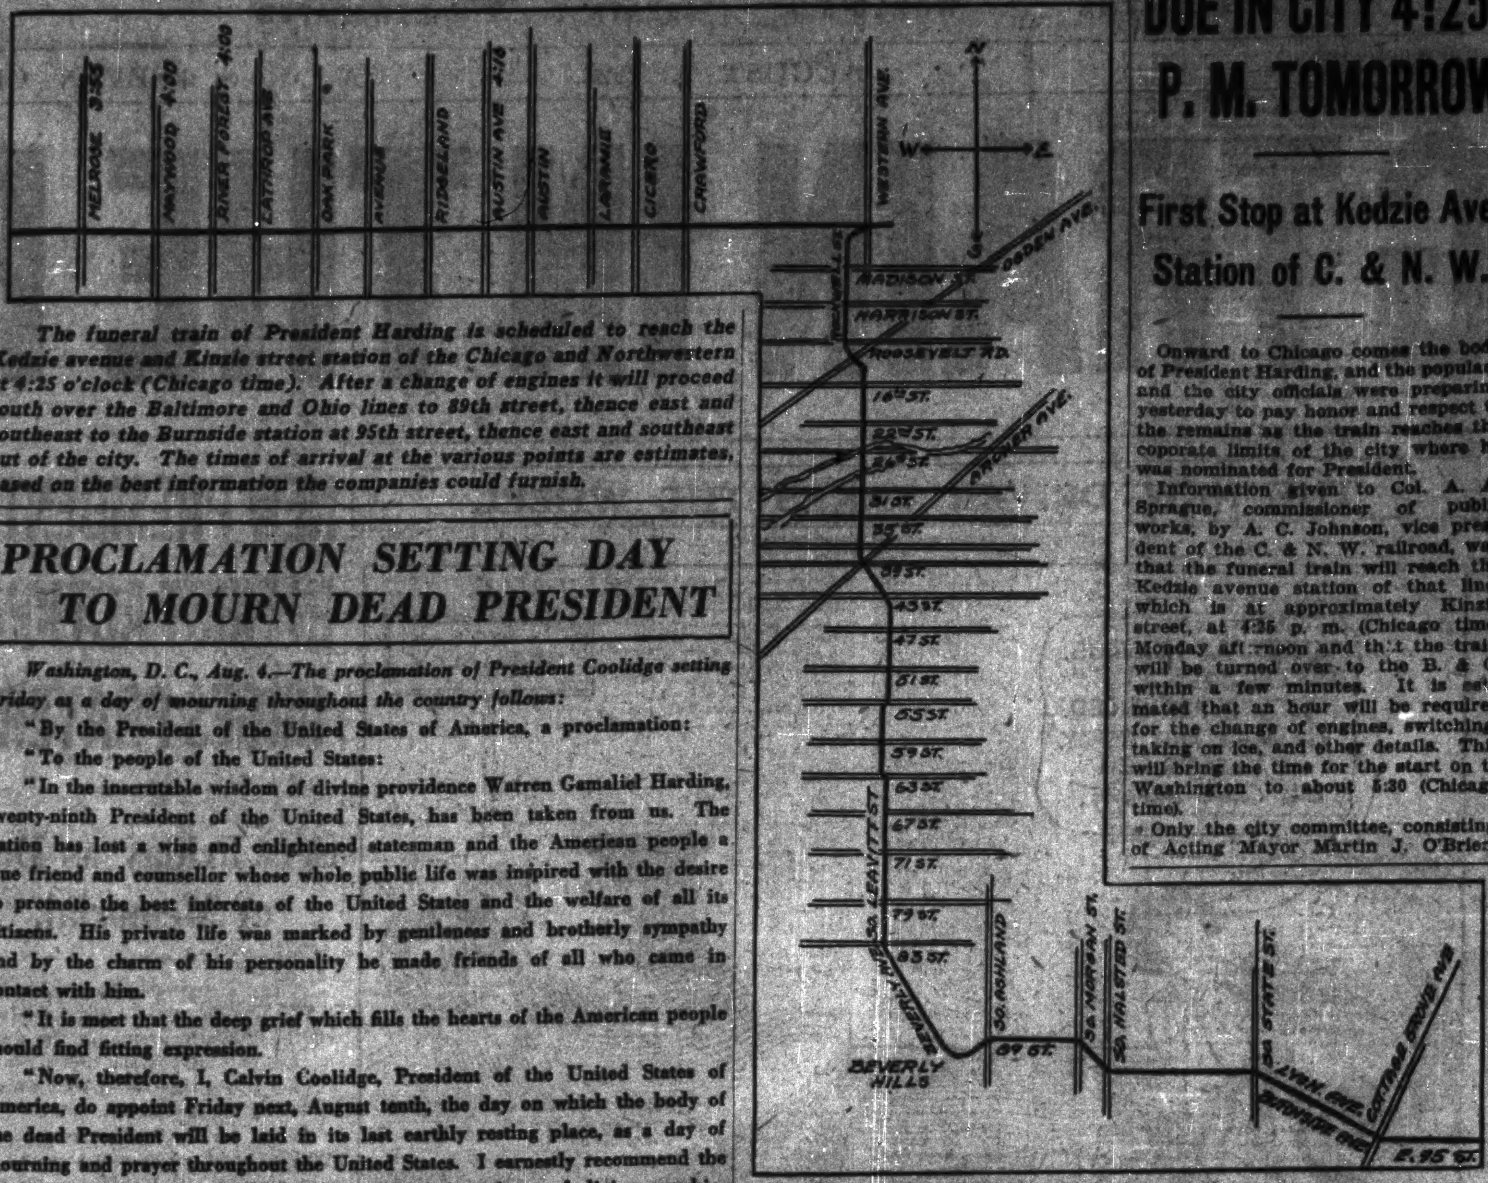
"The remains of the deceased President will then lie in state in the rotunda of the capitol until 6 p. m., Wednesday. The rotunda will be open to the public from 4 to 6 p. m. The placing of wreaths and other tokens of respect by the public will be allowed."

Gen. John J. Pershing will be grand marshal of the funeral procession. Before going into other details for the funeral President Coolidge expressed a wish that Gen. Pershing act as grand marshal; an order to that effect was issued and telegraphed to Gen. Pershing.

Senator Lodge [Rep.; Mass.] will be marshal of the civic division, having accepted an invitation from President Coolidge to act in that capacity.

By direction of President Coolidge, Secretary Hughes today sent a telegram to the governor of each state officially notifying them of the plans for the funeral. This was done to enable the governors, who are able to do so, to attend the funeral. It is thought that those governors who are within traveling distance of Washington and can do so in time will attend.

ROUTE OF HARDING TRAIN THROUGH CITY



The funeral train of President Harding is scheduled to reach the Kedzie avenue and Kinzie street station of the Chicago and Northwestern at 4:25 o'clock (Chicago time). After a change of engines it will proceed south over the Baltimore and Ohio lines to 89th street, thence east and southeast to the Burnside station at 95th street, thence east and southeast out of the city. The times of arrival at the various points are estimates, based on the best information the companies could furnish.

PROCLAMATION SETTING DAY TO MOURN DEAD PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—The proclamation of President Coolidge setting Friday as a day of mourning throughout the country follows:

"By the President of the United States of America, a proclamation:

"To the people of the United States:

"In the inscrutable wisdom of divine providence Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States, has been taken from us. The nation has lost a wise and enlightened statesman and the American people a true friend and counsellor whose whole public life was inspired with the desire to promote the best interests of the United States and the welfare of all its citizens. His private life was marked by gentleness and brotherly sympathy and by the charm of his personality he made friends of all who came in contact with him.

"It is meet that the deep grief which fills the hearts of the American people should find fitting expression.

"Now, therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States of America, do appoint Friday next, August tenth, the day on which the body of the dead President will be laid in its last earthly resting place, as a day of mourning and prayer throughout the United States. I earnestly recommend the people to assemble on that day in their respective places of divine worship, there to bow down in submission to the will of Almighty God and to pay out of full hearts the homage and love and reverence to the memory of the great and good President, whose death has so sorely smitten the nation.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, the fourth day of August, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and forty-eighth.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE."

By the President:

Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State.

The White House, Washington, August, 4, 1923.

MARION PAYS TRIBUTE

Marion, O., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Church friends of the late President Warren G. Harding will assemble in a special memorial service in his honor tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Trinity Baptist church, where he was a member.

The services will be conducted by Rev. Walter A. King of Columbus, Mr. Harding's former pastor. Hymns particularly preferred by the late President will be sung. The pew which he occupied, the fifth from the front on the left center aisle, has been draped in black in honor of the deceased member.

Carry Out Widow's Wishes.

Relatives of the late President still were without detailed information as to the funeral services here next Friday. These, according to Dr. George T. Harding Jr., the President's brother, probably will not be completed until the middle of next week as efforts will be made to carry out the wishes of Mrs. Harding as far as possible.

Miss Abigail Harding and Mrs. H. H. Votaw, of Washington, sisters of the President, accompanied by the latter's husband, arrived here today. They went to the home of their father, Dr. George T. Harding Sr., in East Center street, where the funeral will be held.

Will Stay in Marion.

It was announced today that no members of the family would meet the funeral train as it passed through Ohio, and accompany the body to Washington. It previously had been planned that some members of the family would accompany the train east.

Mrs. Harding, on her arrival here next Thursday, will be taken to White Oaks farm, the home of Brig. Gen. Sawyer, personal physician of the President. Mrs. Harding will make her home with Gen. Sawyer for a time at least after the burial, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, his son, said today, but he did not know whether it would be a permanent arrangement.

The management of the Marion hotel, the largest in the city, announced today that the entire building had been reserved for next Thursday and Friday for the funeral party coming from Washington.

All local national guard units have been ordered to be mobilized Wednesday for duty.

EDGE POINTS TO HARDSHIPS OF ALL PRESIDENTS

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 4.—Pointing to the tragic death of President Harding and the physical collapse of Woodrow Wilson, Senator Walter E. Edge of New Jersey today declared that the executive responsibilities of the President should be lightened or divided.

"It is criminal for the public to exact such a toll," he said. "Few, if any, men past middle age can meet the constitutional obligations of the present period. Then, in addition, to be constantly confronted with unbridled and ungenerous criticism is beyond human endurance."

FUNERAL TRAIN DUE IN CITY 4:25 P. M. TOMORROW

First Stop at Kedzie Ave. Station of C. & N. W.

Onward to Chicago comes the body of President Harding, and the populace and the city officials were preparing yesterday to pay honor and respect to the remains as the train reaches the coporate limits of the city where he was nominated for President.

Information given to Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, by A. C. Johnson, vice president of the C. & N. W. railroad, was that the funeral train will reach the Kedzie avenue station of that line, which is at approximately Kinzie street, at 4:25 p. m. (Chicago time) Monday afternoon and that the train will be turned over to the B. & O. within a few minutes. It is estimated that an hour will be required for the change of engines, switching, taking on ice, and other details. This will bring the time for the start on to Washington to about 5:30 (Chicago time).

Only the city committee, consisting of Acting Mayor Martin J. O'Brien, three other officials, and eight aldermen, will be permitted to board the train there, it was stated, and they will be taken as far as 22d and Rockwell streets, during which period they will have presented the city's floral tribute.

O'Brien Issues Proclamation.

Acting Mayor O'Brien yesterday issued the following proclamation:

"The attention of the citizens of Chicago is called to the fact that on Monday, Aug. 6, 1923, between the hours of 4:15 and 4:45 p. m. the body of our late chief executive is passing through our city. It is suggested that the city and its citizens show at this time the same mark of respect that they would show were they in the line of march of the funeral cortége and so comport themselves as to give an outward and visible sign of their grief and respect. Churches are requested to toll their bells during this period."

The changing of engines accomplished, the train will be directed practically due south alongside Rockwell street to the 63d street station at Leavitt street, thence southerly to about 89th street, thence east and southeast through Burnside station to the South Chicago junction at 95th street and Commercial avenue, thence east and southeast through Whiting and Indiana Harbor and Gary, Ind.

Police to Guard Station.

Numerous organizations have sought the opportunity of having representatives meet and escort the train through the city and its environs but, according to present information, none will be permitted on the railroad right of way, even at Kedzie avenue station. Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins said he will have a detail of police at Kedzie avenue, at Wood street, where the transfer will be made; at Rockwell street, where the train turns south, at 22d street where the city officials will alight, and at various points along the right of way.

The National Guard will be in evidence during the time the body of the President is passing through the city. Maj. Gen. Milton Foreman announced that a salute of twenty-one guns will be fired from the 122d Field Artillery armory at 234 East Chicago avenue, and from the 124th Field Artillery armory at 3401 Wentworth avenue at approximately the time the train passes those locations.

The navy has asked leave to participate in the ceremonies of the city officials, as have also the members of the county board.

The three regular army companies at Fort Sheridan will be marched to a central point on the reservation at 10 o'clock this morning and there listen to the official announcement from the war department of the President's death. There will be no parade. At that hour the troops also will begin firing a series of twenty-one gun salutes, continuing at half hour intervals until retreat.

War Orders Read.

Maj. Gen. Harry C. Hale, commanding the 6th corps area, assembled the personnel of his headquarters yesterday and read to them the following orders of the secretary of war:

"It is the painful duty of the secretary of war to announce to the army the death of Warren Gamaliel Harding, President of the United States, which occurred at San Francisco, Cal., at 7:30 p. m., Aug. 2, 1923.

"The grief of the nation in the untimely death of the President is keenly shared by the army of the United States, in the welfare of which he displayed at all times a deep interest and solicitude.

"His kindly wisdom and strength, his conscientious devotion and duty and his loyalty to our national ideals earned for him the respect of every American citizen.

Honors in Army Camps.

"Appropriate funeral honors will be paid to the memory of the late President and commander in chief at the headquarters of every corps area, at every military station, and at every camp of troops of the United States in the field.

"The Vice President of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, has taken the oath of office and assumed the duty of the President in accordance with the provisions of the constitution."

The Union League club has obtained permission from Washington to participate in the procession escorting the body from the White House to the capitol on Wednesday morning. W. W. Baird, president of the club, who requested the permission, was informed that a delegation of not to exceed ten persons may take part.

Members of the B. P. O. E., of which the late President was a charter member of Marion, O., lodge, will assemble at their club house on Monday at 2:30 p. m., in black frock coats and silk hats, each wearing a purple flower, to act as a committee to view the passing of the funeral cortége.

The Chicago Association of Commerce sent messages of condolence to Mrs. Harding and a telegram to President Coolidge expressing its confidence in him and pledging him its support.

Members of the Illinois Motion Picture Theater Owners association yesterday adopted resolutions to close their theaters during the funeral ceremonies.

OLD GLORY FLIES IN PARIS AS IN '17 BUT AT HALFMAST

Many Nations Mourn for Late President.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Official and non-official France went into mourning for President Harding today, with the long and stately avenues of Paris, so often bedecked with American flags since 1917, now covered again with the Stars and Stripes. Today, however, the flags were at half mast, and every flagpole was swathed in crepe.

Special orders, issued for the day of the President's funeral, ordain that the French flag shall fly at half mast throughout the territory of the republic on all public buildings, barracks and ships.

The spontaneous mourning of the people, however, was far more impressive than the official action. Hardly a hotel in the central districts of Paris today but flew the American flag, often several of them, wreathed in crepe. All through the residential sections and out towards the Etoile district, the same expression of sympathy for the American nation prevails—flags flying sometimes from the houses of the rich, such as Senator Paul Dupuy, sometimes from houses of a much humbler appearance.

Gen. Gouraud has been chosen to represent France at the funeral of President Harding at Marion, O.

May Hold Service in Abbey.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—It is suggested today that a memorial service for President Harding be held at Westminster abbey coincidently with the funeral at Washington. The king is said to desire this mark of respect for the head of the American state and the abbey authorities are willing.

There is much speculation here concerning the attitude of President Coolidge in regard to various urgent questions, such as participation in the world court, European debts, German reconstruction and rum running. The British newspapers are frankly at sea and there seems a good deal of nervousness over the possibility that he may adopt a stronger policy than President Harding in favor of isolation.

Russia Expresses Sympathy.

MOSCOW, Aug. 4.—[United Press.]—Georges Tchitcherin, soviet foreign minister, in a message of sympathy to Mrs. Harding and to America, cabled: "The Russian government wishes to express the respectful sympathy of the Russian people for the United States. Russia gratefully remembers that it was under President Harding's administration that America's great generosity came to the aid of Russia in our hour of need."

Manila a Silent City.

Manila, P. I., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Manila, today was a strange, silent city of sorrow, a mood to which this gala tropical metropolis is unaccustomed. Flags were at half mast on all government buildings and crepe decks the doors of most of the business houses as tributes to the memory of President Harding.

Meanwhile angry gusts of wind from a typhoon hovering off the bay are blowing rain through the almost deserted streets.

All routine at army camps in Manila and surrounding posts has been temporarily suspended except for necessary fatigue duties. Because it is Saturday, banks have remained open to cash checks and receive deposits. Otherwise no business was being transacted. All social activities at clubs and hotels were called off for the day, as were all sporting events. Schools and colleges dismissed their classes.

Tribute by Japan's Premier.

TOKIO, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Premier Kato, who has been ill for several days, today issued a statement to the Japanese press in which he said that the late President Harding was "the greatest worker in the peace movement." The premier added: "His immediate contribution is known throughout the world, to which his death is an immeasurable loss."

Mexico Shows Honor.

Mexico City, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—The executive department of the Mexican government has decreed that the flag be flown at half mast on all public buildings for three days as Mexico's "homage to Mr. Harding's memory, for his friendship to Mexico as demonstrated by the important step the late President took to bring about the resumption of diplomatic relations between both countries."

Honor Paid by Poland.

WARSAW, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—When the death of President Harding was announced officially in the chamber of deputies yesterday all the deputies rose and continued standing while Vice Speaker Moraczewski talked of Poland's gratitude to the United States.

"None of us will forget what we owe the United States," he said. "None of us will forget the relief America gave us when we were weak after seven years of war. In the name of this assembly I express simple but sincere sympathy and sorrow for the death of President Harding."

MRS. COOLIDGE SPENDS QUIET DAY IN HOTEL

Camera Men Halt Her Shopping Tour.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Coolidge had a quiet day in the presidential suite at the Willard, recovering from the strain and fatigue of the twenty-four hours following the announcement of the death of President Harding.

She received a group of newspaper women today and, on the understanding that she was not to be quoted, talked with them. She had changed from the black and gray traveling suit and black hat, in which she arrived last night, to a one-piece dress of white crepe de chine, with a few touches of colored embroidery and a white hat, and looked more like herself, though with none of her usual bright gaiety.

Always lovely, and with a friendly sincerity and charm of manner which has endeared her to all in Washington, she greeted every one in the group, and said frankly she had no plans beyond the moment, and no thought for any one save Mrs. Harding.

She returned to the hotel after one attempt to do a little shopping, during which she found herself facing at every turn a battery of cameras, and was forced to beat a hasty retreat.

Several passengers on the Rock Island train from Peoria to Chicago were shaken up yesterday when it struck a switch engine at Blue Island. Edward Wallace, the engineer, and Leslie Giles jumped from the passenger engine cab to save themselves. The switch engine also was lifted from the track. An open switch is believed to have been responsible.

ACT TO AVOID BIG JAM AT HARDING STATE FUNERAL

Recall Riot as McKinley's Body Lay in State.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—None of the disorder and danger resulting from inefficient management of the crowds which gathered at the capitol while the body of President McKinley lay in state in the rotunda will be permitted to disturb the tribute of the people to President Harding next Wednesday.

With the vivid memory of the terrific jam on the east front through which men and women struggled for hours to find the wavering line which formed and broke and reformed before the people with courage to remain were finally able to pass up the steps and view the body of their President, the officers in charge of the services for the Unknown Soldier so wisely and efficiently made the arrangements on that occasion that more than 150,000 went through the lines that day, quietly and reverently.

To Follow Same Rules.

Practically the same rules promulgated for the handling of the crowds on that day will be enforced while the late President's body rests in the capitol on Wednesday.

On the day of President McKinley's funeral 50,000 persons gathered on the east front in a solid mass, and for several hours passed in an exhausted, struggling line through the rotunda. The plan was for a single file forming at the right and left of the east plaza to move forward, meet in the center, and pass two abreast across the plaza to the steps, mount them and enter the rotunda where the President's body lay.

The trouble occurred on the east front, where no cables were stretched and the number of police was totally insufficient to guide the people toward the lines forming at the right and left. As a result, the crowd, trying to follow directions, resolved itself into a milling, struggling mass. Several people fainted and a few were seriously hurt.

Expect 100,000 to Pass.

Next Wednesday the streets will be roped off and 350 uniformed officers will be stationed along the avenue while the funeral procession is passing from the White House to the capitol. Immediately afterward the policemen will join those already on duty at the capitol to supervise the throngs.

The line for the forming of the procession which will pass through the rotunda will be extended from the capitol plaza to 1st and East Capitol streets. From this point the crowd, four abreast, will pass up the east steps of the capitol, through the rotunda, and to the street by the west door. It is estimated that 100,000 will pass the bier of the late President.

FRIENDS UNLOAD THEIR STOCK OF COOLIDGE YARNS

'We'll Marry,' Was His Proposal.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Since the Boston police strike in 1919, the character and habits of Calvin Coolidge have become a legend in Massachusetts, and very few Bay staters have not at least one quaint anecdote to tell about the thirtieth President.

Some are unquestionably true, others perhaps not, but all have done their share toward making the state's most silent governor interesting.

When Coolidge's class was graduated from Amherst, its members voted for the classmate who seemed most likely to succeed in life. With one exception, Dwight W. Morrow, now a partner in J. P. Morgan & Co. was the unanimous selection. The dissenting vote, Mr. Morrow's, went for Calvin Coolidge.

Mr. Coolidge had been "going with" his wife for more than a year and had never once even hinted at sentimentality. One aftrnoon he appeared at her house and, without a word of greeting, remarked, "We are going to get married." They were married that afternoon.

A Massachusetts manufacturer, powerful not only in industry, but in politics, called on Gov. Coolidge to advocate a certain law. He talked steadily for an hour, then stopped.

"Is that all?" asked the governor.

"Why, yes," said the manufacturer.

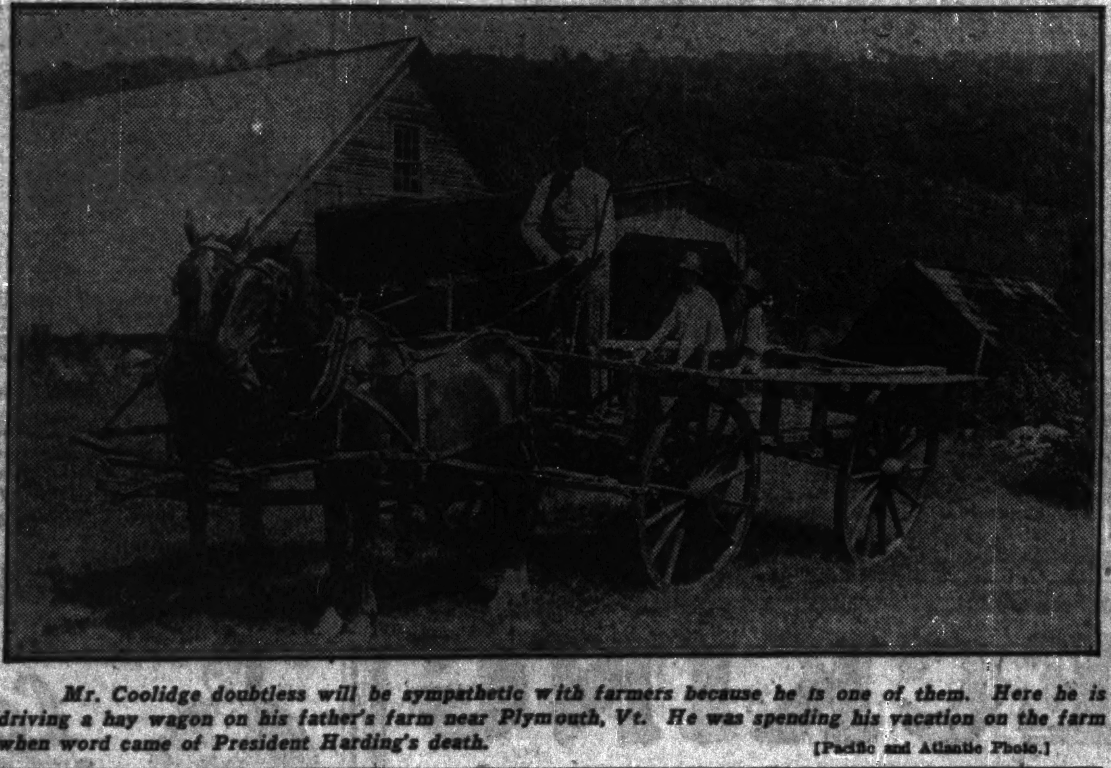
"Good morning," said Mr. Coolidge, and turned to his desk.

The caller left the office, disappointed and angry, but a week later he read the governor's speech urging the passage of the law and employing the essence of the manufacturer's arguments.

The President's coldness has been almost as well advertised as his taciturnity, but personal friends of his family say that when away from Plymouth Mr. Coolidge has never failed to write to his father at least twice a week.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were invited to spend a few days with one of Mrs. Coolidge's friends on Cape Cod. Mr. Coolidge appeared at seven meals and made three remarks, one, "May I have some butter, please?" and two "No, thank you's."

The President has never failed to save at least 10 per cent of each salary installment, and he says that during his first months of work his customary food allowance for Friday's supper and Saturday's breakfast was 25 cents.



Mr. Coolidge doubtless will be sympathetic with farmers because he is one of them. Here he is driving a hay wagon on his father's farm near Plymouth, Vt. He was spending his vacation on the farm when word came of President Harding's death. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Rail Telegraphers Ask Wage Increase on S. P.

A request by the Order of Railway Telegraphers on behalf of 737 members of the organization employed by the Southern Pacific lines in Louisiana and Texas for wage increases totaling $228,000 annually was made yesterday to the United States railroad labor board.

POLICE MUST STAND IF CARS ARE CROWDED

Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins issued an order last night prohibiting policemen from occupying seats in street cars, elevated trains, or any other conveyances where transportation is a courtesy when persons paying fares are obliged to stand. The order follows:

"Complaint has been made to this office in regard to police officers in uniform occupying seats in street cars and elevated trains while passengers who have paid fare are standing. In all instance where transportation is a courtesy, police officers are to remain standing while in cars of the surface lines or elevated trains, and are to occupy seats only where there are seats vacant and none of the patrons standing. Disciplinary measures will follow violations of this order."

Dry Agents Arrest 37 in Raids in Wisconsin Town

Hurley, Wis., Aug. 4.—Sixteen federal prohibition agents swooped down in this city and outlying towns late yesterday, and, after working practically all night, seized 3,650 gallons of mash, 245 gallons of moonshine whisky, and 105 gallons of bonded liquor and arrested thirty-seven violators.

PETER HOFFMAN PROPOSES NAME 'HARDING BRIDGE'

Peter M. Hoffman, sheriff of Cook county, sends to THE TRIBUNE a suggestion for doing honor to the name of the late President, Warren G. Harding. Sheriff Hoffman says:

"Some time ago your paper requested that the citizens of Cook county suggest a name to be given to the boulevard link bridge in Michigan avenue.

"I would suggest that it be named the Warren G. Harding bridge in memory of our departed President.

"If my memory serves me right, there are two large pillars at each end of the bridge upon which could be placed four bronze plates bearing the name 'Harding Bridge.'"

De Jonghe Hotel Closed for Violating Booze Law

The De Jonghe hotel, in the loop, long famous for its restaurant, was closed yesterday by United States Marshal Robert R. Levy on a decree signed by Federal Judge Cliffe forbidding the use of the property for a year, on the ground that liquor laws had been violated there.

2.24 Inches of Rain Does Big Damage at Omaha

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 4.—Considerable property damage resulted in Omaha today from 2.24 inches of rain between 7 and 9 a. m. which the weather bureau said was a new record fall for so short a period in any August in the city's history. Several places were struck by lightning and cellars were flooded.

HARDING'S DEATH FORCES G. O. P. TO REVISE '24 PLANS

Coolidge Now Looms as Important Element.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Republican leaders conceded today that, as a result of the death of President Harding, they must reorganize their campaign for 1924, though none would predict along what lines the reorganization might take place.

The most important element in the reorganization will be, of course, President Coolidge. On the record he makes between now and the time of the national conventions next year will depend much of the policies of the situation. The only certain impression here is that Mr. Coolidge is the most formidable aspirant for the Republican nomination, but whether he continues to be or not will depend on what he does in the next eleven months.

Will Not Bow to Radicals.

It is already certain that Mr. Coolidge will not yield to the radical demand for a special session of congress. He has already indicated to the correspondents that he does not believe an extra session necessary. It is upon the questions before Mr. Harding upon which he had not announced his position that the greatest public interest attaches. Some of these questions are:

How the problem of the western farmer will be solved, other than through the coöperative scheme advocated by Mr. Harding, which even he admitted probably would not be entirely adequate.

What is to be done with the prohibition question, inasmuch as even the best friends of the Volstead law admit it is creating grave difficulty in enforcement. What is to be done with the railroads, and is the Esch-Cummins law to stand? What about immigration? Is the unscientific Fordney-McCumber tariff law to stand?

They're All Unanswered.

Will the plan for United States adherence to the world court be pushed? Will the forces of the government be used to combat the threatened strike in the anthracite coal industry? And will President Coolidge adopt as strong an attitude in this case as he did when the Boston police went on strike?

Indications are that Mr. Coolidge will take his own time to answer them, but it is certain that once he announces a stand he will carry it through regardless of consequences.

So long as President Harding was in the field, others hesitated to enter against him, and it was freely conceded that he would be renominated, unless it were for Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, who has given evidence that he will attempt to form a third party. Senator Hiram Johnson of California has been spoken of as a candidate.

It is not at all improbable that Senator Watson of Indiana will be a candidate for the nomination if he can line up the contending factions in his home state.

Senator Wadsworth of New York and Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania have been mentioned in connection with the presidency, while former Senator Beveridge of Indiana, Senator McCormick of Illinois, Henry J. Allen of Kansas have been mentioned from time to time.

TRAMP PRINTER HELPED HARDING MEET PAY ROLL

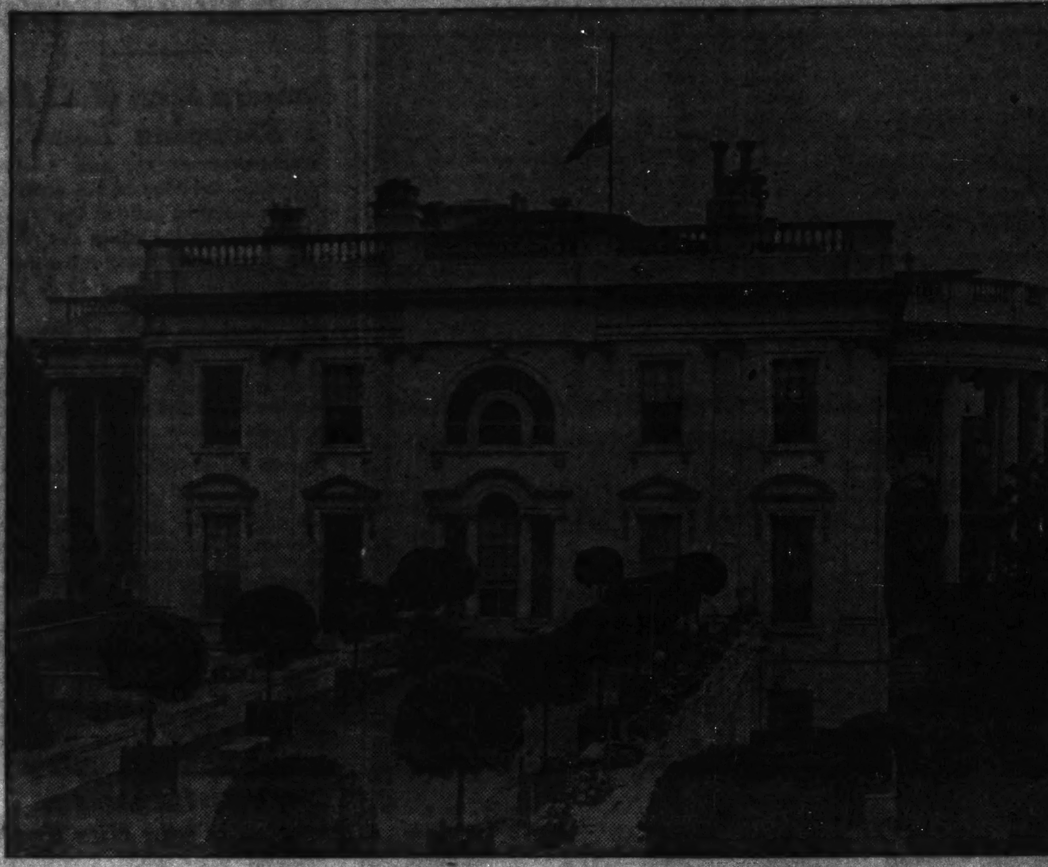
Clinton, Ill., Aug. 4.—Mike Bachman, Warren G. Harding's first printer in Marion, assisted the future President through the reorganization of a defunct newspaper. It was not always easy for the editor to arrange the weekly pay day. Not only did Mike allow his time to accumulate, but on more than one occasion loaned a few dollars to assist the boss in paying off the help.

But the road called Mike and, though he worked at various times on the Star, he spent his years working and traveling. When Mr. Harding was elected President, Mike wrote that he was ready to accept a position in the new cabinet and received a letter in reply stating that the old printer would be given a governmental position if he desired it. But Mike had spent too many years on the road to be satisfied in one place. His whereabouts are now unknown.

Seize Women in Act of Taking Pocketbook

Alleged to have records as pickpockets, Mrs. Stella Lawson, 3227 West Madison street, and Miss Birdie Cohen, 619 East 60th street, were arrested yesterday at State and Adams streets as they were attempting, it is charged, to take a woman's pocketbook.

SYMBOLIC OF A NATION'S MOURNING



An unusually impressive token of the nation's grief over the death of President Harding is this flag, flying at half-mast, on top of the White House. Thousands of other flags are also at half-mast, but none seems to express so dramatically the sadness of the country's people as does this one at the home which the nation provides for its chiefs.

FARMERS LOOK TO "SILENT CALVIN" AS TRUE FRIEND

See New President as One of Own.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

In President Coolidge farmers see the marks of a true friend.

In the Green Mountain farm boy, blue-eyed, sandy-haired "Silent Calvin," farmers observe a farmer-minded sympathizer.

New England farmers have been swearing by him for years, and during the last two days he has passed the practical farmers' tests as imposed by examining boards in the barnyards of every agricultural section in America.

Fifteen other Presidents have come from the farm, but none of them was closer to the soil when asked to take the President's chair than the nation's new chief. Farmers do not have to draw on their imagination to see this Plymouth plowboy on his father's tiny hillside farm. It must have been when he geed and hawed the old Morgan mare with a plow line that he developed that something in him which made men choose him as a leader.

Point to Farm Visits.

Knowing the life of the new President and the fact that he loves the country well enough to spend his vacations in his father's phoneless, kerosene lighted farmhouse, farmers believe he will come out to the country often enough to take care of their needs.

Agricultural leaders consider it significant that President Coolidge's native state is noted for its small farms and lack of big mills and furnaces. Of greater importance from a legislative standpoint is the fact that New Englanders are vitally interested in agricultural regions of the west and south. The people of Vermont, the President's home state, have huge investments in real estate mortgages in the western and southern agricultural sections, a fact brought out some time ago by former Senator Carroll Page.

Cite His Speeches.

That the President is exceptionally friendly toward agriculture has been indicated many times. New Englanders are quite familiar with his famous rural speech in which he clearly showed his strong belief in fairness to the farmer.

In his last speech as governor of Massachusetts, made just before he was nominated for Vice President, he declared that every encouragement should be extended to the farmer. He believes that government officials' efforts should be directed to the prosperity of the men on the farms.

"If the farmer is made successful and secure there will be no lack of others to enter the field and use all available land," he said. "It would be little advantage to the man who has his life's savings invested in his farm to have another establishment set up at public expense to compete with him. It is fundamental that the way to assist an enterprise is to assist the people engaged in the enterprise. Make the farmers succeed and the success of farming is established."

FUNERAL TRAIN OF HARDING RECALLS LINCOLN CORTEGE

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—As the Harding funeral train swept eastward across the western states, older citizens of Illinois today recalled how the body of Abraham Lincoln was brought back to his home here more than a half century ago.

While the Harding train is expected to reach Washington from San Francisco, approximately 2,600 miles apart, in about ninety hours, the slower journey of the Lincoln cortége from Washington, a distance of 1,662 miles from Springfield, required twelve days. Stops were made in the principal cities, so eager were the people to pay homage to the martyred President. The train passed through Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Buffalo, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Chicago.

Possibly hundreds of thousands of Americans passed the bier of Lincoln in the great cities. After the ceremonies at Chicago, the train left May 2 for Springfield while bands played a dirge in the Union station.

$100 Benefit Check Sent Mrs. Harding by Hoo-Hoos

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—A $100 check, the regular death benefit paid to the family of a deceased member, was sent to Mrs. Harding today by H. R. Isherwood, secretary-treasurer of the Concatenated Order of Hoo-Hoo, a lumbermen's organization. The late president had been a member of the order 18 years, being a stockholder in two Marion, Ohio, lumber companies.

Mrs. Harding May Receive Life Annuity of $5,000

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—If precedents are followed Mrs. Warren G. Harding will receive a life pension of $5,000 a year from the government.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt were given the annuities by vote of the house and senate and members of congress said today there was little doubt of similar action in the case of Mrs. Harding.

It is understood that the President's estate will approximate $500,000.

SIR ARTHUR SAYS HARDING'S SPIRIT TO AID COOLIDGE

Three Days Must Elapse, Doyle Declares.

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—"After a period of about three days the spirit of President Harding may, if sought, advise Calvin Coolidge, the nation's new chief executive, wisely and helpfully on the great problems confronting him."

Thus asserted Sir Conan Doyle, spiritualist and searcher into the realm of the unseen, just before leaving for London today on board the White Star line steamship Adriatic, with his wife and three children—Dennis, Malcolm, and Miss Billy.

Last Speech Posthumous.

Likewise did Sir Conan infer that the last message of the President, read by George B. Christian, his secretary, before the Knights Templar at Hollywood, Cal., a few hours before the President's death, was a posthumous message. Sir Conan pointed out that the message was deeply religious, counseling love, peace and glorification for the Holy Name.

"When a spirit leaves this plane of turmoil," Sir Arthur said, "a period of readjustment must follow before it is ready to communicate with the world it has left. This period will soon be at an end, and there is every possibility that the President, if he wishes, will appear through a medium.

Says Lincoln Spiritualist.

Sir Arthur then pointed out that it has been proved that Abraham Lincoln was a spiritualist, saying that it was a message, through a medium, from Daniel Webster, that resulted in his signing the proclamation of emancipation and later visiting the battle fields to cheer and comfort the soldiers.

Sir Arthur said he had not been in communication with the spirit of President Harding because, besides the three days that must elapse, the President was a high soul and that it would be more difficult for him to communicate through earthly mediums than one who had dwelled closer to earthly things when alive.

TAX VALUATIONS ALREADY ABOV MAYOR'S 'BOOS

Assessors Bare Joke Dever's Commission

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Valuation Already $9,800.

TAX VALUATIONS ALREADY ABOVE MAYOR'S 'BOOST'

Assessors Bare Joke on Dever's Commission.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Members of the board of assessors have been telling privately for three weeks "the best tax joke that ever happened." It is on Mayor Dever's tax commission. It may be a jest, so far as public officials are concerned, but it may be something different from the viewpoint of the property owners.

The purpose of the mayor's tax commission is to increase the city's revenue from taxes. To accomplish that they desire, as one means, that tax valuations be boosted on land which they claim has been undervalued for assessing purposes. That is proposed on the grounds of equity. In the entire program of the commission there is nothing which contemplates a reduction in the tax income of the city.

The mayor's and his commission's favorite example of alleged undervaluation is on property abutting the boulevard link. On this the commission in its statement to the board of review says:

"On Michigan avenue north of Randolph street land has doubled in value. Values between Randolph street and the river have risen from $2,500 a front foot to $5,000 and $5,500."

Presumably the commission meant $5,000 to $5,500 is the fair market value per front foot. The assessors to get their full tax value take 70 per cent of what they think is the fair market value, which on the commission's figures would be $3,500 and $3,850 per front foot.

Valuation Already $9,800.

The northwest corner of Randolph street and Michigan boulevard site of the Crerar library, has been given a full value by the assessors of $884,068. This is for land alone. It has a frontage on Michigan boulevard of 90 feet. Reckoning on a front foot basis on Michigan avenue that is at the rate of $9,822.97 per front foot. The assessors valuation on this land in the quadrennial year of 1919 was $593,052 and in 1915, $471,785, which, on a boulevard basis is at a rate in excess of $5,200 a front foot.

When these facts were called to the attention of members of the mayor's commission Friday they said an error probably had been made. Yesterday Corporation Counsel Busch wrote a letter to the board of review telling of the mistake and saying that the valuation should have been $10,000 and $12,000 a front foot. But the jest still continues, because these figures on this corner lot are still below those of the board of review on a fair interpretation.

Figured Wrong Again.

The assessors' full tax value of $884,068 is 70 per cent of the real market value in the assessors' opinion. Therefore they decided that the real value is $1,262,954. At the commission's corrected maximum valuation of $12,000 a front foot, the 90 feet of boulevard frontage would total $1,080,000—$182,954 below that of the assessors.

What the next move of the commission will be remains to be seen. If the board of review adopts the commission's value on this lot, the assessors' valuation will be reduced.

Moving north from the corner of Randolph the assessors have placed a full valuation $151,572 on a lot with 24 feet frontage on Michigan boulevard. That is a front foot value of $6,316. Another lot of 24½ feet averages $6,352 per front foot.

At the southwest corner of Lake street is a lot 95½ feet on the boulevard. That averages $7,291 per front foot. The northwest corner of South Water street averages $6,726 in the assessors' valuations.

How One Lot Is Hit.

On the east side of the boulevard is a lot which technically fronts on South Water street. The major portion of it was taken by the city to widen the boulevard and only 13.78 feet of the width remains, although it abuts the boulevard for a distance of 130 feet. It is used at present as the site of some large signs.

The assessors have placed a tax valuation of $152,188 on the scant lot. At the present tax rate of $7.74 per $100 assessed valuation, the owner will have to charge $5,889.67 a year for the signs in order to pay his taxes.

ILLINOIS STORM DARKENS CITIES, DESTROYSCROPS

Communication Cut Off; Power, Too.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—A wind storm, accompanied by heavy rain and hail, descended on central and southern Illinois late today and tonight Springfield was isolated from neighboring cities by a complete paralysis of telephone and telegraph service.

This section of the state was strewn with the wreck of trees, telegraph poles, and fences. At some points the hard roads were impassible because of the great piles of debris. The great corn crop, now maturing in this section, was damaged.

Illinois traction system cars on all lines were stalled several hours during the storm and tonight were running from three to four hours late.

Neither the telephone nor the telegraph companies were able to reach their stations south of here tonight.

The only uninterrupted communication in the state was with Chicago. The wires were down as far north as Bloomington and west to Jacksonville.

Crops Swept Away.

Pana, Ill., Aug. 4.—Many towns in southern Illinois were reported to be veiled in darkness tonight and without telephone service due to a heavy storm that swept over southern Illinois late this afternoon.

Thousands of acres of corn were reported ruined by the terrific wind and the public service system supplying the towns with electric power was put out of commission.

Trees Block Streets.

Trees uprooted by the storm blocked the streets of this city. One fatality directly due to the storm was reported. Edward Ortz, farmer, was crushed under a falling tree. He died a few hours later.

From Litchfield, Ill., it was reported that the entire electric light system was out of commission.

Other towns also reported a heavy damage, principally to crops that have not as yet been harvested.

Two Passenger Steamers Crash at San Francisco

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 4.—The passenger steamer Manukai, of the Matson line, was rammed in the Golden Gate today by the French freighter Alaskan. No details of the accident accompanied the first report. The Alaskan was reported limping into the harbor with a great hole torn in her bow. No persons were injured, so far as could be learned.

SHORT SKIRTS AGAIN! IT'S DONE AT DEAUVILLE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

DEAUVILLE, France, Aug. 4.—The famous Normandy beach of Deauville had its formal opening today with the beginning of the racing season. The whole day was given over to the Parisian dressmakers.

The sensation of the show was the short skirts, at least six inches off the ground, which were displayed by favored customers and mannequins de luxe. Of widely different cut and general effect from those of last year, this year's robe and short skirted garments kept Deauville agog.

Prices at this favorite American resort are staggering. They have gone up at least 25 per cent on the average, keeping pace with the progress of the dollar during the last year.

TWO SOLDIERS OF FORTUNE JOKE AS ONE GIVES BLOOD

Gen. Christmas Is Near Death in South.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Gen. Lee Christmas, for thirty years the mainstay of one Central American revolutionary leader after another, tonight had in his veins the life fluid of one of his old comrades of the tropical jungles, Guy Molony, superintendent of the New Orleans police department.

Blood transfusion was resorted to in an effort to save the life of the man whose activities from Panama to the southern border of Mexico inspired Richard Harding Davis to create "Clay" and make him the hero of his novel, "Soldiers of Fortune," for "Clay" and Christmas are one.

Gen. Christmas, suffering from acute anemia induced by a disease known as "tropic spruce," brought on by long years spent in the jungles, has been ill nearly a year. His condition early today became such that his physician determined upon transfusion. A half dozen old friends volunteered and Superintendent Molony and T. Richardson, an explorer, were selected for blood tests.

The test proved that either could be used, but Molony out argued Richardson and the medical men.

Connect Their Arteries.

Superintendent Molony arrived at the Christmas home in Sycamore street shortly before 4 o'clock. He entered the general's room and found the doughty old warrior with a pillow back of his shoulders calmly reading a popular magazine which specializes in fictitious stories of adventure which Christmas had experienced in fact.

Molony came to attention and saluted, much as he used to when the general had his ragged, tattered and barefooted army, officered by American adventurers in the field.

"What are you doing here, old timer?" the general asked Molony.

"You and I are going to do a brother act," the superintendent replied.

Molony entered another room, removed his shoes, lay down on a couch and a surgeon prepared him for his part of the operation, while another attended to Christmas. Then they were placed together on a bed and the arteries connected.

The general was very pale when the fluid began to flow, but soon he began to show color, for the surgeons permitted a pint and a half to pass.

Who Had the Fleas?

While the fluid was flowing, Christmas scratched himself.

"Molony, why in h— didn't you leave those d— fleas at home?" he asked.

"If I've got 'em, I got 'em since I came here," the superintendent replied.

After it was all over newspaper men and the surgeons attempted to praise Molony.

"Aw, cut out the bull," he replied. "He would have done the same thing for me."

Then Molony and the general spent ten minutes telling how much each thought of the other, emphasizing each endearing term with words selected from a vocabulary typical of men who have knocked about the world.

GAS WORKERS FIND CAUSE FOR STRIKE THREAT

By-Products Company Fights Union, Claim.

Threats of a strike, which would seriously curtail the production of gas in Chicago, were made yesterday in a letter sent to Samuel Insull, president of the People's Gas Light and Coke company, by business agents of the gas workers' and engineers' unions.

The new factor, which threatens to bring on a gas workers' strike, doesn't touch on wage increases or working conditions, but is based on an alleged discrimination against union men by the Gas By-Products corporation which the union leaders contend is a subsidiary of the gas company.

To Ask Pay Raise Later.

Last week gas workers and engineers employed by the gas company voted to ask for pay increases ranging from 25 cents to 30 cents an hour. Negotiations with the gas company on these demands will be opened on Aug. 15 or 16 and the results submitted to the membership of the gas workers' and engineers' union at a special meeting on Aug. 30. The unions' contracts expire on Sept. 1.

In the letter to Mr. Insull, Pat Gallagher and John W. Gorey, business agents of the gas workers and engineers' unions, allege that the By-Products corporation discriminates against members of their organizations.

They contend that "the corporation has employed private detectives who challenge the right of union organizers to talk with workers as they leave the gas plant."

The Unions' Threat.

The communication concludes by asking Mr. Insull "to find a solution for adjustment of the present situation for if one is not found, officials of the gas' workers' and engineers' unions will be forced to call a strike of the gas company's employés."

Bernard Mullaney, manager of the industrial relations department of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, denied last night that the Gas By-Products corporation is a subsidiary of the gas company. He said the gas company buys gas from the corporation, but with that exception there is no connection between the two companies.

MORSE IS FREED BY JURY AFTER 15 WEEKS' TRIAL

Was Accused in Wartime Shipbuilding Case.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4. — The government lost today the first of the big war fraud criminal cases, a jury in the District of Columbia Supreme court returning a verdict of acquittal in the case of Charles W. Morse, New York shipbuilder, his three sons, and four others, who were charged with a conspiracy to defraud the United States on war time shipbuilding and operating contracts.

Jury Deliberates Fourteen Hours.

The jurors, who had spent fifteen weeks in hearing the evidence and argument, deliberated approximately fourteen hours. Receiving the case late yesterday, they remained up until 4 o'clock this morning and then resumed their discussions at 7 o'clock. A verdict was reached three hours later. As the jury reported its findings on each of the four counts in the two indictments, tears coursed down the cheeks of Mr. Morse. The other defendants showed few signs of emotion.

Besides the elder Morse, those acquitted were Erwin A. Morse, Benjamin W. Morse, Harry F. Morse, N. H. Campbell of New York, R. M. Much of Augusta, Me., and R. O. White of New York, all officials of some of the several Morse companies, and Philip Reinhardt, who was an auditor for the Emergency Fleet corporation at the Virginia Shipbuilding plant at Alexandria, Va.

Morse to Go to Europe.

After the verdict had been returned Mr. Morse said he would leave soon for Europe for his health. His chief counsel, Nash Rockwood of New York, stated that upon the convening of congress, Mr. Morse would seek an investigation by the house and senate judiciary committees of the prosecution brought against him by the government.

DR. FOWLER, ALIENIST, WEDS RICH CONTRACTOR

Nuptials Recall His Ex-Wife's Divorce Charges.

Emanuel H. Kuttner, wealthy secretary of the Illinois Ballast and Improvement company, and Dr. Florence M. Fowler, resident alienist at the county hospital, who was named as corespondent in a divorce obtained by Mrs. Helen J. Kuttner of Lombard, last November, were married yesterday by Justice of the Peace James McCullough of Joliet.

No address was given by either party, the contractor giving his age as 57 and Mrs. Fowler signing her name as "F. Mary Fowler, age 42."

Startling Case Recalled.

The marriage recalls sensational charges made by Mrs. Kutner at the time she filed her bill for a divorce in the Du Page county court in April, 1922. In petitioning for an injunction restraining him from disposing of certain property and from entering her Lombard residence, Mrs. Kuttner accused her husband of having established Dr. Fowler in a "love bungalow" at 1053 North Austin boulevard. Her husband, she claimed, had purchased the bungalow for a nephew but she later discovered Dr. Fowler resided there and that certain furnishings had been charged to her husband's account at a department store.

Mrs. Kuttner also charged her husband had purchased an automobile, a duplicate of his own, for the alienist. Private detectives whom she employed, she declared, had reported following the contractor and the doctor to the bungalow in the evening and from there to their respective places of employment in the morning.

Mrs. Kuttner also expressed the fear that her husband had brought the alienist to her Lombard home on frequent occasions for the purpose of "observing her mental condition" with a view to having her adjudged insane.

Dr. Fowler Asks Damages.

Dr. Fowler immediately replied to these charges by filing a suit for $100,000 damages against Mrs. Kuttner. She denied the alleged association with the contractor. She described Mrs. Kuttner as a woman "given to a vicious, unhealthy, morbid and sordid cycle of thought" and "a believer in spiritualism, astrology and occultism." She declared Mrs. Kuttner had told her she was the reincarnation of the queen of Sheba and Cleopatra.

Kuttner, in his answer to his wife's suit, accused her of being unduly familiar with Sri. Jogesh Misrow, a Hindu mystic, poet and philosopher at 2748 Hampden court.

The damage suit was settled out of court and a few days later Mrs. Kuttner was granted a divorce at a private hearing in the chambers of Judge Hasini Slusser at Wheaton. The amount of alimony, said to have been substantial, was not made public.

REDS HAIL CITY AS 'U. S. CENTER'; WILL MOVE HERE

Soviet Paper Also Headed This Way.

In the belief that Chicago has become the "chief center of communism in America," leaders of the Workers' party, official mouthpiece in America of the Russian Third Internationale, have decided to remove their national headquarters to this city soon, it became known yesterday. The offices have been located at 799 Broadway, New York, since government detectives broke up a secret convention of the organization held in a forest near Bridgeman, Mich.

Reports that the Workers' chieftains, headed by Charles E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary, were soon to move in a body on Chicago were verified at both the New York offices and at the office of Arne Swabeck, district organizer, 166 West Washington street.

Red Paper Also Coming.

William Z. Foster, accredited brains of the communist movement in this country, when seen at the office of his "Trade Union Educational league" at 106 North La Salle street, admitted he had heard of the contemplated transfer, but referred inquirers to Swabeck.

The only Russian language newspaper in America which is an open champion of sovietism also will move to this city, according to reports. This paper is declared to be the Novy Mir, a daily, issued by the Novy Mir Publishing company at 208 East 12th street, New York.

"Our Natural Center."

"Chicago is our natural headquarters," said Swabeck. "It is centrally located and many of our stanchest supporters are in the middle west."

It was denied that the recent successful "raid" on the convention of the Farmer-Labor party by Reds, under leadership of Foster and Ruthenberg, which resulted in formation of the so-called Federated Farmer-Labor party, was a deciding factor in bringing the home office of the communists to Chicago.

AMERICA HOLDS CHINESE TROOPS SEIZED AT ICHANG

ICHANG, China, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Rear Admiral William W. Phelps, commander of the American fleet in Chinese waters, has ordered the gunboat Isabel here to detain, pending his arrival, the American steamship Alice Dollar, together with the Chinese army officers and thirteen soldiers taken prisoners by marines from the Isabel in quelling the riot aboard the Alice Dollar Wednesday.

The trouble on the Alice Dollar followed a dispute over accommodations for the Chinese soldiers. They boarded the vessel and fired several shots, during which Capt. Torureth, master of the ship, and three foreign women were injured.

Proves German Fleet Had Orders to Fight U. S. In 1898

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—A quarter of a century after Manila was captured by the American fleet, the truth about certain interesting incidents which have puzzled historians for many years has been unveiled by Capt. Perstus, one of the German naval officers on duty before Manila. He confirms the reports that, by the order of the German Kaiser, the United States and Germany were on the brink of war in 1898 and that this was only prevented by the wisdom of old seafarers.

Capt. Perstus, who was navigation officer on board the Kaiserin Augusta before Manila, that is to say second in command of the ship, writes: "The kaiser, who always intimated that his sympathies were on the side of Spain in the Spanish-American war, dispatched a big fleet to Manila, giving rise to the impression among the Spaniards that Germany would take up their cause and fight against America. It was an incident on board one of these ships, the Kaiserin Augusta, before Manila which started America's distrust of Germany.

Stronger Than Dewey's Fleet.

"Officially, it has always been denied that the German cruisers were 'stripped for action' before Manila, ready to fight the American ships. I was on board the Kaiserin Augusta and know that the real truth is this:

"Our fleet before Manila was composed of five units, which at that time were stronger than all the American ships assembled there. The German officers and sailors were being entertained as guests of honor by the Spaniards and occasionally invited into the trenches surrounding Manila. Intercourse between Germans and Spaniards was extremely friendly and it was this friendship that brought about the first incident.

"German ships had several times taken aboard Spanish refugees. Admiral Dewey protested, insisting on the 'right to visit' which the German admiral, Von Diedrichs, refused. The altercation between the American admiral and the emissary of the German admiral, Lieut. Hintze, later Admiral Von Hintze, German naval minister, has been much discussed by historians and its substance often guessed at, but it has remained unknown except to the two men concerned.

Ordered to Strip for Action.

"My diary reads that Admiral Dewey finally told Hintze: 'Young man, do you know what war means?' and I believe this to be the true version.

"On July 12, the Kaiserin Augusta was ordered to the island of Corregidor to join two other ships and together they were to sail to Manila. On July 13 they were headed towards Manila wharf. I was standing on the bridge beside the commander when he gave the order, 'Strip for action.'

"The first officer and myself were informed that the orders of Admiral Von Diedrichs were: 'Oppose violence to violence if necessary.' I was amazed and when I asked the commander at least to camouflage our military preparedness, the captain answered: 'Quite impossible. I must obey orders.' The gunners stood beside the guns and real ammunition was served out. Awnings were hauled down despite the blazing sun.

Camouflaged Preparedness.

"The commander left me alone on the bridge. I asked permission to set up the awnings, which was granted, and I gave orders to place them so that they camouflaged our preparedness. When near the American fleet we sailed at full speed in order to reduce the chances of the American fleet trying to insist on the 'right to visit.' We reached harbor safely. Orders were given to keep our preparedness secret, but one of the sailors talked and everybody knew about it. The Germans denied the rumors but in vain.

"On Aug. 8 Admiral Dewey announced that he was about to storm Manila and asked the foreign ships to retire after taking their nationals on board. This was done. We received orders to withdraw and sail for Hong Kong immediately after the capure of Manila.

Kaiser Speculated on Report.

"Nobody in Hong Kong was to be informed of this fact, which was immediately cabled to the kaiser. For twenty-four hours he was the only man in Berlin who knew of the capture of Manila. A banker later told me this was only done for speculation purposes on the Bourse.

"Later I returned to Manila where I admired the American officers who openly admitted 'the game was easy,' and who made no show of false pride."

BABY SWALLOWS DRUG MOTHER TOSSED AWAY

A 19 month old baby, daughter of John P. Heinz, 7021 South Aberdeen street, a broker, is in a serious condition at the Englewood hospital, after drinking the contents of a small bottle of atropine, which had been thrown in the waste basket of her home yesterday.

The baby was rushed to the hospital and a stomach pump was used. According to the child's mother, the atropine had been used for eye medicine, and she had thrown the bottle away when cleaning out a medicine closet. She summoned a physician, who sent the child to the hospital.

HOSPITAL SCENES RECALL DOCTOR'S LOST MEMORY

Interne's Work Arouses Amnesia Victim.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Relating that he had been a victim of amnesia and that his memory had been restored by performance of a hospital orderly's duties, Dr. James H. Anderson, Detroit physician, who disappeared mysteriously last November, has returned home in full possession of his faculties.

"My life during the first six months of my absence is a complete blank, but I have been told that I worked in stores and factories in Chicago during this time," Dr. Anderson said today. "A little more than two months ago a strange instinct led me to a position as orderly in a Chicago hospital.

"During these two months I struggled constantly to cling to fragments of memory which came to me and, bit by bit, I pieced together recollections of my earlier life as suggested by the familiar surroundings of a sick room.

Regarded as a "Nut."

"Often I diagnosed cases as I attended patients as an orderly and some times my diagnosis was in conflict with that of the attending physicians. The physicians and nurses at the hospital regarded me as a 'nut,' but once an autopsy revealed that I had been right and the physician wrong and then they regarded me with curiosity.

"But I was not complete master of my secret until it all burst upon me suddenly that morning a week ago, and then I revealed my discovery only to two friends in Chicago."

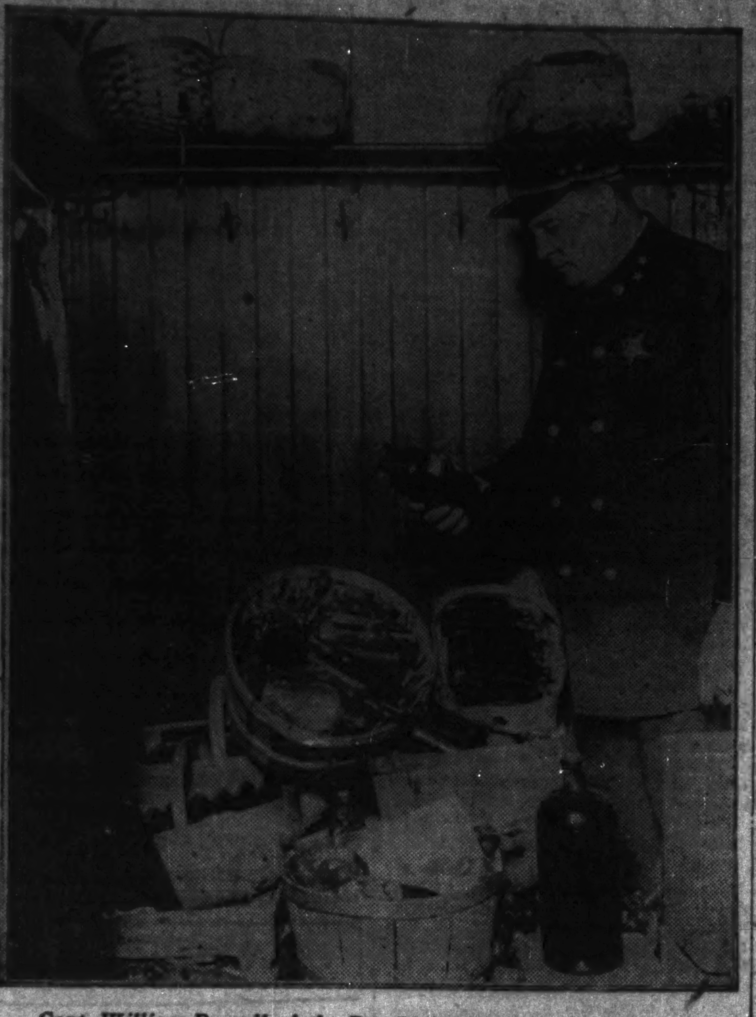
Dr. Anderson, who is 56 years old, told of a week of indecision, during which he found it difficult to decide whether to return to Detroit and start life anew or to keep his secret and start over somewhere else.

Duty to Family Decides.

"I did not want to come back to Detroit, for a reproach seemed to attach to my experience and I feared it would be difficult to attain my high position in society again. But for the sake of my wife and son I determined to come back and try again."

This was the second time Dr. Anderson had been a victim of amnesia in the last five years. He disappeared in 1917 when he and his wife were at a Chicago hotel. Three months later he was recognized on the streets of Detroit.

WHY THE HOBOES LAMENT



Capt. William Russell of the Des Plaines street police station looking over the many varieties of liquor seized in last night's record breaking series of raids on hoboes' rum haunts on near west side, during which more than 300 persons were jailed. The raids followed Chief Collins' orders to clean up the city.

RATS! OH, RATS! SAYS VOLSTEAD TO ALL QUERIES

New York, Aug. 4.—Andrew J. Volstead, former representative from Minnesota and father of the federal prohibition enforcement law, sailed today on the America for Copenhagen where he will attend the international congress against alcohol.

He voiced indignant contempt for reporters' questions with his favorite expression, "Oh rats." He placed his hat in front of his face to thwart the efforts of photographers and finally ran to his stateroom.

Before he fled he was told that farmers throughout the country were making wine and hard cider.

"Rats!" shouted Mr. Volstead, and again "Rats! They're not doing it on my farm or anybody's farm."

"There are 1,200 saloons in New York, Mr. Volstead," another newspaper man remarked.

"Rats!" he said.

Then someone asked him if he ever took a drink himself.

"I don't know that there is any harm in one drink," he said mildly.

British Probe Charge of Enmity of New Red Envoy

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—THE TRIBUNE learns today that the departure from Moscow of M. Rakovsky, the new soviet envoy to Great Britain, has been delayed because of the inquiries made about the alleged attacks on England and English statesmen by M. Rakovsky. These charges were made by the Morning Post, London Tory paper, which has opposed any dealing with the soviet. The British government, it is explained, feels bound to investigate. So far there is no evidence that he has been unduly offensive and unless the charges are proved there is no intention of the British withdrawing their acceptance of him as envoy.

British Schooner's Crew Held Under U. S. Dry Law

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 4.—The captain and crew of the British schooner Pesaquid were held today for the grand jury at the November term of federal District court here after a preliminary hearing before Federal Commissioner Mahone. The vessel, with 1,400 cases of liquor, was seized within the three mile limit off Cape Hatteras several days ago.

BOMB HURLED AT FRENCH TROOPS IN DUSSELDORF

Two Soldiers and Child Wounded by Blast.

BY PAUL WILLIAMS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

DUSSELDORF, Aug. 4. — The French guard mounting ceremony, the event of every evening in Dusseldorf, had a tragic interruption tonight when a German threw a bomb among the band of soldier musicians.

The incident occurred in the Konigsalle, the principal street of Dusseldorf. The bomb wounded two French color guards and nearly killed a German child nearby. It is the first time since the occupation of the Ruhr that any incident of violence has occurred in Dusseldorf.

The French pursued the man who fled after the bomb had exploded. When captured, he denied any knowledge of the bomb, but detonators were found in his pockets.

Observers are unable to decide whether this unprecedented occurrence in Dusseldorf—hitherto calm—presages the outbreak of new disorders or whether the flying of French flags and the band playing got on the nerves of one German.

Potsdam Women Riot.

POTSDAM, Aug. 4.—[United Press.]—Crowds of women and children, after waiting all night for the arrival of food supplies, angrily stormed the wagons today and were dispersed only after police had threatened them with violence.

When the crowd had increased to great proportions, and feelings to riot pitch, police took charge of the butter and supply wagons and the women rushed them.

Angry women grabbed at the police and tried to pull them from the wagons by their belts, in protest against the delay, but after patient work, in which they refrained from the use of their weapons, the police succeeded in dispersing the gathering.

Villagers Seize Food.

DUISBURG, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—A group of workmen from the village of Huttenheim armed themselves with clubs yesterday and went to nearby farms to force the farmers to sell potatoes to them, and when they were refused the villagers went into the field and dug up their own edibles, leaving payment at the rate of 8,000 marks a pound, which is about half what the producers asked.

Minor demonstrations constantly are occurring in the Ruhr. Everywhere housewives wait for hours in long lines before the groceries and butcher shops to get a fraction of their needs at ever increasing prices.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

Herman Schroeder, 3332 Powell avenue, did not die in the Montrose hospital as stated in THE TRIBUNE Thursday. He was first taken to that hospital, but removed a couple of days thereafter to another hospital, where he died later.

53,000 Tickets Sold for Firemen's Baseball Series

More than 53,000 tickets have been sold for the series of baseball games which Chicago and New York firemen will play starting on Sept. 10, it was announced yesterday. The proceeds are used for the firemen's insurance fund. The participants hope to add $100,000 to the fund through the ball games.

Slayer Cheats Executioner by Hanging Self in Cell

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—William C. Faries, sentenced to be electrocuted on Aug. 24, was found dead in his cell at the state penitentiary here this morning. Prison authorities said he hanged himself with pieces of a sheet during the night.

NORTH SHORE
Residence Lots
150, 175 and 200 Ft. Deep

AMONG the many beautiful North Shore suburbs this location is beyond any doubt the most delightful, and these lots are right in the best part of it. They cover far more building space than you usually get for a home—plenty of room for a handsome residence, with all the ground you want for garden, lawn, and flower parterres. You can plan just the right kind of surroundings, and have lots of room for the youngsters to play. None of the frontages less than 50 ft., and the depth runs from 150 to 175 ft., with a few at 200 ft.

Handy for Downtown

These lots are within a block of City Park, and a few minutes' walk from the depot. You can get to the Loop in 35 to 40 minutes by C. & N. W. or North Shore Electric. It's like a seaside summer resort, with the advantages of a metropolis thrown in—a splendid neighborhood bathing beach, schools, churches, and a golf course where the annual subscription is only $15.00.

Heavy Buying Here

The choice character of the locations and the extraordinary terms and prices have caused very heavy purchasing here in recent weeks. In the last 60 days we have sold $250,000 worth of lots—a number of them to physicians, lawyers and other professional men. A very desirable class of home-owners is quickly settling here.

$23 to $34 a Front Foot

The figures asked for these lots seem like a new price standard to those who have made any study of North Shore values. At $23 to $34 a front foot you are buying into the heart of a neighborhood where many similar building sites fetch nearly twice the frontage price—several about a hundred yards away. This opportunity has meant quick decisions by many who have searched vainly in other districts for desirable homesites reasonably priced, and have found these beyond all comparison with anything yet seen. About the last opportunity of its kind in the Chicago North Shore district.

Restricted Residence Property

This is an exclusive residence district, in which no stores, public garages or other buildings of that character are allowed. All the lots are beautifully landscaped and laid out with exquisite taste. The district is ideally picturesque, planted with fine elm trees, and has winding streets and wide parkways.

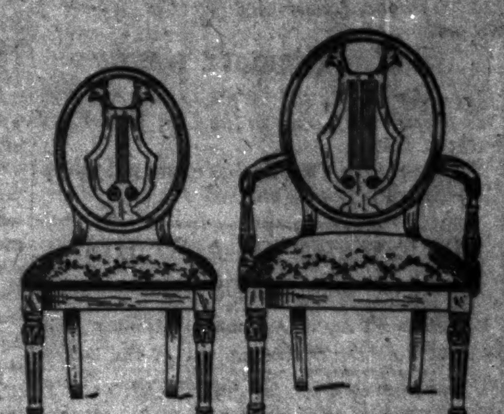
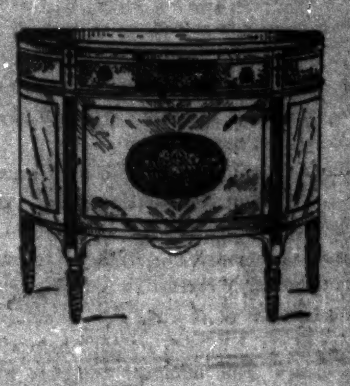
YOU can't know how good the opportunities for you are in this special sale, unless you come and see the things themselves.



Maybe if you looked at them, you would see only beauty; the real, underlying quality isn't visible to the eye; you can't tell what's under the varnish.

But we know; and we'll tell you. Scholle quality means so much to us; we are so particular about it; that it ought to mean a good deal to you. Furniture is something you expect to live with a long time; your expectations will not be realized unless the "long time" is built into the furniture. That's where Scholle quality counts.



On the other hand we know that in regard to quality, you've got to take somebody's word for it; and we say, if you take our word for it, and if you are not satisfied, you can have your money back and return the goods. We have to be satisfied too; and we wouldn't be, if you're not.

The fact that it's sale-time, and sale-prices doesn't affect that part of it. Whatever the price you expect satisfaction; and we'll see that you get it.

THE FARMER AND HIS FRIENDS.

Former Secretary of Agriculture Meredith, publisher of Successful Farming, one of the largest agricultural journals of the country, rises to protest against the alarmist politics of his senator, Mr. Brookhart, Magnus Johnson, and others. He points out that "every time Brookhart or any one else seeks to lead the public to believe the American farmer is ruined, when such is not the fact, he is destroying the credit of the farmer and his integrity as a business man, just as false rumors maliciously or selfishly circulated may start a run on a sound bank."

This is a timely rebuke to what passes for championship of agricultural interests. It presents a viewpoint which is that of practical affairs, but likely to be overlooked by many farmers who may be temporarily carried away by big talk. We have a good deal of this big talk, ranging from warnings of revolutions if we don't help wheat farmers to escape from imminent, complete, and irretrievable ruin, to milder suggestions for government wheat purchase or private storage.

In fact, agrarian politics has been inducing something like a fit of hysterics, and it is high time we all took a sedative of facts.

We quoted the Breeders' Gazette the other day in some wise remarks on the relation of the wheat crop and prices to the general agricultural situation and on the speculative character of one crop farming. Mr. Meredith's observations support Mr. Sanders' view of the general situation, and we have before us an interesting summary by the department of research of the American Farm Bureau federation. This survey estimates that wheat for the last five years has made up from 9 to 12 per cent of the sales of all crops, animal products, and live stock. Mr. Sanders says that in valuation it runs about 7 per cent. The reduction in the wheat price therefore cannot represent general agricultural ruin, which some agrarian politicians are prophesying.

In the districts where wheat is specialized this brings a painful crisis, but all three authorities quoted above testify to a gradual restoration of agricultural prosperity. The Farm Bureau bulletin states that "for the country as a whole and for products in general the present situation is not discouraging compared with last year," save that for the districts which rely upon wheat the outlook is disheartening. But preliminary estimates of the federation indicate that for the coming year gross income from farm sales will be about $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 more than the previous year.

This is not heading into ruin and revolution. The mischief of such sensationalism is serious. Mr. Meredith has pointed to only one evil result. Besides that is the spreading of fear throughout the business community, and we would point out that this will have certain effect upon agricultural revival. The fear that agricultural conditions will put a sudden check upon trade with the farmer, the fear that extreme and oppressive measures will be forced through congress and the legislatures by radical leaders, the fear that politics will be thrown into angry ferment, and that great changes are threatened, will shake the confidence of American business men and increase their difficulties.

Yet it was the courage and confidence of business men and financial leaders which are largely responsible for the restoration of business activity, which in turn has been a benefit to the efficient farmer. Each has helped the other and must help the other. The calamity howling of self-seeking politicians, who exaggerate the troubles of farmers and distort conditions, may win favor for the time being, but it is an injury to the real interest of farmers and business men alike.

We hope for a reaction before serious damage is done to the confidence the country needs. We hope the real leaders of agricultural opinion, men who are not looking for political power or favor, will exert their deserved influence for calm judgment and sound measures. The farmers' condition is not what he and all intelligent people want it to be. But it is not disastrous now and it is on the upgrade. There are adjustments still to be made, but they are not easy to make, nor are they to be made overnight at special sessions to pass hasty laws. They are not going to be hastened by howling the country into another depression. Commerce and industry have difficulties to meet as well as agriculture, and the farmer is not going to get back to prosperity and freedom from debt by making these difficulties worse. What we need is a cool facing of facts, less class talk, more mutual confidence and faith in our ability to win out together.

IGNORANCE AS QUALIFICATION FOR PUBLIC OFFICE.

A leading citizen of Iowa, Mr. W. R. Boyd of Cedar Rapids, discusses in the Republican of that city a tendency in our public affairs which we believe contains a more serious menace to our welfare than the much talked of disrespect for law. It is the tendency toward ignorance and incompetency in leadership.

A society can survive violence. It cannot survive incompetence. History has proved this again and again. It is no wonder the successful ignoramus in our public life does not approve of history. It teaches us how much more mischievous he is than the malefactor. It was not the iniquity of the old régime in eighteenth century France which broke it, but its incompetence. It was not the tyranny of the czarist bureaucracy that brought ruin, but its incapacity for meeting the responsibilities of modern government. It was not oppression that brought the downfall of the superefficient bureaucracy of Prussia, but its blundering in international relations and its ignorance of the character of the British empire and the American democracy.

Mr. Boyd, like many another thoughtful American, is gravely concerned over the tendency of our people to condone and even to admire a brazenly self-confessed ignorance. A good many of us seem to forget that leadership, if it is to bring good results for the commonwealth, must be enlightened by special knowledge and directed by special intelligence. We used to understand this. We still recognize it pretty generally in private affairs. As Mr. Boyd points out, we don't select a physician because he is ignorant and proud of it. We don't deliberately choose an inexperienced and ignorant man to manage our business enterprises. But of late we seem to think that in public affairs we can afford to ignore preparedness and ability.

The truth is that leadership in public affairs calls for very rare qualifications of knowledge, intelligence and character. As Mr. Boyd well says, the man or woman fit to serve us in high office is a rarity and always will be. Competent leaders are few and always have been, but competent leadership is essential to the public weal.

Our recent tendency is an unfortunate perversion. Mr. Boyd thinks, and we agree with him, that our public service has deteriorated and largely through the adoption of direct primaries, which have thrown office open to the man whose talent lies in playing upon our suspicions and our discontents, upon our snap judgments, our prejudices, and momentary passions. This system has been advocated as an advance in popular self-government, but it is proving to be a loss of self-government instead. A wise people will protect itself from its own unreasoned impulses, knowing that we are all prone to err through emotion and precipitate judgment. A wise people, like a wise individual, fears its own errors and reserves an appeal from Philip drunk to Philip sober. That was the wisdom of the forefathers who set up, with careful checks and balances, a representative, not a direct, democracy. Our republic was founded not only upon a genuine faith in the deliberate wisdom of the people, but upon a wise perception of the dangers of human haste and impulse.

The French philosopher and student of politics, Faguet, declares that democracies resent competence because they fear its superior power. To the extent this is true a democracy prepares its own destruction, for no form of government can protect its people or serve their needs through the leadership and management of ignorant and incapable men. A democratic government must justify itself by its ability to govern well. If it does not it will fall as certainly as any czardom. The present mood and tendency of a considerable number of the American people is suicidal for America. It shows a deplorable want of that common sense which we once thought was our national possession and protection from the misfortunes of past systems of government.

THE TRIBUNE WATER POWER PLAN.

THE TRIBUNE publishes today in its Colorote Magazine a map of water power development for the entire North American continent. This plan, upon which experts employed by THE TRIBUNE have been at work for more than a year, will solve our two most vexing problems—coal and railroads—and will ameliorate conditions in all industries and all walks of life by affording a better and cheaper form of power than can be generated by steam. It frees the nation from the coal strike tyranny and at the same time releases railroad equipment now used in handling coal to other uses, thus increasing the railroad capacity by some 33 per cent without demand for additional capital. The savings in cost are treated in the article itself.

Like all plans of progress, it must overcome the resistance of backward minds, entrenched selfishness, and political incompetence. However, we believe that the article will make the benefits to be achieved so apparent to the mass of the people that it will assure their accomplishment.

SAVE THE TREE.

In the August number of American Forestry is an appeal for better measures to check forest fire losses. It is backed by figures serious enough in all conscience. Last year, for example, 11,500,000 acres of timber were swept by fire, a money loss of nearly $17,000,000. And this is about an average for the period of 1916-1922.

The direct losses in material and in money are not the only losses. These lands may or may not be reforested. If they are it will take years to regrow the timber. If not, we lose the effects in climate and drainage which are of great importance to the welfare of the region affected. Reforestation is neglected in many parts of the continent because private owners do not find profit in it within a reasonable period, and state action is not offered. So the fire has done a damage that does not get remedied.

In the table shown it appears that one third of the total losses of 1922 was in the south and one quarter during the seven year period. When it is considered how important the forests are to the south, its soil preservation, water power and drainage, and its conditions of climate and natural beauty, this is evidently a problem of first rank importance. It is not an easy one to solve, but it can be solved. In Europe they have no such waste, and while our problem, because of the reckless habit of our people and the vast extent of our wild territory, is more complicated and difficult, we ought to be all the more energetic in attacking it.

The wastage of our great forest resources has been a tragic chapter of our history. We awakened late to its meaning, and have only begun to deal with conditions. What forests remain must have better protection. Reforestation and new forestation need to be established and maintained by practical measures. Rural tree planting must be fostered by appropriate laws. The tree is an essential of the welfare of our continent. It should be one of the chief objects of our public policy, in the nation, the state, and the local community.

THE COMMUTER'S TICKET.

This is Esau's ticket, a month in which all the days are his. He can sit on the garden bench and within the walls is a world wholly his, from raspberries of his more delicate fancy to cabbages of his sturdy moments. The young green corn is above his head and strawberries are in both blossom and fruit.

Early goldenrod and sunflowers blossom and more color spreads over the wayside and into the thickets. Wild asters come into the field. The katydids come back into the oak. Cosmos and the late phlox fill the borders. Esau's month is pleasant to all the perceptions, the month of the boiling pot and the garden at its full.

AN AMERICAN INAUGURAL.

The inaugural of Calvin Coolidge was, we think, one of the most impressive in American history. Every inaugural is and must be impressive, but the scene at dead of night in the simple parlor of the farm house among the New England hills had a significance which the booming of guns, music, and the cheers of crowds, or even the magnificent background of the capitol could not have given it. Not the chief justice in robes, but an aged man administered the oath of office, by virtue of the humblest official authority in the country, that of the notary public. We suspect many a stenographer and clerk who has a notarial commission had just a thrill of pride in that detail, and while that perhaps is not an important matter, it illustrates the appeal of the scene. Our people will respond to the impulse that caused Mr. Coolidge to draw his father into his great and solemn experience by this gracious act. We like the modesty with which the necessary ceremony of succession was quickly and quietly performed while the nation was preoccupied with its loss. Dignity and solemnity were not lacking; they were sincerely there and, it seems to us, the significance of the American political system and of American democracy was never better dramatized.

Our greatest Presidents have been men who instinctively reached the popular imagination in this way. The cynic calls it good politics. It is, but it is good politics because it is sincere and because it expresses something running deep in our political nature. When Calvin Coolidge steps from a farmer's parlor into the most powerful office on earth—for the Presidency of the United States is unquestionably that today—he enacts for us all the American creed.

BURGLAR SUPPLIES.

The Police Gazette publishes the advertisement of a concern offering five master keys. With them you may test your locks and find out if they are burglar proof. The makers assure you that the keys work like magic. You might use your spare time profitably testing other people's locks. The ad doesn't tell you this but you are bright and the idea comes to you. Fine opportunity for wide awake, hustling men. A. L. Jones, Boston, cleaned up $700 last week on his off time. Great opportunity for the right persons.

Why not a burglary supply house and a school of safe blowing, porch climbing, automobile stealing, highway robbery, and pilfering? Complete list of jimmies, soup, master keys, blackjacks, guns, ether, etc., with full instructions.

The man killer already has a virtually open market in which he can buy pistols, a weapon which has virtually no other use than man killing. The moonshiner has an open market in which he can buy about everything he needs, stills, parts of stills, rye and bourbon coloring, beer makings, bottles, capping machines, corkers, etc. There seems to be a business opening for a burglary supply house.

THE TWILIGHT OF THE KINGS.

[Reprinted from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Aug. 2, 1914.]

Before establishing hell on earth, the pietistic kings commend their subjects to God. Seek the Lord's sanction for the devil's work.

"And now I commend you to God," said the kaiser from his balcony to the people in the street. "Go to church and kneel before God and pray for his help for our gallant army."

Pray that a farmer dragged from his Saxon field shall be speedier with a bayonet thrust than a winemaker taken from his vines in the Aube; that a Berlin lawyer shall be steadier with the rifle than a Moscow merchant; that a machine gun manned by Heidelberg students shall not jam, and that one worked by Paris carpenters shall.

Pray that a Bavarian hop grower, armed in a quarrel in which he has no heat, shall outmarch a wheat grower from Poltava; that Cossacks from the Don shall be lured into barbed wire entanglements and caught by masked guns; that an innkeeper from Salzburg shall blow the head off a baker from the Loire.

"Go to church and pray for help"—that the hell shall be hotter in innocent Ardennes than it is in equally innocent Hessen; that it shall be hotter in innocent Kovno than in equally innocent Posen.

And the pietistic czar commends his subjects to God that they may have strength of arm in a quarrel they do not understand; that they may inflict more sufferings than they are required to endure and the name of Romanoff be greater than the name of Hohenzollern, that it may be greater than the name of Hapsburg, that its territories shall be wider and the territories of Hohenzollern and the territories of Hapsburg less.

The pietistic emperor of Austria commends his subjects to God, to seek divine assistance to crush the peasants of Serbia, dragged from the wheat field when it was ready for the scythe and given to the scythe themselves.

This is, we think, the last call of monarchy upon divinity when Asmodeus walks in armor. The kings worship Baal and call it God, but out of the sacrifice will come, we think, a resolution firmly taken to have no more wheat growers and growers of corn, makers of wine, miners and fishers, artisans and traders, sailors and storekeepers offered up with prayer to the Almighty in a feudal slaughter, armed against each other without hate and without cause they know, or, if they knew, would give a penny which way it was determined.

This is the twilight of the kings. Western Europe of the people may be caught in this débâcle, but never again. Eastern Europe of the kings will be remade, and the name of God shall not give grace to a hundred square miles of broken bodies.

If divinity enters here, it comes with a sword to deliver the people from the sword.

It is the twilight of the kings. The republic marches east in Europe.

How to Keep Well. By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit, or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations, and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

INHERITED SYPHILIS.

THE Drs. Solomon have written a book about syphilis of the innocent. This means syphilis in those in whom the infection did not occur as a part of their transgression of the moral law. The group is composed of three sub-groups.

Those who contracted the disease from the use of common towels, common drinking cups, from kissing, and in other ways and by other agencies that come into mind.

The second group are the wives and husbands who contract the disease from their mates.

The third group is composed of those born with the inherited disease, some of whom are actively sick when born and others carry the infection latent for many years.

Adding up the numbers in the three groups, we reach the conclusion that about half the syphilis is innocently acquired. Like life itself, the book is a mixture of the pleasant and the unpleasant; of things we like to recognize as true and of things we would like to wipe out of memory if we could do so without doing ourselves and others harm. Unfortunately, facts are facts, and we do not wipe the slate when we do no more than refuse to read what is on it.

In the first group we are glad to know that the germ of syphilis will live on a cup only about forty-five minutes; that on a moist towel they die in less than twelve hours. On the other hand, some of the citations by the Drs. Solomon of cases that are acquired that way are disquieting.

Syphilis is a curable disease for all practical purposes. However, there are physicians who write so much into the word "cure" that under their definition they maintain that no case of syphilis is cured.

Drs. Solomon, having made the pleasing statement that for all practical purposes syphilis is curable, follow it with the statement that many thousand wives are infected by husbands, most of whom considered themselves cured before they married.

According to the Drs. Solomon, somewhere about 5 per cent of children have congenital syphilis. That is one-twentieth of the child population. Since these figures are based on examination of children in hospitals, the general child rate may not run so high. Congenital syphilis is far more prevalent than any one thinks, even physicians.

Part of this lack of appreciation is due to the fact that congenital syphilis, except in babies, is almost never infective. Part is due to the fact that congenital syphilis often causes no symptoms until adolescence or later. Another part is due to the fact that the symptoms of late congenital syphilis are not recognized, as a rule. He gives a list of ninety-one symptoms, any one of which may mean congenital, inherited syphilis, but few of which are thought of in that connection.

The point which they stress is this: Whenever a child is found to have syphilis, congenital or acquired, every member of the family should be examined. And this: Whenever a husband or wife is found to have syphilis, the mate and children should be examined.

HOME MADE LAXATIVE.

Anonymous writes: Take 1 pound dates, 1 pound figs, 6 large prunes (stewed), 1 ounce agar, ½ ounce senna. Wash dates and figs carefully.

Put senna leaves through meat chopper first, then other ingredients, and knead into a firm mass. Keep in cool place.

Dose: The size of a queen olive, best eaten with the evening meal. This is an excellent fruit laxative, I find.

WRONG KIND OF SHOES.

E. W. J. writes:

"1. What is the cause of skin between and under toes peeling? This condition becomes worse in the summer. At first I thought it was from swimming, but find it is not, as I have done no swimming this year, and it is really worse than last summer.

"2. How can this condition be corrected?"

REPLY.

1. Badly ventilated, thick, leather shoes and heavy socks.

2. Go barefooted or wear sandals or cloth shoes.

Do you remember way back when:
There were alpaca shoes?

NEURALGIA TREATMENTS.

Mrs. R. wants A. C. J., who recently wrote about severe facial neuralgia, to have the benefit of what she has learned about this disease.

One treatment consists in injecting some medicine into the nerve. The medicine injected is sometimes alcohol, some times another chemical.

In injected cases which she had observed the patient was free from pain for about six months. The injection needed to be repeated. The injection did not cause loss of all sensation in the face.

Another treatment consisted in cutting the nerve. This eased the pain, but it also caused all "feeling" in the face to disappear.

GOING A LITTLE TOO FAR.

Chicago, July 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a wife deserts her husband can she take anything out of the home which had been paid for by the husband? 2. If her father helped her in getting these articles, would the husband be able to compel him to return such property? 3. Did her father have any business ransacking the husband's home and can I get out a warrant for his arrest on these charges? C. L.

1. In general, no.

2. In general, yes.

3. See 1 and 2. We would advise against prosecution until you have gone over all the facts with an attorney.

WEED CROP CUT.

Chicago, July 28.—[Friend of the People.]—One block north of Loyola L station, on the east side of the L, are two vacant lots that have not been mowed. There is quite a stand of ragweed and as I am troubled with hay fever I am interested in seeing these weeds cut before they bloom. Is the owner supposed to keep vacant lots mowed? H. W.

Weeds were cut at the corner of Lakewood and Albion avenues and in the rear of 1259 North Shore avenue on July 27. We trust it will afford the relief desired.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

A ONE-SIDED HEDGE.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I wish to set a private hedge between my property and my neighbor's. They will not join in this. Must I set the hedge so when it is boxed it will not be over the line on his property, or can I set it on the line and when when it is trimmed extend over the line on his side? W. J. W.

He would be at liberty to keep it trimmed to the boundary line.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

25 YEARS AGO TODAY (FACSIMILES)

General Shafter and his subordinate officers have joined in a startling appeal to the government to remove the army from Cuba. They show that it is in peril from yellow fever. The administration has decided to bring the Santiago troops to Montauk Point, L. I.

Secretary Alger has made public correspondence between himself and Colonel Roosevelt in which the latter asks to have his regiment of Rough Riders sent to Porto Rico. He makes reflections upon the merit of the State troops as a whole. Alger's reply is curt and cautions Roosevelt against making invidious comparisons. He says the State volunteers are as brave and capable as the Rough Riders or any other troops.

Colonel Turner has appealed to Governor Tanner to aid in getting the First Illinois out of Cuba to save the men from the peril of fever. Governor Tanner is using his influence at Washington as requested.

ROOSEVELT'S ALARMING STATEMENT.

Theodore Roosevelt never has been accused of cowardice. He has had the reputation hitherto of a level-headed, clear-minded man, not given to misjudgments. Therefore when he states, as he does to General Shafter, that he believes half the army at Santiago will die if kept in Cuba, and that the men must be sent north to save their lives, it will not be safe for the military authorities to disregard his words of warning, which are indorsed by all the general officers at Santiago. The regulars and volunteers who have displayed such gallantry there must not be allowed to die like a flock of murrain-stricken sheep.

BULLETIN.

Anderson, S. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. F. K. Pressley, secretary of the board of missions of the Associated Reformed Presbyterian church, has received a message from Secretary of State Bryan suggesting that all missionaries of the church be ordered out of Mexico at once. The message intimates that the state department feels that American missionaries are not safe.

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The first step by the Wilson administration looking to the pacification of Mexico was taken today when former Governor John Lind of Minnesota was sent to that disturbed country under instructions to act as a mediator between the opposing factions.

Preliminary to the departure of Mr. Lind, Secreary Bryan announced the acceptance of the resignation of Henry Lane Wilson as American ambassador to Mexico. In order to prevent Mr. Wilson from talking, he has been continued in the diplomatic service until Oct. 14 next.

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The will of Anthony N. Brady, who died in London on July 22, and was buried in Albany on Saturday, was offered for probate today in Albany, where Mr. Brady resided. The will disposes of an estate estimated at $75,000,000, the bulk of which goes to Mr. Brady's five children and the only child of his daughter, Mrs. Flora Gavit, who was killed in the New Haven wreck at Westport, Conn., last year.

HIDEOUS MILITARISM IN IOWA.

Des Moines, Ia., July 27.—The editorial page of the July 26 TRIBUNE contains the following peculiar and inaccurate statement: "Alien radicalism so controlled last winter in Wisconsin that the assembly almost went to the extent of abolishing the National Guard."

Plenty of informed people believe that the guard should be done away with unless it can be run in a decent way, and alien radicalism is not particularly the sentiment opposed to the scoundrels who operate the guard. The Iowa legislature chopped two-thirds off the appropriation asked by their guard, and the next assembly is likely to have members pledged to abolish the guard entirely. A special effort is made by recruiters to get boys to sign up, then when the boy sees what he has got himself into, and wants out, he is told that if over 18 he has no way of repudiating the contract, but must remain in a condition of abject slavery for three years. If under 18, and he has been induced to apply as of 18, he and his distressed parents are met with the statement that he is guilty of perjury, and that if they make any further noise, the boy will be sent to prison.

In case a member is not diligent in attending drills, raiding gangs are sent to his home or room, who force an entrance, preferably so late that he may be found in bed, and he is obliged to go to the armory and listen to threats of prison if any more drills are missed. A guard captain told me that his raiding gangs were instructed to shoot in case of resistance. Is a man an alien radical who objects to having his residence forcibly entered at midnight by such irresponsible and dangerous persons, whose sole excuse is to ask questions regarding an alleged guard, who may not at that time be living in the state?

These National Guards, great and small, talk perpetually about not being subject to state law, but operating under army regulation No. 61. This means martial law whenever and however the guard wants to declare it. I may add that a party here who had criticized the guard was approached by a deputy United States marshal and told, "You lay off the guard, or the United States marshal will get you and hold you for investigation." A. S. JOHNSTON.

"L" CAR LICENSES.

Chicago, July 31.—Just out of curiosity I would be pleased to know if the elevated lines of Chicago are exempt from the tax on each elevated car for the period of April, 1923, to April, 1924. I have ridden in these cars since April, morning and evening, and have not so far seen a license for the April, 1923, to 1924 date. All the licenses so far that I have seen expire in April of 1923. Please enlighten a citizen. L. C. GOLDSTEIN.

MR. BRYAN'S INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

Sandwich, Ill., July 30.—How do you account for this? William Jennings Bryan has long had the president's chair his goal and so far has failed to achieve; I may be wrong in my deductions, but will say: Several years ago I was in lower Texas; Texas is a hard state to conquer, but well worth it when done. Mr. Bryan had a nice little place down there among the mesquite, chaparral, and live oaks, also thorns a-plenty; did he live there? The proud people who claimed him as a neighbor said, O yes, but was there only at short times, alas; Florida was holding out an alluring hand, in Florida life is much softer. Do you think it possible that though a good fighter and strong that the allure of something within calling for a less strenuous fight strikes him in some critical point to cause his withdrawing; perhaps his subconscious censor demands it, and he falls, just enough to cause defeat, as he drew over to Florida with his valley home just coming into her own. L. A. MARVIN.

CONTROL OF WEALTH.

Chicago, July 31.—I notice that one Eber Cole Byam denies the truth of Magnus Johnson's statement of the fact that 2 per cent of the population own 60 per cent of the wealth. As Senator Pettigrew states in his book, "Imperial Washington," the census of 1890 shows that at that time 9 per cent of the people owned 71 per cent of the wealth of this country.

The concentration of wealth into a few hands continued, and we find, 1916, a government document—the report of the industrial commission—giving the information that 60 per cent of the wealth was owned by 2 per cent of the people. Any sane man will admit that there has been a great increase in the centralization of wealth in the last seven years.

But Eber Cole says these official figures are "Socialist lies." His trouble is that his mental horizon doesn't extend beyond the corporate limits of his own town. A. R[illegible]

LET THE EAGLE SCREAM.

Chicago, July 27.—Some time ago you had a number of editorials which were called "The Eagle Screams."

Can't you run a new lot of these?

The time is certainly ripe for putting a lot of people wise to the fact that this little old United States of America is the greatest country on earth.

With all of our pink-eyed, soap-box fools, we are 800 million miles ahead of other countries, so open up and broadcast a new series of "Eagle Screams" editorials.

I'll take this opportunity to state that while THE TRIBUNE should take an out and out stand against the Ku Klux, I must hand it to THE TRIBUNE for being a real America first outfit. Stephen Decatur is, was, and always will be right. Long may she wave. C. J. KENNEDY.

NO GLOOM HERE.

Paw Paw, Mich., July 30.—We have noticed several articles in THE TRIBUNE and other papers pertaining to the deplorable financial condition of the farmers.

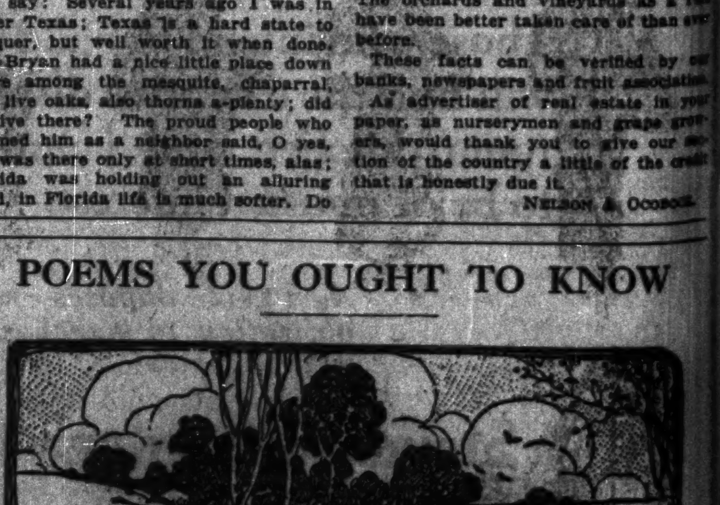
Allow us to call your attention to one portion of the United States that is not complaining. That is the fruit belt at Paw Paw, Mich. Never in our history has the grape crop looked better, and high prices will prevail. Within sixty days we will be shipping concord grapes by the train load. Our grape juice factories (the largest in the world) will be pressing thousands of tons, and the return will put millions of dollars into the farmers' pockets, the same as it has done many times in the past.

Each week we inspect several apple and peach orchards loaded with fruit. The orchards and vineyards as a rule have been better taken care of than ever before.

These facts can be verified by our banks, newspapers and fruit associations.

As advertiser of real estate in your paper, as nurserymen and grape growers, would thank you to give our section of the country a little of the credit that is honestly due it. NELSON & OCOBOCK.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW



ANSWER TO A CHILD'S QUESTION.

By Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Do you ask what the birds say? The sparrow, the dove,
The linnet, and the thrush say, "I love, and I love!"
In winter they're silent, the wind is so strong;
What it says I don't know, but it sings a loud song.
But green leaves, and blossoms, and sunny warm weather,
And singing and loving, all come back together.
And the lark is so brimful of gladness and love,
The green fields below him, the blue sky above,
That he sings and he sings, and forever sings he,
"I love my Love, and my Love loves me."

POLICEMAN WHO NABBED HOLDUP MAN WINS $100

Receives Tribune Award for Bravery.

Duty and heroism are synonymous to members of the Chicago police department, according to Chief Morgan A. Collins, remarking on a conspicuous act of bravery reported for July by Policeman George W. Barker of the Maxwell street station. Barker is awarded THE TRIBUNE's forty-third monthly bravery prize of $100.

It is not that others of his command have not performed meritorious service, Chief Collins said, but that the cessation of crimes has reduced the opportunities of a policeman to distinguish himself.

Captures Escaped Convict.

Policeman Barker, who travels in civilian clothes, earned for himself (in addition to the $100 from THE TRIBUNE) the praise of his superiors and the commendation of his fellow policemen on July 7. His bravery was displayed in the capture of an escaped convict who had committed a daring holdup and obtained $3,500. An automatic revolver poked into his ribs did not deter Policeman Barker, according to the report of Capt. James E. McCann. It follows:

"At about 11:15 a. m. on July 7, 1923, Salvatore Schiavo, a messenger for the R. V. Romano Steamship agency, was returning from the West Side Trust and Savings bank, Roosevelt road and Halsted street, where he had cashed a check for $3,500. Upon reaching the north side of Gilpin place, at alley west of Halsted street, he was held up by two men with revolvers, who threw red pepper into his eyes, assaulted and robbed him.

Starts in Pursuit.

"Patrolman Barker heard Schiavo's cries for help and saw two men running toward an automobile. Both were carrying revolver and Barker, surmising that a crime had been committed and without any regard for his personal safety, started in pursuit of the men.

"He drew his revolver and called to the men to halt, firing a shot into the air. This did not deter them, whereupon Barker fired directly at them. The men jumped into an automobile standing at the northwest corner of Polk street and Blue Island avenue, and were making frantic efforts to start it.

"Barker reached the machine before the men had time to get it started, and one of the men jumped out the left side of the machine. Barker grabbed the other, who, realizing that he was caught, turned a loaded automatic revolver on the officer. A struggle for possession of the gun followed, w Barker the victor.

"A part of the stolen money was found in the seat of the machine. The prisoner gave the name of Charles Carney, and was identified at the bureau of identification as Charles Coffee, who escaped from Joliet penitentiary on June 14, 1922, having been confined to that institution for robbery. This man has a criminal record for burglary and robbery dating back to 1890 and has been confined in penal institutions on five occasions."

PROMISE MANY NEW SIGHTS AT FUR STYLE SHOW

Two feature nights for the coming week are announced by directors of the Fur Fashion Exhibit which opens its second week of nightly showings tonight at Marigold Gardens.

Tomorrow night reservations have been held for nearly 100 prominent Chicago women invited to view the display of furs and gowns, and on Tuesday night the Chicago Association of Commerce will entertain hundreds of out-of-town merchants at the showing, and will have charge of special entertainment numbers for that night.

Many sensational exhibits, held by the Chicago furriers for the second week, will make their first appearance tonight.

Five Chicago men received office in the national organization of fur industries which was formed during the first week's sessions at the Drake. The United States and Canada have been divided into ten zones with ten governors each. The five governors from Chicago, in the middle western zone, are A. H. Rich, S. D. Stoll, E. S. Waldbott, O. P. Larson and Don L. Omo. The latter is president of the Associated Fur Industries of Chicago. E. S. Waldbott was also chosen senior vice president of the national group.

POPE URGED U. S. TO ASSUME ALL OF ALLIES' DEBTS

ROME, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Vatican circles recalled today that soon after the election of President Harding, Senator Medill McCormick came to Europe on what was said to be a semi-official mission from Mr. Harding. The senator was received by Pope Benedict and had several conversations with Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, who later communicated to Mr. McCormick the Vatican's viewpoint on solutions of the various questions arising from the war.

Cardinal Gasparri said the holy see believed the best solution of the reparations and interallied debt problems was to have only one creditor and only one debtor. America, he added, should pay the debts of the other countries, Germany becoming a debtor only to America.

Senator McCormick was asked to bring the plan to the attention of President Harding, but the Vatican is said never to have heard of it since. It is believed that Cardinal Gasparri still adheres to this plan, although he admits that under present conditions it would be more difficult to carry out. Otherwise, it is added in Vatican circles, the holy see was always satisfied with the attitude of the Harding administration towards it.

Henry Channon, ship chandler, left an estate of $1,224,350, according to the inventory of his estate, filed yesterday before Assistant Probate Judge Harry G. Keats. His son, James Channon, declared when the will was probated that he would file a contest, as the will bequeathed a larger portion of the estate to a daughter, Mrs. Grace Channon Bortell, than to either of Channon's sons, James and Harry.

LITTLE WELSH TOWN WELCOMES ITS HERO, J. J. DAVIS OF U. S. A.

TREDEGAR, Wales, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—This little Monmouthshire mining town gained a place on the map today when James J. Davis, the American secretary of labor, visited it and was accorded an enthusiastic welcome to the place of his birth. He is the first native born Welshman to occupy a seat in the American cabinet and the towns people showed their appreciation by giving him the freedom of the town.

Town officials met Mr. Davis at the castle that guards the approach to the town, and after a drive through the gayly decorated streets entertained him, with his aged uncle, Charles Nicholls, at the council chamber.

While at Dowlais, Wales, he made an unsuccessful hunt for relatives of Henry Ford, whose ancestors emigrated from that district to the United States and intermarried with relatives of Mr. Davis. Mr. Davis will attend divine service at a local church tomorrow and later he will entrain for London in the hope of reaching Washington in time for the obsequies of President Harding.

DISORDERLY CHARGE DROPPED.

WRIT ASKED TO FREE LA GRANGE MURDER SUSPECT

An order for the appearance of Eugene Marshall, son of a former police chief of La Grange, who has been held in a cell in the detective bureau for several days as a suspect in connection with the murder of Policeman Byron Porter of La Grange, was sent to Chief Collins by Judge Joseph Sabath of Superior court yesterday afternoon.

Marshall's attorneys had filed a petition for a writ of habeas corpus before the judge earlier in the day. Judge Sabath announced Judge Walter P. Steffin will hear the testimony tomorrow morning.

Marshall was arrested on the order of Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Hamilton after it had been discovered that the soles of his shoes were covered with white enamel of the kind used by the bandit slayers in covering up the license numbers on a stolen automobile they had used in the robbery during which Porter was killed.

The suspect denied that he had any connection with the robbery or that he even was in La Grange on the morning of the murder.

SEEK LAWYERS WHO WILL CARRY GRAFT QUIZ ON

Search for attorneys to present evidence of graft to the special grand jury conducting an investigation of the city hall during the Lundin-Thompson administration was started both by members of the jury and Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley yesterday.

The men who undertake the work will have to offer their services at a nominal fee, it is said, inasmuch as the $50,000 fund subscribed by interested citizens for the continuance of the inquiry is to be used to pay the jurors and investigators.

The jury was sworn in for another month's service by Chief Justice McKinley yesterday morning. Each of the jurors expressed his desire to continue the investigation.

WAR ON SPEEDER BRINGS ONE DAY WITHOUT A DEATH

Reckless Driving Cut in Half, Judge Asserts.

Chicago had a day without an automobile fatality yesterday, as the courts, the coroner, and the police continued their warfare against speeders. Observers asserted that "speeding is no longer the habit; it is the exception."

Officials engaged in the campaign against reckless driving were unanimous in asserting that the reduction in the number of automobile accidents was caused entirely by the drastic police order which resulted during the last four days in hundreds of speeders being taken to police station cells and held until bail was furnished.

Judge Fred Gilster, in the Speeders' court, sentenced John Cooke of 5715 West Jackson boulevard to five days in the House of Correction and fined him $25 and costs on a charge of driving his automobile while intoxicated. He was unable to obtain bond when arrested on Friday night and was held in the Chicago avenue station all night.

Speeding Reduced by 50 Per Cent.

Judge Henry M. Walker declared speeding had been reduced 50 per cent by the jail order. He was unable to find any one in his court guilty of an offense serious enough to merit a jail sentence, but imposed a fine of $40 and costs on William Meyers of 3234 West Fulton street for speeding. U. L. Conway, a salesman, 5921 Fulton street, was fined the same amount.

Byron McClary, a law student at the University of Chicago, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Gilster for speeding.

"You're studying law from the wrong viewpoint," the judge told McClary, who lives at 6188 Prairie avenue.

Ray Reichel, 5810 West Chicago avenue, charged with speeding, said he had lost his job when arrested.

"You also lose $35 and costs," Judge Gilster replied.

Coroner Sifts Death Cars.

Coroner Oscar Wolff is seeking to learn why Mrs. Anna Ruf of 6917 South Throop street was not arrested and required to give bond after the automobile she was driving last Thursday had struck and killed Frederick Lindberg of 610 West 61st street.

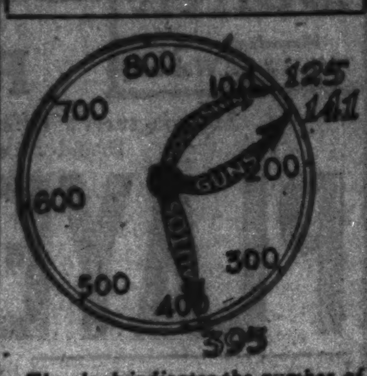
The coroner will question Englewood police who were summoned to the scene. According to witnesses the car driven by Mrs. Ruf first crashed into an automobile driven by Walter Shogren, then hurtled to the sidewalk, fatally injuring Lindberg. Patrick McIntyre, a former policeman, owns the automobile that Mrs. Ruf was driving, and was a passenger. He asked that the inquest be continued to enable him to obtain witnesses.

Several Meet Injury.

Primus Carlson of 4945 North California avenue was injured when struck by an automobile driven by Harry L. Snyder, 4545 Magnolia avenue. Snyder was arrested, charged with assault with an automobile and failure to stop behind a street car.

Policeman Bernard Lowe, 5150 South Laflin street, and four colored persons, Miss Georgina Williams of Lake Forest, Mrs. T. H. Bright of 3402 Calumet avenue, John Slater of 4206 Langley avenue, and W. M. Watson of 4125 St. Lawrence avenue, were slightly injured when a 35th street car hurled an American Express truck into the path of another car on which the five were riding.

HANDS OF DEATH



The clock indicates the number of deaths caused by automobiles, guns, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

WESTMORELAND CLUB ROBBED OF 1,908 GOLF BALLS

Two men early yesterday broke into the clubhouse of the Westmoreland Golf club, west of Wilmette, loaded 159 dozen new golf balls, valued at $1,500, into an automobile and drove away.

The men, after attempting to break down a door, entered the clubhouse through a window, from which they tore the grating. A boy employed to watch the golf balls told officials he heard the two men talking as they carried out the cartons, but he remained quiet for fear the robbers would do him harm.

The balls were delivered at the clubhouse on Friday, and were to have been used in part at least in the play during the coming week. A tournament, scheduled to start today, may have to be called off, it was stated.

EXPERTS TO AID RESTORATION OF ARTS BUILDING

An art committee composed of three Chicago architects is to be named by the South Park commission to advise and coöperate with it relative to complete restoration of the Fine Arts building in Jackson park, according to an announcement yesterday.

The board has invited the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Architects to suggest names from which the personnel of the committee may be selected.

The committee will receive a total annual salary of $6,000 and traveling expenses. It is expected it will be named at the next meeting of the board on Aug. 18.

Ald. Bowler's "Constits" Give Him Diamond Star

A diamond star was presented to Ald. Thomas J. Bowler by his constituents in the 41st ward yesterday at a picnic in Natoma park, Milwaukee avenue and the city limits. He was highly commended for his activity in exposing conditions at the parental school. A diamond ring also was presented to County Commissioner Frank J. Wilson. The presentations were made by Assistant City Attorney Adolph Bordmeier.

Shot 11 Times and Killed; Police Suspect Mafia

An unidentified man, 30 years old, was shot eleven times and killed last night in the alley at the rear of the quarters of fire engine company No. 7, at 636 Blue Island avenue. Police suspect the "Black Hand." When firemen reached the spot the slayers apparently had fled, but ten men attracted by the shooting were held.

POLICEMAN IS ELECTROCUTED.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—Policeman Michael Haggerty, 33 years old, was electrocuted today when he picked up an electric wire from the street so vehicles could pass.

5 LAWYERS MAKE NEW ATTEMPT TO SAVE MRS. NITTI

"100 to 1" Chance of Success, Court Says.

"One chance in a hundred" is the way the court termed the move made yesterday to avert the hanging of Mrs. Sabelle Nitti Crudelle. Five lawyers, substituted for Eugene Moran, who represented Mrs. Nitti at her trial, appeared before Judge Joseph B. David in Criminal court, and entered a motion to vacate the sentence of death.

Judge David consented to hear the attorneys' arguments on Aug. 29, at 9:30 o'clock, but indicated he would deny the motion.

"This is a grave matter," he said. "I will consent to hear you, but there is not one chance in one hundred that the sentence will be vacated and a new trial granted."

Appear Before McKinley.

The attorneys appeared before Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley yesterday morning and substituted themselves as attorneys for both Mrs. Nitti and Peter Crudelle, her second husband. Both defendants are sentenced to hang Oct. 12 for the murder of Mrs. Nitti's first husband.

Attorney Rocco De Stefano led the legal battery, which included Albert N. Gualano, Nuncie Bonelli, Frank Allegretti, and Miss Helen Cirise.

They sought to present the motion to vacate judgment before Judge McKinley, who referred them to Judge David, in whose court a jury returned the death verdicts.

Wants No Advice.

Judge David issued a warning yesterday that he would not welcome advice in the Nitti case.

"I will use every power vested in the court to apprehend the writers of letters giving me such advice," he declared. "They will be brought before the court and severely punished for contempt of court.

"A barrel of letters have been received by me thus far. I don't read them, and I don't want it thought that I am in the slightest influenced by them, but it is time that a case is tried to its logical end in the court alone."

Judge David asked the state's attorney to report to the court any clubs or organizations who pass resolutions pertaining to Mrs. Nitti's fate. Any who do must immediately be brought before him and tried for contempt, he said.

RAIN CAN'T KEEP CAPACITY CROWD FROM RAVINIA

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ravinia Park, Ill., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Even the rain was not enough to prevent a capacity audience from journeying to Ravinia last night for the season's first view of the aged but still vigorous "Il Trovatore." It was an interesting performance, with some of the high spots classifying thus:

Elisabeth Rethberg, looking young and attractive and singing the music of Leonora with Teutonic thoroughness and, barring a bit of effort in the uppermost notes, Italian suavity.

Ina Bourskaya, with the best old woman's makeup for the rôle of Azucena these eyes ever have seen. She was old in everything but the gleam of her teeth and the way she strode about the stage. Her singing had all the dramatic flame that the composer ever imagined. Incidentally, it was the first time she had sung the part in Italian.

Morgan Kingston, as Marico, who had one of his exceptionally good nights and flung out the music manfully and with fervor.

Giuseppe Danise, who is always a good singer of baritone rôles.

Virgilio Lazzari, of whom the same is true in the basso register.

Gennario Papi, the conductor, who infused the essence of youth into the venerable score.

A last minute change of plans makes an alteration in the week's schedule of opera, which will be found on another page of this morning's TRIBUNE. "Martha" will be sung on Friday night, instead of "Manon." Miss Pareto, Miss Bourskaya, Mr. Schipa, and Mr. Lazzari will sing it.

CHILDREN WORK IN MANY WAYS TO AID TRIBUNE FUND

The children are working in ma ways to swell their contributions THE TRIBUNE free ice and Camp nquin funds.

Another small boy writes in rat dolefully:

A young girl from a working on the south side—who asked that name not be given—sent in $5. request with it was rather diffe from that which a good many girl 15 might have made. She wrote:

The "Last" Word in Elegance—
A "Hursen" Funeral

The charges made for Hursen funerals are from one-third to one-half the charges which are usually exacted elsewhere. This sounds amazing to those who have been subjected to an enormous outlay of money for funerals not conducted by Hursen.

In spite of this vast reduction in cost to you, the elegance of all Hursen materials and Hursen equipment so generously furnished to you cannot even be equaled anywhere in America.

Supreme elegance, and low cost—these are two of the many features which have made "Hursen's" the largest and the most remarkable institution of its kind in America.

Hursen specially-built funeral automobiles excite universal admiration everywhere. For comfort, roominess and elegance they are unsurpassed by many of the highest-priced automobiles of the day. The charges for these Hursen autos are no higher than the usual auto hire. Call Hursen, of course!

Even up in the mountains you breathe no purer, cooler air than in the North American Restaurant

That may sound like an extravagant statement but it is a fact which any ventilating engineer will verify. It is made possible by one of the most scientific air-cooling, washing and circulating systems ever installed—a complete system, not a mere "cooling-plant."

Instead of using basement or underground tunnel air [a method very often used] fresh "outdoor" air is drawn from the roof of our building. In a big concrete chamber thousands of tiny streams of cold water are sprayed through it, cooling and removing all particles of dust. Then the air is dried, which insures it being cool without being "clammy" or moist. And every bit of the air in the restaurant is completely changed every three minutes.

It costs us about $25,000 a year to operate this system, but it insures our patrons comfort, no matter how hot and sticky the air is outside. And so we feel it is not an expense, but an investment—an investment in health and comfort.

And this is only one of many things we are doing which are causing the North American Restaurant to be talked about from one end of the country to the other.

Here you "serve yourself" so our prices are low—portions big—quality the best

Combination Salad: Made of fresh, crisp vegetables. The portion is usually ample for two, and without extra charge we include French, Thousand Island or Mayonnaise Dressing 30c

Cold Lamb Tongue: Tender and sweet, a big portion with potato salad 40c

Cold Premium Ham: Boiled in our own kitchen. Not the rolled, string-tied, ready-boiled type which is usually served. A big portion with potato salad 45c

Assorted Cold Meats: A big platter full of the finest cold meats obtainable anywhere, with a generous portion of potato salad 50c

Breakfast Specialties

Honey Waffles: Cooked to your order with 2 strips of bacon, butter and pure maple syrup or honey 35c

Bacon and Eggs: 2 fresh eggs fried in butter and 4 strips of bacon 30c

This is one restaurant where children are welcome!

CHILDREN WORK IN MANY WAYS TO AID TRIBUNE FUND

Boy Can't Sell Lemonade, So Breaks Open Bank.

BY LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

The children are working in many ways to swell their contributions to THE TRIBUNE free ice and Camp Algonquin funds.

From a Sunday school class and the Y. W. F. M. S. of the Bethel Methodist church comes a contribution of $2 to furnish ice for tots less lucky than themselves.

Another small boy writes in rather dolefully:

"I tried awful hard to make some money last week selling lemonade but I reckon the weather wasn't hot enough for nobody stopped and bought anything so I just broke open my bank and here's 50 cents."

Aids Some Other Mother.

A young girl from a working club on the south side—who asked that her name not be given—sent in $5. Her request with it was rather different from that which a good many girls of 18 might have made. She wrote:

"I am sending this in that some poor, tired mother can go away for a while and rest. I wish I could help my mother to do that but she's gone now. She worked harder than anybody I ever knew—and never got away anywhere. So since I can't send her I'd like to send some other mother like her. I thank you."

Others Helping, Too.

Other people, too, in vastly different lines of endeavor, have been helping to swell our funds. Each of the many hundreds, men, women and children, who listened to the White City Garden Revue last night were helping by their admittance fee to swell the funds—and a big crowd was out, too.

And every one who buys one of the hundreds of "Opportunity" cards, which are being sold throughout the city by Harry Mallone, in the theaters of Ascher & Co. and Lubiner & Trinz, which are distributed by the Diamond Taxi company without charge, and were sold last night at both Riverview and White City—each and every purchaser is doing his or her bit towards the steady increase of the funds.

Missing Alligator Is Terror to North Evanston

Citizens in the north part of Evanston were agitated yesterday by the disappearance of a small alligator, missing from the home of Clyde Winter Jr., 2311 Pioneer road, Evanston. Mr. Winter obtained the animal several months ago in Florida and has been keeping him as a pet. The alligator, still at large, is the terror of small children in the vicinity.

FARE ROBS TAXI DRIVER.

After driving a passenger for several miles yesterday, John Shevlin, 922 South Springfield avenue, a taxicab driver, was robbed of $12 at the point of a revolver which the passenger held to his head.

OAK PARK WOMAN TO HEAD AMERICANIZING WORK AMONG ALIENS

MRS. EDGAR DOOB.

Mrs. Edgar Doob, 1411 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, was recently appointed Americanization chairman of Cook county by the council of American Legion auxiliaries, it was announced yesterday. She is a member of the Oak Park American Legion auxiliary and has been active in relief work among wounded ex-soldiers at the Speedway and other government hospitals.

Her new duties will consist largely of work among school children, particularly the foreign born, whom she will instruct in flag etiquette, respect and understanding of the Constitution, and loyalty to the United States.

GIRLS HURT BY PLANK MISSILE.

A plank used to cover an excavation in the street was thrown into the air by a street car yesterday, severely bruising Miss Ella Flynn, 7800 South Peoria street; Miss A. Becker, 3808 South Union avenue, and Miss Marie Victory, 2004 North Park avenue.

SIX TERRA COTTA FIRMS FINED ON PLEAS OF GUILTY

Admit Violations of U. S. Anti-Trust Laws.

Six terra cotta manufacturing companies, indicted more than a year ago as the central division of an organization that fixed prices and monopolized the business in nearly every state, entered pleas of guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe. The court imposed fines totaling $13,500, and dismissed the charges against individuals named as their corporations' representatives.

The companies, their officials, and the fines are: American Terra Cotta and Ceramic company, Chicago, $2,000, William D. Gates, president; Denver Terra Cotta company, Denver, $1,500, George P. Fackt, vice president; Midland Terra Cotta company, Chicago, $3,000, Hans Mendius, president; Northwestern Terra Cotta company, Chicago, $3,000, Harry J. Lucas, vice president; St. Louis Terra Cotta company, St. Louis, $1,500, R. F. Grady, vice president; Western Terra Cotta company, Kansas City, $1,500, William Timmerman, president.

One Case Goes Over.

The Winkle Terra Cotta company, St. Louis, jointly indicted, entered no plea, and the case against it was carried over till the fall term for trial.

The indictment charged that the defendants were members of the National Terra Cotta society, organized in 1911. During the three years previous to the indictment, it is alleged, the defendants engaged in interstate trade, violating the provisions of the anti-trust law against fixing prices, limiting territory, and creating a monopoly.

Lumber Case Argument Postponed.

Attorneys Roger Shale, special assistant to the United States attorney general, and Thomas J. Howe, special assistant to the United States district attorney, represented the government, and Attorney Stephen Hurley appeared for the defendants.

Judge Cliffe postponed until Sept. 22 arguments for a new trial in the case of the Andrews Mill and Lumber company and forty other defendants, recently found guilty of violating the Sherman law.

Demand for Opera Seats Found Unusually Large

The number of applicants for season tickets for the 1923-24 Civic Opera is unusually large, it was declared yesterday by the subscription department. Many in the suburbs and towns farther from Chicago are applying for subscriptions. The management says there is still opportunity to obtain good seats for subscription performances.

HALE HOLDEN JR. AND MISS COTTON WED IN DULUTH

Society Folk of Chicago Among Attendants.

The marriage of Miss Josephine Cotton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bell Cotton of Duluth, Minn., and of New York, o Hale Holden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Hale Holden of Chicago, took place last evening in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Duluth, and was followed by a reception at the residence of the bride's parents, 2105 East First street.

Orchid pink and silver were effectively combined in the gowns of the bridal attendants, while pink roses and blue larkspur formed a background for the bridal party.

The bride's white satin wedding gown was of the sleeveless fashion, draped in long, straight lines, with a panel back. Extending the entire length of the court train was a panel of rose point lace over flesh colored tulle, and the same lace embellished the bodice. The bridal bouquet was a shower of white orchids, roses, and valley lilies.

Sister Is Maid of Honor.

The bride's sister, Miss Mary Louise Cotton, served as maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Holden and Miss Harriet Lowden of Chicago, Miss Frances Sellwood and Miss Elizabeth Lyman of Duluth, Miss Margaret McClintic of Pittsburgh, Miss Katherine Dalrymple of Minneapolis, Miss Natalie H. Jourdan and Miss Louise Callender of New York.

All were gowned alike in soft charmeuse of orchid pink with wide flounces of crystal lace, and long-waisted tight bodices. Streamers of crystal beaded satin fell from the right shoulder and short trains of moire ribbon were caught at the waist line with huge rosettes. They carried arm bouquets of Premier roses and pink sweet peas.

Mrs. Cotton, the bride's mother, was gowned in Nile green crepe, heavily beaded in crystal, and Mrs. Holden, mother of the bridegroom, wore gray chiffon embroidered in cut steel. Both carried lavender orchids.

Chicagoan Is Best Man.

Clymer Bowen of Chicago was best man, and ushering were Yates Gorham Smith of Detroit, Nathaniel T. Guernsey of Greenwich, Conn., Robert Warren and Edison Dick of Chicago, and William P. May of Norfolk.

Mr. and Mrs. Holden left immediately for a month's visit at Banff and Lake Louise. They will return to Duluth about the middle of September and will then motor to Chicago, where they will be at home after October 1 at 400 Deming place.

Fifty thousand Jewett owners testify that Jewett Six is the most car for the money that has ever been built! Now—the NEW JEWETT SIX tops all former achievements!

Here are twelve important improvements which add sensibly to Jewett Six's value, sturdiness, comfort and completeness. Read what the NEW JEWETT SIX now gives you in addition to its established superiorities. More than ever Jewett Six now dominates the $1000 class.

1. Large brake drums. Now 14 inches in diameter. Added strength, absolute safety. 18.21 pounds per square inch of braking surface. More than any car its size.
2. Heavier, stronger wheels. More bolts. Larger spokes. A 25% greater margin of safety than ever offered in a car this size.
3. Positive pressure chassis lubrication, using oil not grease. Avoids the mess of grease cups. Masters squeaks. Insures long life in all working chassis parts.
4. Improved valve mechanism—runs in bath of oil—is practically noiseless and will long outwear usual design. Experienced motorists particularly will approve.
5. Improved Rayfield carburetor. Increases gasoline mileage about 10%. Gives smoother, faster action in get-away with no sign of "fuss."
6. New position of gear-shift lever; now immediately under driver's hand—no reaching.
7. New type of spark and throttle control. Smart in appearance; safer; more convenient. A distinct improvement that appeals to all drivers.
8. New instrument board assembling instruments in oval panel. More convenient; quicker, easier vision day or night. Compact; neater in appearance.
9. New type non-glaring reflectors in headlights. Legal everywhere. Reduces annoyance for oncoming drivers. Provides wonderful illumination.
10. Thicker and more comfortable upholstery in open models. Easy spring action, soft cushion effect, a delight to women.
11. Deeper front seats with back tilted to give easier driving posture; longer leg room. A really restful, easy car to ride in.
12. New pattern velour upholstery on standard Sedan models. Makes a rich looking car.

In addition to these twelve improvements, and refinements too numerous to mention, you get in this NEW JEWETT SIX the same sparkling performance that won a nation. Its full 50 horsepower Paige-built motor fills the hood. It drives from 2 to 60 miles an hour in high. Picks up from 5 to 25 miles an hour in 7 seconds, in high gear. Passes most any car on any hill.

High-pressure, hollow crankshaft oiling system—the same as used on the big Paige and other top-quality cars—insures long motor life. Two gallons of oil per minute are forced through all main and connecting rod bearings.

For a year and a half Jewett Six has been out-performing other cars. Jewett Six buyers are enthusiastic. Now—with 12 important improvements, and a host of refinements the NEW JEWETT SIX is far and away the most sensational value the market affords.

TRIBUNE OFFERS HYDRO-ELECTRIC SYSTEM FOR U. S.

Would Hitch Seasons to All Industries.

in the same general mountain or drainage system already has actually been enhanced by linking the generating stations into a common transmission system and thus taking advantage of the diversity factor of their flood stages.

Practice seems to have leaped ahead of theory here. Already we know that in such cases the whole develops more power than the sum of the parts—developed as parts, but as it was for THE TRIBUNE first to hint at such a possibility, so it is for THE TRIBUNE in this sketch first to declare its faith on a continental scale.

Putting Continent to Work.

The studies made by THE TRIBUNE are yet fragmentary, but already they warrant the belief that when the streams of the entire continent are linked it will be profitable to develop the flood capacity of them all, because the procession of the seasons is such that the flood crests of the entire continent are distributed throughout a great portion of the year. As more distant and less known streams are intertwined into the synthesis the figures display an amazing tendency toward a common denominator, a fairly horizontal curve, or a constant power load—whatever one may choose to call it.

But in addition to this THE TRIBUNE's studies of the consumption side of the power problem appear to show that hitherto undreamed of economies are possible, because the daily peaks of electric consumption from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the gulf to the great north woods are distributed through the daylight hours so as to even up consumption in a manner impossible of local or sectional attainment.

The differences in time from east to west are supplemented by the varying lengths of the winter and summer day from north to south. The possibilities revealed by THE TRIBUNE's investigations are derived not so much from the nature and technique of hydro-electric generation as from the additional productivity and distributive economies made possible by pooling its transmission on a thoroughly continental scale.

Power of Four Rivers.

How the linking of the rivers for power purposes will increase the horse power that can be economically developed can best be grasped from a small concrete example. It is not practical in an outline sketch of this sort, to be read by laymen, to take in too much territory, too many rivers, or too many figures. But to get the idea it is necessary to examine the tables printed in connection with this sketch and map.

The figures give the mean monthly discharge in cubic feet per second for four well known rivers fairly well spaced across the country. As is well known, the amount of water power that can be developed depends upon the amount of water discharged and the fall of the river. The tables show the seasonal variation in the amount of water discharged by the Susquehanna, Tennessee, Colorado, and Ottawa. The extremes of variations in three of the rivers are indicated by maximum and minimum figures attached to the table.

Streams Work and Rest.

On examining the tables the reader will note at once that the Tennessee is delivering a great volume of water in January when the Ottawa is very low. By June the Tennessee's discharge is less than half of that in January, but the Ottawa is delivering over twice as much as it was when the Tennessee was at crest. In May the Ottawa reaches its maximum, and the next month the Colorado is in flood to boost the power from the falling Canadian. In July there is still a big flow in the Colorado.

Now note how the Susquehanna begins to come up in September as the others shrink. Bear in mind that while the Susquehanna is coming in to boost with her secondary flood stage of the year, in northern Canada and Alaska streams fed from melting snow and ice, which were frozen until the late spring, are now pouring out hundreds of thousands of cubic feet per second and northern lakes are full. They will be freezing soon, but the Ottawa is coming up a bit in October, and by December the Tennessee doubles her October discharge.

Vast Hydraulic Engine.

Multiply these tables many times, take in the whole seasonal shift of the continent, tie in myriads of small streams, envision the melted ice foaming down mountain gorges, and the August snowstorms on top of the continental divide. Truly, North America is one vast hydraulic engine, throbbing with power throughout the year. We shall soon cease to think of it as so much dead rock and earth to live upon.

The relations noted here between four rivers indicate a tendency which becomes more pronounced as more rivers are taken into view. There are records of stream flow available from about 5,000 different points within the United States. The multitude of variables in a continental stream system can only be imagined and will call for astronomical mathematics when a full appraisal of continental power is started.

The flood crests are not only spaced out over the year, but from headwaters to sea level. As the floods move down the rivers past successive power plants they lengthen the period of maximum power in their water sheds. The flood records of the weather bureau display an astonishing variation in the dates of high water peaks at the same points on the same rivers. The highest floods ever noted on some of the big tributaries of the Mississippi at the same point are many months apart.

Rivers Hurry, Then Relax.

For instance, historic peaks of the Tennessee at Chattanooga were on Nov. 22 and March 11; on the Red at Shreveport, La., on Jan. 2 and May 28; on the same river at Garland, Ark., May 19 and July 17; on the Cumberland at Nashville Jan. 23 and April 3.

There is a variation of years as well as of seasons; for instance, the mean yearly discharge of the Mississippi at Keokuk varied from 76,200 cubic feet per second in 1916 to 45,800 in 1921.

Within the monthly periods shown in the tables of mean monthly discharges there are highly important variations and flood crests. The southern streams, for instance, are usually low in August at a time when streams of the Pacific northwest are often close to their maximum, but in August and September the streams of the south Atlantic water sheds have a remarkable number of temporary floods from heavy regional rains.

Floods Are Important.

Such floods in a continental power system are, of course, important, both for direct contribution of energy and for storage. October floods of this character are frequent on the Appalachian rivers as far apart as Delaware and Cumberland. In one period of three years the Cumberland at Burnside, Ky., showed October maximums of 43,300, 34,800, and 7,960 cubic feet, respectively. The upper Mississippi usually comes up in the fall. The Yadkin in North Carolina and the Chattahoochie in Georgia also show these autumnal floods in what is their usual low water period.

The Niagara, although shown in the tables, was omitted from the illustration of seasonal variation because it is destined to play a special part in the stabilization of the water supply of the continental power system because of its relation to the great lakes.

But taking the sum of the mean monthly discharges of the five rivers, the discharges of which are shown in the tables, we find that the variation of the five together ranges from 290,433 in October to 497,000 in April. Compare this with the variation of the Colorado from 8,000 in December to 64,000 in June or the Tennessee from 20,000 in October to 110,000 in March.

Stabilizing Continent's Efforts.

It takes no wild flight of mathematical imagination to foresee a continental constant incubating in such numerical eggs. Observation of the tables of mean monthly discharges of the Niagara will serve to introduce the immense possibilities of stabilizing the continental output of power throughout the year by storage methods, which nature has already provided in great part.

The table shows that the Niagara is an unusually steady stream. Its discharge does not vary from minimum to maximum in a greater ratio than 1 to 2, even under varying wind pressure, while the ratio of lowest water to peak flood of most rivers runs from 1 to scores or hundreds. What is characteristic of the Niagara is true of other streams heading in or flowing through lakes, as most of them do from Chicago to the Arctic ocean.

How Great Lakes Vary.

The lakes, including the great lakes, are themselves variable in volume and level, but not merely seasonally. They vary over great periods of time, the great lakes' cycle running near seven years from low to high. The excess water of the peak years can be impounded and used as a booster for a continental power system, while a normal outflow of the lakes can be constantly maintained.

THE TRIBUNE confidently expects to see the upper Mississippi drainage system connected with the lakes, so that the floods of the upper valley will be impounded in them and later turned back into the Mississippi through the present drainage canal and its future extensions.

This will undoubtedly form the eventual system of flood control to protect the lower valley, assisted by storage of the headwaters of the Ohio and Missouri systems.

Protecting Lake Levels.

Plans for "corking up" the great lakes to maintain desired levels are already in existence. It is entirely feasible to extend these plans in order to impound within those great natural mill ponds the spring flood waters of their drainage basin and such other basins as may be connected with it. Retention of these flood waters in the lakes will eliminate currents in the St. Lawrence, which now offer difficulties to navigation of that river. Later in the year these impounded floods can be turned into the Mississippi drainage system through the present Chicago outlet, to raise the level of the Mississippi and its Illinois tributaries, thus abolishing the annual low water stage that hinders navigation from the gulf to the heart of the continent.

Because of the vast surface of the lakes, such impounding and releasing operations would alter their level by only a few inches, while the mass of water involved would mean additions to power and effective enhancement of the flow of navigable streams.

Old Proportions Changed.

Former calculations of the cost of such a task are of little moment in an age when power development is revolutionizing all former conceptions of hydraulic engineering. Navigation and flood control projects, once considered extravagant, become feasible and cheap with increasing demand for power.

As an example of how the continental character of the power system will affect the economics of its construction and operation at every turn, it should be noted here that the value and earning capacity of every plant will be increased because of the fact that it is a part of such a system, far beyond any possible value for a separate development.

While it is impossible, from the data at hand, to offer definite estimates, THE TRIBUNE has been enabled to reach the conclusion that, in a system such as it contemplates, the value of practically every existing power property would be doubled, and the cost of electric current on the generator switchboard would be halved.

In this connection THE TRIBUNE desires to acknowledge and extend thanks for the data on stream flow and hydro-electric operations supplied by a large number of engineers, executives, and power companies in response to requests for information. The number is so large that it is impossible to make more definite acknowledgment at this time for the invaluable assistance given THE TRIBUNE.

Storing Streams' Power.

In addition to the possibilities of storage indicated in the continental lake system, storage works will inevitably be built to realize the utmost constant power from streams with high heads of water.

On the bulk of the low head streams, however, power plant construction will take the form of "overdevelopment"; that is, the construction of power plants in series from headwaters to mouth, to develop the flood power of the stream as it comes down. The increasing use of systems of automatic control for chains of power plants has already greatly reduced the labor and other costs of such series of plants on the same or neighboring streams, and made profitable the development of many streams once considered too small.

Because every part of the continental system can derive power from any other part, storage may be concentrated. Only the most economical and best producing storage projects need be developed at all. The use of power from released storage water will also be concentrated in point of time, because the part of the year in which such reserve power will be needed will be reduced by the linking up of the seasonal flood powers of the whole continent.

Vast Project Economical.

A smaller total of storage will be required to produce the same amount of constant power from a continental system than would be needed for plants developed apart. The extent to which the Great Lakes alone could be used as reservoirs of power to boost a continental system through a seasonal or cyclical low water period seems almost without limit. The number of outlets that can be cut from the Great Lakes is limited only by the economics of the problem. Storage of one extra foot of water in the Michigan-Huron system would make available power in such enormous quantities that the figures are startling.

The problem of transmitting electric energy to any desired distance has been essentially solved, in the judgment of many electrical engineers. The question of the distance to which any given amount of power is to be transmitted is no longer determined by technical limitations but by the economics of the case. The market for power and the price are balanced against the cost of the transmission system—that is all.

Sketches Trans-U. S. Plan.

Frank G. Baum of San Francisco, one of the engineers responsible for the development of superpower lines in California, has sketched in considerable detail a proposed national transmission system to connect up water power and steam generating plants from coast to coast. Such plans contemplate interchange of power over 220,000 volt power lines, such as are now coming into use in California, although it may be necessary to build lines up to 350,000 volt capacity to make the water power of the Sierras available to the prairie states.

As far as THE TRIBUNE's investigations have gone, it appears that the trunk lines for such a system as it contemplates will probably be of greater voltage than either of these figures. The technique of even higher voltage transmission is being worked out in laboratories of the big electrical companies. They are talking a million volts.

Production of 1,000,000 and 2,000,000 volts for testing insulation systems is an accomplished fact. Interesting experiments are said to be under way, inspired by the prospect of transforming very high voltage alternating current into direct current of much greater potential.

Carrying 1,000,000 Volts.

It is said that direct current of enormously high voltages would share the transmission advantages of high tension alternating circuits, without the strain and breaking effect which is one of the problems of transmission. Direct current of a million volts obtained from alternating currents is an alluring prospect in the consideration of the continental power system, but not of prime importance. Existing forms of generation and transmission are sufficient. The potential of long distance power lines may be kept practically constant from end to end. This makes it possible to take current off the lines and put it on at any point without difficulty, and also makes the circuits reversible, thus giving electric "traffic" all the flexibility of railroad movement.

Plans of this sort are too technical for discussion here. THE TRIBUNE's conception of the continental power system based on maximum hydro-electric development synchronized in operation with seasonal floods, must necessarily await a comprehensive survey and valuation of the hydraulics of North America before a detailed exposition can be made.

One of the astounding negligences of our epoch has been the neglect of government or industrial capital to undertake such a survey and synthesis. But the data available in scattered reports of government, states, and individual engineers when assembled all tend to raise the estimates of water power available for the American people.

More Rivers, More Power.

The more streams that are considered together, the higher the potential horse power becomes. In a limited exposition of this sort it has been practical only to cite small scale examples, but not only does the total amount of power and the duration of a high average flow of water increase with the number of streams considered, but the duration and intensity of the general yearly low water period of the streams of the United States tend to diminish materially, if not in the same ratio.

If the mean monthly discharges of any number of streams in the United States be added together for any one low water month the general minimum thus obtained tends to rise above the sums of the lowest mean monthly discharges of the streams.

There will be "secondary" power developed in the continental power system, but most of what is now "secondary" power on separate developments will become primary power.

Some Later Considerations.

It seems probable that a continental system will develop far more primary power than America will need for generations for all our work, but it is interesting to note that there are forces now in evidence in agriculture, transportation, and industry which are making them more flexible in time and flattening out their peaks. It will be increasingly possible to coordinate industrial effort to periods when the greatest volume of power is available, if that should ever be necessary.

Discussion of this may well wait. The immediate task is an adequate survey of the flow and storage possibilities of the subarctic and mountain streams of this continent.

It seems highly probable, from what THE TRIBUNE already has learned, that in the streams of Canada and Alaska may lie the solution of the whole low water problem. These rivers head in snow and ice. They come to full flood as the southern streams are receding.

Uniting North, South.

From their connection with lake systems it seems probable that the application of storage methods will make it possible to impound the floods from melting snow and ice for regulated discharge over the period in which the streams of the south reach their low level. The southern streams begin to rise as freezing begins in the north. The Alaskan and Canadian streams seem destined to play a most important part in continental power. It is not extravagant to entertain the hope that their development may obviate the necessity of building any more auxiliary steam plants in aid of hydro-electric generation.

In summary, THE TRIBUNE's plan is the mobilization of flood peaks—big and little. The seasonal flood crests occur because there are wet and dry periods of the year and also because the snow and ice of the northern water sheds and the higher altitudes melt after the floods come down in the lower altitudes and in the south.

In addition to the seasonal peaks of the continental rivers, there are every year temporary flood peaks due to regional and local storms. Unforseen and impossible to forecast, it is nevertheless a fact that these local vagaries in the mass have great power value.

Iowa Records Valuable.

For the smaller streams of Iowa this "diversity factor" of their flood stages has been determined to a considerable degree of exactitude, and the result has led one large electric corporation to embark on a campaign to encourage the development of the smaller streams of that region on the basis of their flood capacity.

The continental power system will, of course, receive the power generated from hundreds of small streams at their peaks and feed power back to their transmission web when their flow diminishes.

As more and more rivers are tied together in a power system the volume of power will tend to approach the sum of their flood capacity. How near it will come to that maximum cannot now be calculated, but the probabilities are that it will not be far short of the sum of their mean flows in flood months. There also is every indication that the more completely continental the system becomes the less variation there will be in the power supply throughout the year and, therefore, the less worry about variations in the load.

Effects Saving of Power.

Right here it is interesting to note, by way of parenthesis, how the development of a continental system will also tend of itself to reduce peaks in the industrial effort of the nation and also to diminish the demand for power while increasing the supply.

Every mile of electrical power line built reduces the haulage of coal by railway, both in autumn and the year round. Power can now be delivered for hundreds of miles at one-half of the freight charges on coal transported for the manufacture of power.

A rough idea of the power available on this continent from the utilization of the flood capacities of its streams may be obtained by approaching the problem through the variation from low to high water. From extreme low to peak the variation of most rivers is enormous. The Mississippi at Keokuk goes from 20,000 cubic feet per second to 300,000, a ratio of 1 to 15. The ratio for the Connecticut is 1 to 40, the Missouri 1 to 29, the Delaware 1 to 175, the Merrimac, 1 to 69.

The variation of rivers appears to range from the Niagara's 1 to 2 up to the zero to thousands ratio of some western "streams." There are indications that a general survey of North American streams may disclose a ratio of 1 to 25. But, assuming that this is a ratio of rare lows to flash floods, let us put it at 1 to 10, which is conservative, even if a guess.

Millions of Horse Power.

It affords the basis for some interesting and legitimate speculation. The federal power commission issues a tentative estimate of the minimum potential water power of the United States, based on the average periods of lowest flow in each year of record. This is getting down pretty close to dry bed. The estimate foots up about 28,000,000 horse power.

It does not include the smaller streams, and leaves out Canada. On our 1 to 10 basis, the horse power capable of development under a continental system would amount of 280,000,000. Approximately this is far more than twice the power of all kinds now installed in the United States, and most of the installed power is not employed except for brief periods of time.

It is in the form of animals on farms, gasoline, and other internal combustion motors, existing water power developments, windmills, and steam plants employed in public utilities, manufacture, mines, farming, electric traction, and steam locomotives, including all in reserve, retirement, and undergoing repairs.

Mere enumeration of this installed power is enough to show that the power obtainable from a continental hydro-electric system will supply America now, and for some generations, if not forever.

Stride Toward Efficiency.

While the proposed system will be able to deliver power in quantities now only imaginable, at far less cost than at present, its installation will reduce the amount of power required and lead to the more efficient use of that employed.

Most of the 3,000,000 steam and electric horsepower now installed in coal mines will be disposed with. Hundreds of thousands of hardy workers will be lifted from mines into other industries. The coal resources of the country will no longer be turned so largely into ashes, cinders, and inert gases, but distilled into chemicals, fertilizer, and concentrated fuel—gaseous, solid, and liquid. It is probable that the hydro-electric system will supply heat direct to many metallurgical operations.

The unique economy of the continental system will come from the rotation of the earth and its inclination upon its axis. The great problem of the electric industry today is the load factor. Electrical engineers have said that the life of the industry is diversity of load, which means a diversity of uses for electrical current to avoid the waste of capital, labor, and fuel involved in providing current to meet isolated peak demands, daily or seasonally.

An All-Performing Giant.

It is probably unnecessary to point out that the greatest diversity of load can only be attained by a continental system, embracing all industrial tasks. Merely to enumerate the sorts of installed power that the hydro electric system will displace is to indicate the multiplicity of new work to be imposed on it, and its distribution in space and time.

But the peak load caused by the demand for lighting and the related power demand for electric railways and the commercial and industrial uses, associated with work done under artificial light will be profoundly modified by the integration of the industry into a continental system. The big daily peak for all city electric systems, which must be provided for by adequate investment, comes about 5 or 6 o'clock in winter evenings, when homes and stores are lighted up, and the transit systems call for maximum power to take the workers home, while many factories are still running.

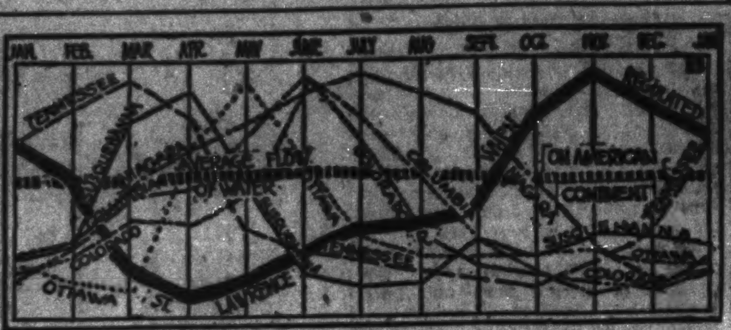
Flattening Peak Load.

Due to the four hour difference in time from Halifax to Tacoma, and the varying length of the day which finds Calgary folk in summer playing ball long after New Orleans has passed through her brief subtropical twilight, the evening peak will be flattened out on a continental power system.

The peak load will start in the northeast of the continent at Halifax and sweep south and west in slow waves across to the Pacific and the gulf. By the time San Francisco and New Orleans are calling for the maximum of power, New York's workers have arrived at home, and Montreal has gone to bed.

With a continental power system, power can be applied at any moment anywhere—power that travels 186,000 miles per second, moves itself, and pays it own freight.

Making Rivers Work Together



This chart shows how flood waters in different water sheds occur in different months. The artist has drawn a line showing the St. Lawrence river under artificial regulation. The accompanying table of figures shows the volume of that flow at points where it effectively can be measured. The story itself tells how these river conditions can be met so the rivers can be made to work together toward the common purpose of supplying electric power to run American industries, light them, as well as cities and homes, and run the necessary transportation systems.

ONE OF THE POWER RESERVOIRS

Among the great American rivers which it is proposed to harness to produce the white coal to run industrial enterprises and to light cities is the Columbia. This picture was taken at one of the famous scenic points along the Columbian highway during the visit of the late President Harding to the northwest, en route to his Alaskan goal.

PACIFIC STATES PLAN FIGHT ON PITTSBURGH PLUS

Colorado and other states of the Mountain Pacific group are soon to enter the fight against "Pittsburgh plus," recently invigorated by concerted action in the middle west, according to announcement made yesterday at Salt Lake City by J. W. Coverdale, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation.

Gov. Mabey of Utah, as well as chief executives of other western states, has already actively entered the fight, Mr. Coverdale declared. Other states mentioned as vigorously opposing the present practice under which steel products are sold on the basic commodity price at Pittsburgh, plus the freight rate from Pittsburgh, irrespective of the point of origin of the shipments, are California, Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, and Washington.

THIS sale presents the largest and most interesting collection of sale furniture we have ever offered. Its great reductions have been drawn from five sources:

Manufacturers' Exhibition Lines—new patterns assembled for exhibition to retail dealers and sold to us at 25% discount at the close of the exhibition. One-fourth saving.

Manufacturers' Surplus Stocks of their regular patterns sold at discounts of 25% to 50% to the few dealers who can buy in big quantities. These come from the manufacturers who supply us regularly, and the savings are one-fourth to one-half.

Discontinued Patterns, Overstocks and slow-selling designs on our own floor have been reduced 25% to 50%.

"Specials"—new models made up for us in quantity at price concessions which, together with a less than usual mark-up, afford the buyer savings of 15% to 25%.

In Our Regular Stock, on practically every piece of furniture in the house not included in one of the preceding categories, we have made a very substantial sale reduction in order to make this ordinarily dull season a time when one can buy every kind of furniture at a saving that makes it well worth while to anticipate the wants of fall and winter.

OFFICIALS SEIZE LANDS IN MEXICO FOR OWN PROFIT

Confiscations Disrupt Farming in Puebla.

BY JOSEPH PIERSON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Mexico City, Aug. 4.—Land seizures form a most profitable business in the state of Puebla. Gov. Manjarrez is pushing the division and distribution of land there to the limit, and those aiding him are reaping a harvest. The seizure of estates belonging to Spaniards has angered Madrid. More than 250,000 acres already have been seized and distributed.

Among the foremost of the agrarians is a brother of the governor, who has been ceaseless in his distribution of land. These attacks on the landed interests in Puebla have ruined agriculture there. The activities of the Manjarrez brothers have extended to almost every kind of landed property. Sugar plantations which were exempted from seizure by decree of President Obregon have been seized and divided and the mills either made communal property or stripped of their machinery.

Seize American's Lands.

The property of Mr. Jenkins, an American consular agent, near Cholus, which was stocked with the finest American and European cattle, was sold by Mr. Jenkins to the Diaz Rubin brothers after 500 acres of his property were taken for communal lands. Then the Manjarrez brothers attached the Tlaxcala end of the hacienda and gave communal lands to four other villages, with the result that the property has practically vanished.

Hacienda San Pedro at Coxtocan, owned by Mrs. Evans, the American wife of an Englishman, has been taken over, although the property consisted of less than 600 acres. The hacienda and sugar property belonging to the heirs of Augustin de la Hidalga were gutted and lands taken was divided among twelve villages. The seizures rendered the remaining property valueless.

May Call Special Session.

San Lusca, a hacienda belonging to the Sala family, though the whole extent of the property when divided among members of the family was less than that legally allowed an individual, was seized and given over for communal lands.

The senate proposes in an extraordinary session before September to attempt to settle the constant conflicts between the different authorities in many of the states of the Mexican union. These conflicts are one of the main sources of trouble to the government. They have prevented progress in several of the states.

Disorders in States.

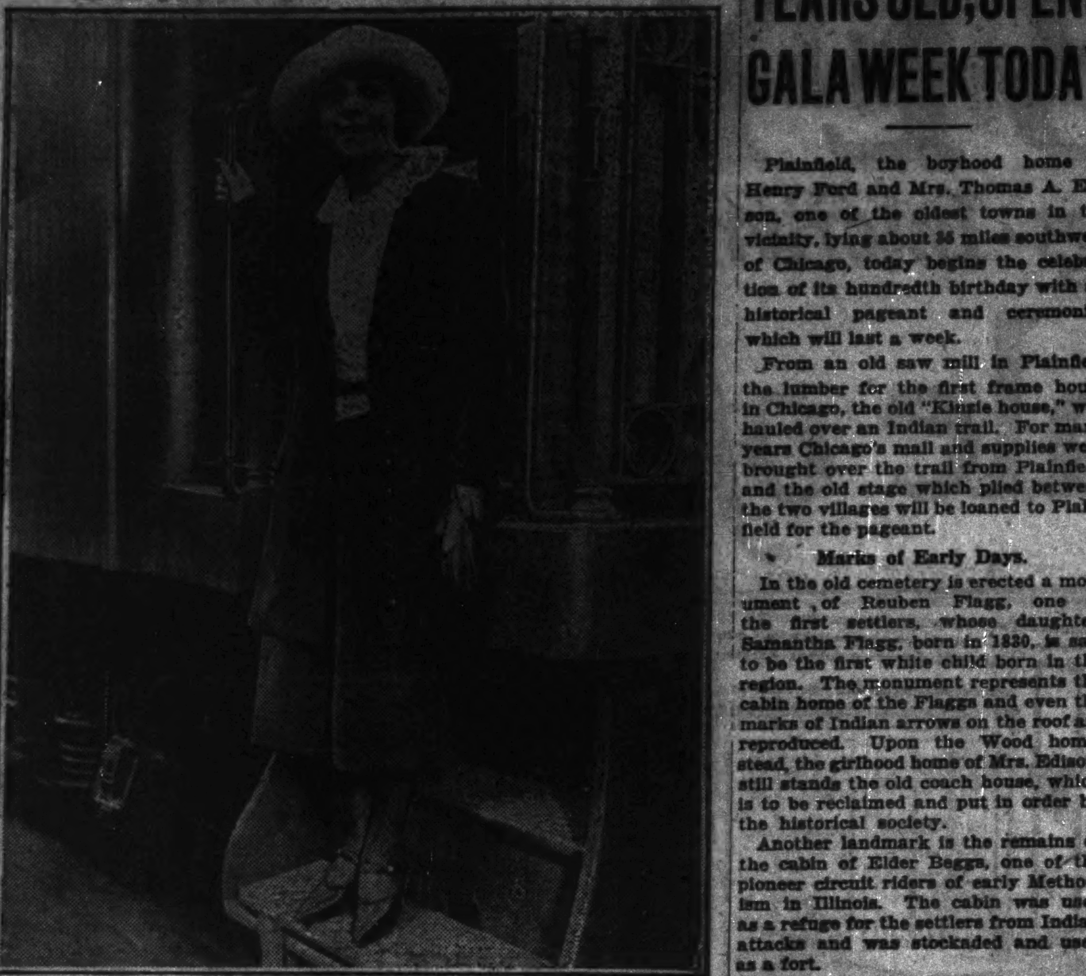
Various governors have been forced to retire from office, while others have obtained leaves of absence and then returned, frequently only to create more trouble. Among the states which have suffered from the incapacity of their governors or from political intrigue are Puebla, Coahuila, Chiapas, Queretaro, Colima, Vera Cruz, San Luis Potosi and Campeche. Chiapas for a while has been in a complete state of anarchy, there has been unrest in Coahuila for several years and there is still trouble in Campeche which the federal authorities may have to settle.

Several states have had two senates or two chambers of deputies at the same time, and the political animosities have been so intense that all the interests of the state have been forgotten in the struggle for party supremacy.

CONDUCTOR DIES BY GAS.

With a rubber hose from which gas was flowing nearby, the body of Reinhold Buckman of 5117 South Rockwell street, a street car conductor, was found in the bathroom of his home yesterday. Mrs. Buckman said he had been drinking.

BROADWAY HER NEXT STOP



Prior to the Dempsey-Gibbons melee in Shelby, Mont., Miss Patricia Salmon was a member of the cast of a tent show then playing in the western town. Newspaper men saw the show, wrote glowing articles about Miss Salmon, and now she's headed straight for Broadway. Reports say she's going into vaudeville. Miss Salmon stopped for a few minutes yesterday in Chicago. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

CANNOT DODGE DEBT, MELLON TELLS FRANCE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 4.—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon is busy winding up the affairs for which he came to Paris before sailing on the Leviathan on Tuesday for America.

The secretary has had a long conference with M. de Lasteyrie, the French minister of finance, and with M. Robineau, governor of the Bank of France, on the question of the interallied debts.

It is understood that he also made it clear to M. Poincare that no government of the United States would ever be able to cancel the inter-allied indebtedness and that the French have made up their minds that the only thing to do is to get the best terms possible. Unlike the English, however, the French wish to obtain a delay running into another decade before beginning payment.

FORMER KENOSHA CHIEF, IN CELL, TO HEAR TRAGEDY

Kenosha, Wis., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Owen O'Hare, former chief of police of Kenosha, will be told in his cell at the state prison today of the accidental drowning here of his grandson, Owen Rafferty. The 10 year old boy was bathing this evening in Lake Michigan when, with two other boys, he was washed out beyond his depth. The body was washed ashore, but efforts to revive the boy were futile. The tragedy is the second in the family in recent years. Four years ago, while playing with his grandfather's revolver, the boy accidentally shot a younger sister.

PLAINFIELD, 100 YEARS OLD, OPENS GALA WEEK TODAY

Plainfield, the boyhood home of Henry Ford and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, one of the oldest towns in the vicinity, lying about 35 miles southwest of Chicago, today begins the celebration of its hundredth birthday with an historical pageant and ceremonies which will last a week.

From an old saw mill in Plainfield the lumber for the first frame house in Chicago, the old "Kinzie house," was hauled over an Indian trail. For many years Chicago's mail and supplies were brought over the trail from Plainfield, and the old stage which plied between the two villages will be loaned to Plainfield for the pageant.

Marks of Early Days.

In the old cemetery is erected a monument of Reuben Flagg, one of the first settlers, whose daughter, Samantha Flagg, born in 1830, is said to be the first white child born in the region. The monument represents the cabin home of the Flaggs and even the marks of Indian arrows on the roof are reproduced. Upon the Wood homestead, the girlhood home of Mrs. Edison, still stands the old coach house, which is to be reclaimed and put in order by the historical society.

Another landmark is the remains of the cabin of Elder Beggs, one of the pioneer circuit riders of early Methodism in Illinois. The cabin was used as a refuge for the settlers from Indian attacks and was stockaded and used as a fort.

Part of Old Sawmill Stands.

Among the other historical objects which are still visible is the sluice of the old saw mill, which early furnished the lumber for the community. Among former inhabitants of Plainfield who have been invited as guests of honor to take part in the ceremonies are J. J. Tobias, dean of the Chicago Law school, and Bishop Britston of the Methodist Episcopal church.

ONOVAN BOOM FOR BRUNDAGE'S JOB UNDER WAY

Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, chair- n of the Democratic state commit- e, was boomed for attorney general a Democratic pow pow in Joliet esterday. This is the first definite ove to place him on the state ticket xt year, although he has been con- dered a likely starter for some time. Mr. Donovan conferred with Demo- ats in Chicago on Wednesday. eorge E. Brennan led in the unani- ous indorsement of Donovan for ate chairman at the last Democratic ate convention and the Donovan om is likely to be taken up by lead- s here, it was indicated last night. some quarters it was said the Don- an sendoff may mean that State epresentative John P. Devine of Lee unty will be groomed as Democratic ndidate for governor. Mr. Devine, inority leader in the last legislature, as urged as a gubernatorial offering st before the legislature adjourned. was said then that he preferred to n for attorney general. In the light the Donovan boom, however, it is nted Mr. Devine is being considered w only as a gubernatorial prospect.

G. O. P. Harmony Move.

With the Illinois Democracy facing rospects of harmony in state and unty next year, there have been re- nt indications of a Republican get gether movement on the county ket. The remnant of the old Lun- n-Thompson machine may form a parate camp, but there are prospects at the other factions will reach an greement. County offices with terms piring next year are divided now be- een the Brundage-Crowe-Barrett rces and the Deneen and Harding or- nizations. Anything approaching an greement would dispel most of the ctional friction.

One rumor which might block har- ony if it materializes is that Mu- cipal Judge George B. Holmes may a Deneen entry against State's ttorney Crowe if Mr. Crowe seeks re- ection rather than a return to the ench. Other officeholders whose rms expire next year are Joseph F. aas, recorder; Oscar Wolff, coroner; amuel Erickson, Superior court erk; George Miller, Circuit court erk; Charles Ringer and Charles rutekoff, assessors; Harry E. Littler, illiam J. Healy and W. O. Nance, nitary trustees, all Republicans, and A. Nash of the board of review, emocrat.

New Proposal on Judges.

Indorsement of sitting judges and bandonment of the coalition idea on e rest of the judicial ticket next No- ember was proposed to party leaders esterday. Some sentiment is shifting this plan. Certain elements of the hicago Bar association favor indorse- ent of the twelve present judges, but ggest that each party nominate ll slate for the eight new Superior urt places and for the three va- ncies—one in the Superior court and wo in the Circuit. It is understood e Deneen camp favors such a plan. "Let the sitting judges who have monstrated their worth be indorsed nd let the field of untried candidates e as large as possible so the voters n pass their best judgment," said eneen man.

Deneen leaders may carry this idea an issue in the Republican conven- ion Oct. 2 if the other factions and e Democrats make a coalition agree- ent. They figure they can get as uch out of a free for all fight as they ould in any coalition likely to oposed.

DONOVAN BOOM FOR BRUNDAGE'S JOB UNDER WAY

Action Boosts Devine's Chance for Governor.

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, chairman of the Democratic state committee, was boomed for attorney general at a Democratic pow pow in Joliet yesterday. This is the first definite move to place him on the state ticket next year, although he has been considered a likely starter for some time. Mr. Donovan conferred with Democrats in Chicago on Wednesday. George E. Brennan led in the unanimous indorsement of Donovan for state chairman at the last Democratic state convention and the Donovan boom is likely to be taken up by leaders here, it was indicated last night. In some quarters it was said the Donovan sendoff may mean that State Representative John P. Devine of Lee county will be groomed as Democratic candidate for governor. Mr. Devine, minority leader in the last legislature, was urged as a gubernatorial offering just before the legislature adjourned. It was said then that he preferred to run for attorney general. In the light of the Donovan boom, however, it is stated Mr. Devine is being considered now only as a gubernatorial prospect.

G. O. P. Harmony Move.

With the Illinois Democracy facing prospects of harmony in state and county next year, there have been recent indications of a Republican get together movement on the county ticket. The remnant of the old Lundin-Thompson machine may form a separate camp, but there are prospects that the other factions will reach an agreement. County offices with terms expiring next year are divided now between the Brundage-Crowe-Barrett forces and the Deneen and Harding organizations. Anything approaching an agreement would dispel most of the factional friction.

One rumor which might block harmony if it materializes is that Municipal Judge George B. Holmes may be a Deneen entry against State's Attorney Crowe if Mr. Crowe seeks reelection rather than a return to the bench. Other officeholders whose terms expire next year are Joseph F. Haas, recorder; Oscar Wolff, coroner; Samuel Erickson, Superior court clerk; George Miller, Circuit court clerk; Charles Ringer and Charles Krutckoff, assessors; Harry E. Littler, William J. Healy and W. O. Nance, sanitary trustees, all Republicans, and A. Nash of the board of review, Democrat.

New Proposal on Judges.

Indorsement of sitting judges and abandonment of the coalition idea on the rest of the judicial ticket next November was proposed to party leaders yesterday. Some sentiment is shifting to this plan. Certain elements of the Chicago Bar association favor indorsement of the twelve present judges, but suggest that each party nominate a full slate for the eight new Superior court places and for the three vacancies—one in the Superior court and two in the Circuit. It is understood the Deneen camp favors such a plan.

"Let the sitting judges who have demonstrated their worth be indorsed and let the field of untried candidates be as large as possible so the voters can pass their best judgment," said a Deneen man.

Deneen leaders may carry this idea as an issue in the Republican convention Oct. 2 if the other factions and the Democrats make a coalition agreement. They figure they can get as much out of a free for all fight as they could in any coalition likely to be proposed.

Edward R. Litsinger, member of the board of review, has issued a statement opposing a coalition.

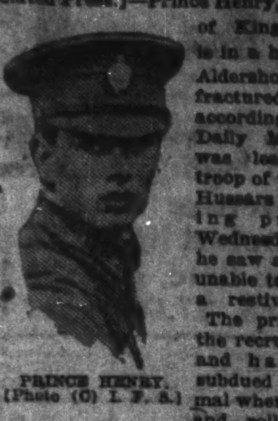
PRINCE HENRY HURT BY WILD HORSE HE TOOK FROM ROOKIE



PRINCE HENRY.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Prince Henry, third son of King George, is in a hospital at Aldershot with a fractured ankle, according to the Daily Mail. He was leading his troop of the Tenth Hussars at jumping practice Wednesday when he saw a recruit unable to manage a restive horse. The prince took the recruit's place and had nearly subdued the animal when it threw and rolled upon him. It is said he will have to remain in the hospital for some days.

ELGIN SCHOOLS GET NEW CHIEF AS HARRIS GOES

Dr. F. C. Schurmaier, president of the Elgin board of education, yesterday announced the appointment of R. W. Fairchild of Fond du Lac, Wis., as the new superintendent of the Elgin schools.

Miss Mae T. Killcullen, who acted as Mr. Fairchild's assistant at Fond du Lac, has been assigned to act in the same capacity at Elgin. Mr. Fairchild will receive a salary of $5,500. He is married and has a family.

His appointment followed the sudden resignations of the former superintendent, William T. Harris, and Miss Jessie Stevens, one of the grammar schools teachers.

According to reports from Elgin Harris was asked to resign. He denied it, as did the board.

TYPIST'S DEATH FROM POISON CAUSES MYSTERY

Police yesterday sought to determine a motive for the supposed suicide of Miss Irene Ward, a stenographer, who died in St. Luke's hospital several hours after being found unconscious from poisoning in her home at 1341 South Wabash avenue.

From Miss Helen King, the girl's roommate, it was learned that the two had attended a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Katherine Zimmerman, 4759 Vincennes avenue, and later had visited the Vestibule bar, 22d and State streets, where they drank some beer. Miss King denied a report they had quarreled after reaching home.

Miss King declared the girl's real name to be Margaret Ault, and said her mother resided with a son, N. L. Ault of 123 South Ninth street, South Bend, Ind. Miss Ward had been unemployed for some time, the police learned.

'TENT' MANAGER ASKS COURT BAR POLICE RAIDS

In an effort to prevent a recurrence of the raid of July 21, when 123 patrons and waiters were arrested, John F. Lenigan, proprietor of the "Tent," a café at 1021 North State street, yesterday appealed to Circuit Judge George F. Rush to enjoin Chief Collins from interfering with his place of business.

Judge Rush continued the motion for an injunction until Aug. 7, upon the request of Assistant Corporation Counsel Leonard Grossman.

Lenigan asserted that the police threatened to conduct another raid, and denied there was any unlawful act committed in the restaurant. The police want to drive him out of business, he charged, and destroy his $50,000 investment, he said.

Mr. Grossman agreed that no arrests will be made pending the hearing.

For Golf Players

PUT Sergeant's Mange Medicine on your scalp before exercising. When you warm up, the scalp pores open. Sergeant's Mange then penetrates, destroys dandruff germs, fertilizes the hair roots. Wash it out afterward in the shower. Note the clean, refreshed feeling. Itching stops, dandruff disappears and soon the hair starts growing thick and fast all over your head. This is an ideal way to use Sergeant's Mange Medicine, the most effective dandruff remedy and hair grower known—standard for 50 years. Country Club members, Y. M. C. A. members, Boat Club members, Ball Players and other Athletes keep Sergeant's in their lockers and use it regularly. Barbers apply it.

THE COOLER DAYS.

The cooler days are not so many weeks away. Then this season's hollyhocks will be only memories, the last of the gladioli will have withered, and only the belated asters will hold the garden trenches against advancing winter.

Once more, the fireplace in the living room will come into its own. The house, and not the garden, will be the center of attraction for family and friends.

It is said that the home is the cornerstone of our civilization. Let us furnish it accordingly as the cooler days approach.

DRY TRIBESMEN EAGER TO MEET "PUSSYFOOT"

Only Aliens Are Wet at Timbuctoo.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1923: By The Chicago Tribune.]

TIMBUCTOO, July 4.—[By Mail.]—The news of Pussyfoot Johnson's proposed visit to Timbuctoo has been conveyed to the official civilian residents of this ancient stronghold of Islamism by THE TRIBUNE. The impression produced was a mixture of amusement and pleasure.

"Prohibition has been practiced here by the Mohammedans for six centuries before America was discovered," said one French merchant.

"Johnson will learn much from the natives here. They smoke no cigarets, never visit cabarets, carry nothing on their hips but a geestring, know nothing of joyriding or of midnight follies for their tired business men.

"We understand here that it's mostly women in America who provide money for prohibition campaigns. If this is true Johnson will find himself strictly in accord with all of the Mohammedan world, who consider women as being the natural providers for men. If the news spreads among sons of the prophet that thousands of women in America give Johnson the funds to make his trips around the world, and enjoy life, he will be greeted as a marabout."

Gives Official Version.

"Johnson will be greeted as an American citizen," declared a French official, "and given every opportunity to study the enlightenment and progress that he will find among a people pledged for more than a thousand years never to touch alcohol.

"In all the records which we can find of the last 1,100 years in this land there has never occurred a single case of alcoholic intoxication, but it's history is replete with long periods of poverty, famine, disease, rape, loot, arson, prostitution, debauchery, perversion, and other human shortcomings, generally attributed to alcohol.

"Since the French occupation these conditions have been eliminated to a great degree.

"French residents here enjoy the same temperate use of wines and liquors as in France, but of course the sale or use thereof to the natives is prohibited, as it should be to any people not sufficiently advanced to be able to control their appetites."

Travelers Are Feted.

Alcohol figured incidently, but not prominently in the enthusiastic celebration of Independence day in Timbuctoo by both the European and native populations of the city in honor of the arrival of the Tribune Trans-Sahara expedition.

Members of the expedition were the guests of honor at a dinner offered by Commandant and Madame Fauche, the post commandant. The meal was preceded by a choice of aperatifs, including Vermouth, Grenadine, Dubonnet bitters, Amerpicon, etc., several spoonfuls of which in a tall glass of cold water plus several drops of lemon sirup made a refreshing preliminary. White and red wine also were served as a customary sequence, and followed by champagne.

Hosts and guests united in drinking toasts to America and France, and to the Presidents of the two sister republics. Liqueurs also were at hand, but were sparingly partaken of, as coffee and cigars were placed before the guests by dusky servitors.

Temperature Only 130.

In a darkened room a diminutive Negro boy pulled unceasingly at a swinging punka, which refreshed the company. In the glare of the sun outside the temperature registered 130 degrees.

Early in the morning of the Fourth an American flag was run up over the mud tower of the Tribunal, Place Joffre. The first time it was hoisted upside down. The Negro squad leader and soldiers who pulled the lanyards never had a drink in their lives, however. In honor of the occasion liberty was allowed to all soldiers in the fort. They promenaded the streets in dress—with red belts—and dusky belles on either arm. The native population gathered in the public square chanting and dancing to the accompaniment of the incessant beat of primitive drums and the wail of the noubs, or pipes.

The Tribune expedition held open house in the governor's palace until late in the afternoon, receiving calls of officers and residents.

DECIDING ON A MOTHER

Edna Cecelia Holmes, asked before Judge Joseph Sabath to choose between two mothers—Mrs. Mary Irene Haynes, her foster mother, and her real mother, Mrs. Blanche Holmes Henry—told the judge she preferred to make her home with Mrs. Henry. FRANK J. LOWRY, AUTOSPORTSMAN, HELD AS ROBBER

The alleged dual life of Frank James Lowry, auto sportsman, who formerly lived in Chicago, was exposed yesterday when he was arrested in Los Angeles on a charge of burglary. Lowry is well known among automobile racers and has acted as an official at recent speedway races. He attended nearly all the national racing events and was known as a liberal spender.

A Los Angeles business man, returning to his office, charges he found Lowry on his knees before the office safe, with the door wide open and papers scattered on the floor. Lowry jumped from the window and sustained a broken leg. At the hospital he was identified as the former Chicagoan.

Cliff Durant, the millionaire automobile manufacturer, who is said to be a friend of Lowry, asserts there must be some mistake, and announces he will attempt to clear up the affair.

Lowry was arrested under similar circumstances in Minneapolis on June 8, 1916, when A. Solberg surprised him standing before an open safe. He was placed on probation for a year.

Pickpocket Takes Vet's Compensation Money

Shortly after he had drawn his compensation money yesterday, Larry A. Valenzio, 3233 South Wells street, an ex-service man, had his pocket picked on a Madison street car and his compensation, $72.50, taken from him.

Perjury Charge Against Harrison Parker Dropped

An indictment charging Harrison Parker, former president of the Coöperative Society of America, with perjury, was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Adam C. Cliffe, on the ground it did not set forth any cause of action. It grew out of an inquiry into the assets of the company.

MOTHER BEGINS COURT FIGHT TO GET 4 CHILDREN

Daughter Chooses Her in Quiz by Judge.

Mrs. Blanche Holmes Henry yesterday began her legal fight to win the custody of her four children by a former husband. She appeared before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath with her husband, C. A. Henry, a bond salesman of 1649 West Van Buren street, and their two children, Marcelline, 4 years old, and Arthur, 3.

The father of the four children by her previous marriage, Myron Holmes, died a few weeks after divorcing her. He had been awarded the custody of the children, and when he died they were given to relatives.

One at a time Mrs. Henry hopes to win them back until she has her six children beneath her own roof. The four children are all in separate homes, she said.

Seeks Writ for Daughter.

She began by filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus against Mrs. Mary Irene Haines of 434 St. James place, who has the custody of Edna Cecelia Holmes, 14 years old. Mrs. Haines is Edna's cousin. The other children are Inez, 17 years old, who lives with Mrs. Haines' sister, Mrs. L. R. Beadle of New Lenox, Ill.; Harold, 16 years old, who lives with Mrs. J. F. Plummer of Chadwick, Ill., another sister of Mrs. Haines; and Sylvia, 12 years old, who lives with Mrs. Ellis E. Twing of Bad Axe, Mich., a sister of Holmes.

Judge Sabath questioned Edna briefly, then continued the case until Friday. Asked regarding which woman she preferred to live with, Edna replied, "Mother."

"But you have two mothers now," Judge Sabath said. "Which one do you mean?"

Edna turned and patted Mrs. Henry's cheek.

"This one, judge," she said.

"Even If Kidnap Me."

Attorney Willis B. Wood, counsel for Mrs. Henry, showed Judge Sabath a letter which he said had been written by Edna to her mother, in which the girl had pleaded with her to "come and get me, even if you have to kidnap me."

Attorneys for Mrs. Haines said she had adopted Edna. Mr. Wood said he would prove that the adoption was not valid, in that Mrs. Henry had never given her consent to it.

Pending the hearing Edna will remain with Mrs. Haines. Mrs. Henry may visit her daughter "at any time within reason," Judge Sabath ordered.

Reginald McKenna Stays Out of Baldwin Cabinet

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—It is stated today that Reginald McKenna, chairman of the London, City and Midland bank, will be unable to accept the chancellorship of the exchequer. This is a victory for the Tory "die-hards" in the Baldwin cabinet, who have opposed Mr. McKenna because he is a former Liberal and have fought his appointment with the greatest bitterness. The post may now go to L. S. Amery, first lord of the admiralty, or to Sir William Joynson-Hicks, financial secretary to the treasury.

ANOTHER "ICE BOX" HOLDUP.

Daniel Greenberg, proprietor of a grocery and meat market at 3613 Indiana avenue, was held up by two armed colored men, forced into his refrigerator and robbed of $100 yesterday.

The Changing World

Five Big Men on a Sefton Box
An empty Sefton Container one foot high and one foot square—will sustain over 1000 lbs. without crushing.

Not many years ago Canners were actually opposed to using the Corrugated Shipping Case for canned goods. Today these Corrugated Fibreboard Cases are tested, proved economies. During the past canning season more than 25,000,000 cases of canned foods were marketed in fibre containers.

1,000 cases packed in wooden boxes, weighing 42 lbs. per case, at 60c per cwt., shipped from a midwestern cannery to New York City, cost $24.00 per carload more than 1,000 cases packed in Corrugated Containers, weighing 38 lbs., at 60c per cwt. The cost of Corrugated Containers is about 8c as against the wooden cases at 15c each.

As Corrugated Containers ship flat when empty, in this form they occupy only about one-tenth of the space of a wooden box of the same size, thus effecting an immense economy in packing room space. The outside dimensions are less than those of a wooden box of the same cubic contents. Storage space is thereby saved in transit and in warehouses. Concealed losses by pilferage are detected at time of delivery.

Sefton factories are producing millions of these Corrugated Shipping Containers of the highest standard of quality. Avail yourself of these advantages. Telephone, write, or wire.

Look for a Home with a Weil-McLain Boiler

When you look for that new home, remember that the house with a Weil-McLain Boiler is worth more as an investment and worth more to live in. This heating plant adds definitely to the value of any home, old or new.

No matter how long and cold the winter, a Weil-McLain Boiler will keep every nook and corner of every room snugly warm and cosy. With a Weil-McLain in the basement, any home is "easy to heat," because this highly developed boiler supplies such a flood of steady, even warmth with so little effort.

And it is remarkably economical in its use of fuel. In spite of the high price of coal last winter, thousands of home owners cut their fuel bills to a hitherto unattainable minimum by installation of this efficient heating plant.

Many years of study by Weil-McLain have resulted in perfecting the two major functions of a boiler. These are: First, complete burning of fuel; Second, full utilization of the heat units developed.

In Weil-McLain Boilers every pound of fuel is completely burned—made to yield a maximum number of heat units. Waste is practically eliminated.

Then the heat thus created is fully utilized to heat your home or building due to three remarkable Weil-McLain features.

The Weil-McLain fuel-saving corrugated "double-surface" crown sheet gives double the heating surface directly above the fire. The simple candle test shows that this is the most valuable surface in any boiler."

All other heating surfaces are also corrugated. This further promotes economy of fuel and heating efficiency.

A long "back-and-forth" fire travel holds the hot gases in continuous contact with all the fuel-saving surfaces so that heat cannot be wasted up the chimney.

Other features of Weil-McLain Boilers are: large fire door; handy front cleanout doors for each section; smooth non-clogging surface of lower one-third of fire pot; triangular grates which cut and shake all ordinary clinkers.

Weil-McLain Boilers also are more efficient when oil is used for fuel. The heat produced by the oil burning device is fully utilized by the double surface crown sheet directly above the fire, other corrugated heating surfaces and the long "back-and-forth" fire travel.

Prompt deliveries of Weil-McLain Boilers can be made now. Large stocks are carried in Chicago and Michigan City, Ind.

Write us for further information. We will send you, if desired, the name of a competent heating contractor who will serve you.

BUILDING PRICES NEAR STABILITY, STRAUS ASSERTS

Suburbs and Autos Create Housing Demand.

A pronounced tendency toward stabilized prices is the outstanding feature of the building industry throughout the United States at the present time, according to S. W. Straus, president of S. W. Straus & Co.

"During the last sixty days fluctuations in building costs have been negligible," said Mr. Straus in a statement given out yesterday. "There have, of course, been advances and recessions here and there as the result of local conditions, but the underlying tendencies have been toward stability in costs. This important development may be taken as an indication that the activities of the industry will continue on an even keel for some time.

"Rapid fluctuations in building prices add to the perplexity of prospective builders and it will be greatly to the advantage of all concerned to have conditions continue along the same lines that now exist."

While the month of June showed some recession in prices, amounting to 4 per cent for the average of all building materials, Mr. Straus said he saw no likelihood of costs coming down to any appreciable extent.

Much Potential Building.

"This is true," he declared, "largely because the shortage of buildings is so widespread and there is so much potential construction work in the country that pronounced cost decreases would immediately bring about abnormal building activity which, through the processes of competition, would again force up the prices."

In connection with the large amount of construction which will be demanded within the next few years, Mr. Straus declared it should be borne in mind that unusual changes are taking place which necessitate a greater building program than would be needed through the natural increase in population. These tendencies are the movement of the rural population to the cities, and the movement from city to suburb as a result of the development of the automobile and good roads.

"The movement from the country districts to the city has been most intensive during the past two or three years," Mr. Straus said, "though it was in progress during the entire decade from 1910 to 1920. While such a movement does not mean an increase in the population of the nation, it does mean an abnormal increase in the growth of the cities and a correspondingly abnormal demand for buildings of all kinds.

Moving Into Suburbs.

"The growth of the suburban movement has been going on intensively since the war. In a recent survey of the country it was found that 63 per cent of the cities in the country are feeling the effects of a heavy movement to the suburban districts.

"The results of such large migrations of population from more or less congested city centers to the open suburbs results of course in an enormous increase in the demand for dwellings, stores, garages, schools, and churches. It also involves the alteration of buildings from which removal has taken place, and in many cases their demolition and replacement by buildings of another type."

Instead of becoming a carpenter or mason the young man of today is likely to become a machinist or automobile mechanic, Mr. Straus said.

Youths Go Into Auto Trades.

"It is a matter of note that the growth of the automobile industry has seriously increased the shortage of labor in the building trades," he declared. "Young men go to work in the automobile industry who would otherwise no doubt have gone into the building crafts. In a like manner the enormous amount of highway construction which has been going on in this country since the war and for a number of years before, seriously drained the sources of labor from which the building industries drew their workers.

"There is nothing to indicate that these various developments will materially change. To all appearances the present price levels will be maintained. The continued building of new roads and highways will follow naturally the growth of the automobile business and hence these activities will continue to divert labor from the building crafts, while the migration of population now in progress will undoubtedly keep effective an abnormal demand for new buildings."

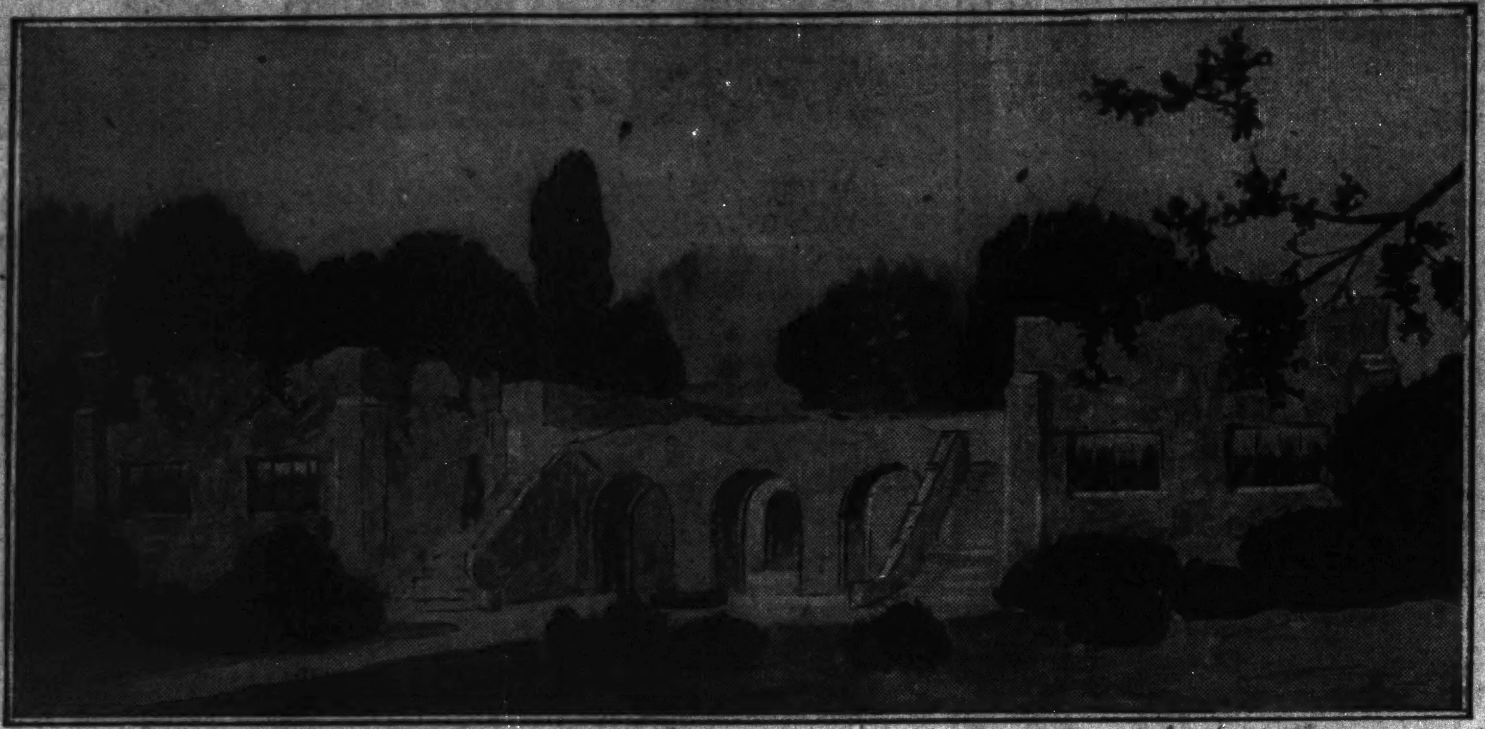
Proposed Cummings Memorial for Oak Park



The late E. A. Cummings, Oak Park realtor, left the sum of $25,000 in his will for the erection of the Cummings Memorial, to be placed in the forest preserve at the corner of Lake street and Harlem avenue, on the border line between Oak Park and River Forest. The committee of ten of the Cummings bequest is considering suggestions for the memorial until September, when a final recommendation will be made to Commissioner George A. Miller of the forest preserve.

Mrs. Cummings, widow of E. A. Cummings, favors a community building providing the building fund can be increased for this purpose. The committee of ten asked its secretary, Charles E. White Jr. of the architectural firm of White & Pomeroy, to prepare sketches along the lines of the illustration shown above.

The proposed building is in the Spanish style and consists of a main structure with wings, forming a patio. It is desired to keep the building simple and inexpensive. The use of concrete throughout, with a reinforced concrete roof forming a roof garden, has been suggested.

The proposed building is to contain an auditorium seating about 1,500 people, with attached wings increasing the capacity to 400 more. There are to be committee rooms for the Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and other organizations, rest rooms for men and women, and a wing for the art school which it is proposed to establish in Oak Park.

Art exhibits will be a feature of the new building. Concerts and festivals are also contemplated, and the roof garden will be used as a band stand. Flowers, shrubs, and flowering vines will encompass the new building, in order that it may not conflict with the out of door aspect of the forest preserve.

GAS COMPANY FIGURES SHOW BUILDING GAIN

30% More This Year than Jan.-July, 1922.

New buildings are going up and are being put into use this year at a rate about 30 per cent higher than last year. And the popular demand, in both detached residences and in apartments, is for five rooms.

These conclusions are to be drawn from the recently issued report of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company for the first six months of 1923. The gas company, the telephone company, and the Commonwealth Edison company serve as reflectors of building activities.

In table No. 1 the gas company lists the number of miles of mains and services laid and the number of meters installed from Jan. 1 to July 1, 1923, as compared with the same period in 1922.

Table No. 3 shows a comparison of house pipe inspections in June, 1923, and June, 1922. House pipe inspections are made after the piping is completed, at a definite place in the construction, and indicate the rapidity with which housing units are being constructed.

Mirror of Industry.

If these figures of the gas company may be regarded as an accurate mirror of certain phases of the building industry, then it would seem that five room housing units, whether residences of flats, are the most in demand. Six room houses and four room apartments run next in the order of popularity in their respective classes.

The figures show, however, a surprising gain in June, 1923, in two and three room apartments over June, 1922. Three room apartments tripled.

While the June figures show a decided gain in housing units over last year it is to be noted that there is a decided falling off in the number of stores and offices.

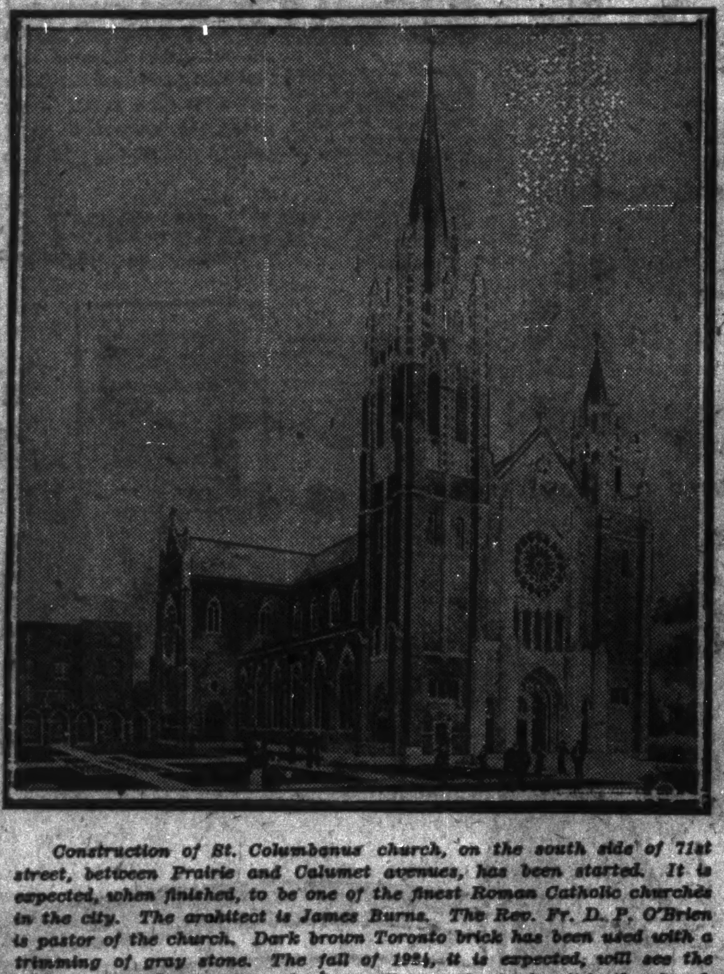
The twenty-six flat building at the northwest corner of Lotus avenue and Fulton street has been sold by Mrs. Mary Walsh to Martin Hansen for an indicated $112,500, subject to $55,000.

New St. Columbanus Church



Construction of St. Columbanus church, on the south side of 71st street, between Prairie and Calumet avenues, has been started. It is expected, when finished, to be one of the finest Roman Catholic churches in the city. The architect is James Burns. The Rev. Fr. D. P. O'Brien is pastor of the church. Dark brown Toronto brick has been used with a trimming of gray stone. The fall of 1924, it is expected, will see the church finished. When completed, it will form the final unit in the church group of which the rectory, school, and convent have already been built.

WHEN'S BUILDING NOT A BUILDING? REALTOR ASKS

"When is a building not a building?" asks Paul C. Loeber, head of Paul C. Loeber & Company. "When it its an incumbrance," he answers himself in the same breath.

PAUL C. LOEBER.
[Walinger Photo.]

Mr. Loeber is nationally known as an appraiser. He is chairman of the appraisals committee of the National Association of Real Estate boards, member of the advisory committee to the federal real estate boards, and was recently elected president of the national association at its convention in Cleveland.

"A building is an incumbrance instead of an asset when it fails to bring an adequate return on the value of the land it occupies," Mr. Loeber says.

"There are several buildings in Chicago which to the layman would appear to be of immense value. To the skilled appraiser they show as an incumbrance on the property. Take for instance the Auditorium building. I recently read an article stating that this building, now thirty-five years old, is resting on a floating foundation and has settled seventy-two inches.

"I have personally not verified these facts nor valued the property. But it is reported that the building does not earn even enough to pay the interest on its bonded indebtedness. In other words the property is not improved to its highest and greatest use.

"Other instances appear constantly. A building may add no value to the land not only through deterioriation but because it was not fitted for the site and the locality in the first place. I have in mind a house on the north side, built at a cost of $250,000 in a district given over to business and apartment purposes."

Many real estate appraisers who are working in certain locations are unable, unconsciously, to give a really intelligent opinion of value in that neighborhood, the realtor states.

"This is a bold statement, I know," he declares. "It is not true in all instances, but we often find that brokers are unqualified to give an adequate opinion in their own neighborhood because they are prejudiced and carried away by enthusiasm.

"Real estate appraising is an important responsibility," the broker concludes. "The appraiser must have more than ordinary preparation, and his opinions should be based on facts, giving complete consideration to the market value of the property.

"I believe an appraisal is worthless unless it is accurate. But it may be more than worthless. It may work an actual injury or financial loss. The appraiser's opinions should represent the highest degree of thought, experience, and integrity rolled into one."

Brokers' Notes

Two real estate firms, who have long been identified with the development of the south side, T. D. O'Hern & Co. and A. Edward Frear & Co., have combined and will operate from now on as O'Hern-Frear company. Their offices are at 5303 Hyde Park boulevard, in the Cooper-Carlton hotel.

Mr. O'Hern has been actively engaged in the sale and management of properties in Hyde Park for over fifteen years and has recently been operating at the above address. Mr. Frear has been engaged in the real estate business at 4309 Grand boulevard for over sixteen years.

Oblander & Branower announce the opening of their new office, 4951 Sheridan road, Aug. 1.

James F. Robertson, formerly at 116 South Michigan avenue, announces that he will open an office at 1207 East 55th street under the name of the Southeast Realty company, conducting a general real estate and brokerage business, with special attention to South Shore and Hyde Park realty.

J. Herbert Levis wishes it stated that it was not he who made a recent purchase on Campbell avenue. The purchase was made in the name of his wife.

SELLS CLARK STREET STORE.

Carl A. Ericson has sold the store and three apartment building at 1010 North Clark street to Ellen Stenson for a reported $30,000. Harold Bradley and company were brokers.

LEASE PROPERTY AT ROOSEVELT AND WABASH AV.

A ninety-nine year lease at a total rental of $3,490,000 has been acquired by P. E. Niles on the property, 171x127, at the northeast corner of Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue, from the Northern Trust company, trustee for the estate of Albert Keep, and from Chauncey Keep, and Helen Keep Hubbard.

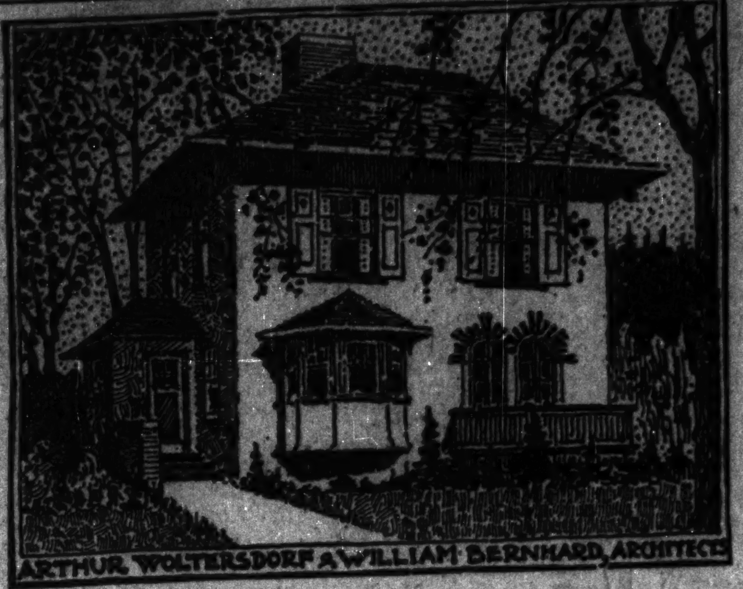
The property has been held by the Keep family since 1869. The north seventy-seven feet fronting on Wabash avenue is vacant, the balance being occupied by a one story building, containing ten stores. Mr. Niles proposes to improve the entire corner with an eighteen or twenty story building, erecting the first unit on the vacant property, and later building a second unit where the present building stands.

Davis Howell of Albert O'Rourke & Co. represented Mr. Niles, and Hudson S. Smith acted for Chauncey Keep. The lease was drawn by William B. McIlvaine of Wilson, McIlvaine, Hale & Templeton. Albert O'Rourke & Co. will continue for Mr. Niles and will have the management of the property.

Pipe Line to Carry Gas to New Ford Pant

Construction will be begun within a few days by the Indiana Byproducts company of East Chicago on an eight inch pipe line eight miles long from the Hegewisch industrial district around the new Ford plant to the main gas plant at East Chicago. It will cost $500,000 and will furnish gas to the Ford plant.

Fort Sheridan Gardens' First Home



ARTHUR WOLTERSDORF & WILLIAM BERNHARD, ARCHITECTS

Work has been started on the first home at Fort Sheridan gardens, according to announcement from the offices of the Chicago Housing association, which is sponsoring the plan. The house shown above is to be built as a model of what a home at the gardens will be. No other homes will be built until the entire number of 750 applicants is registered. This is so that materials may be purchased in quantity on blanket contract. The homes are to be sold at cost. Many of the 750 have already applied.

REALTORS TO ADVISE TWO CITY BOARDS AT MAYOR'S REQUEST

Six prominent Chicago realtors have been asked by the city administration to act in an advisory capacity in municipal real estate problems. The realtors are Paul C. Loeber, Charles O. Goss, B. B. Clover, B. M. Winston, T. E. Sullivan and Daniel M. Healy. The first three will advise the board of education, the latter three will assist the board of review.

"From time to time it is necessary for the administration to call for patriotic assistance from well known and reliable citizens to aid us in our work," read the letter from Mayor Dever, asking his services.

All six men, it is understood, have expressed their willingness to accept the new duties. They are known as conservative men, qualified by long experience to do the work, not only with advantage to the city, but with fairness to property owners.

REALTY COURSE TO BE OFFERED BY THE Y. M. C. A.

Employes working in real estate offices and others who are anxious for more knowledge of the business are offered a course in real estate by the Y. M. C. A. School of Commerce. The course has been arranged under the auspices of the Chicago Real Estate board. Speakers will be members of the board and experts in their respective lines of business.

Nineteen lessons, two hours in length, will be given. It is planned to make the first hour a lecture and the second hour a quiz on the work done during the preceding week. The first semester will begin Sept. 26. Pierce W. Jones, executive secretary of the renting and managing department of the board, will be in charge of instruction.

The course will cover all phases of the real estate business, endeavoring to give the students as broad a view as possible of its possibilities. Included in the lectures will be talks on renting, sales, mortgages, loans, insurance appraisal, zoning and business ethics.

FOUR FIRMS RENT HOMES ON NORTH AND WEST SIDES

E. N. Duerlein & Co. report the following transactions through their office during the last week:

E. E. Hawks has leased from Evelyn Byrne the second floor of 17,000 square feet at 3141 North Crawford avenue for a term of five years at a total rental of $41,000. The lessee will conduct a newly organized color printing business on the premises. Chandler, Hildreah & Co. represented the lessor.

The Harris Brothers Pie company has leased from G. Kehl & Sons company the new one story building, 50x100, at 1645-7 West Fulton street, for a term of ten years at a total rental of $36,000, with option to purchase.

The Ogden Panel Manufacturing company has leased from J. A. Wilborn Jr. the West building, approximately 7,000 square feet, at 1501 North Kilpatrick avenue, for a term of three years at an annual rental of $2,875.

The Allied Industrial Products company has leased the new two story building at 1117 West Washington boulevard from Thomas E. Brown for a period of five years at a total rental of $13,500.

Realtor Makes Quick Deal; Nets Tidy Sum for Owners

The sale of the twelve apartment building at the southeast corner of 50th place and Forrestville avenue is reported by D. M. Fawcett of the realty firm of S. L. Cooper. The sale was by Ward Hilton and others to Charles C. Lipe and wife for an indicated $45,000, subject to $15,000. Mr. Fawcett reports that he then resold the building for Mr. and Mrs. Lipe to D. Ziff for a reported $50,000, subject to $39,000.

TO BUILD 100 FLATS.

Mrs. Alice Ingram has purchased property, 53x282, on the southeast corner of Eastlake terrace and Rogers avenue, and is having plans drawn by Ralph Huszagh for 100 apartments to be completed by May 1 of next year at a cost of $500,000.

STORE AND OFFICE BUILDING SOLD.

The two story building at 4956-58 Milwaukee avenue, containing two stores and eight offices, has been sold by T. H. Zales to John Zachary for a reported $60,000. The Andrews Realty company were brokers.

BRICK BUSINESS IN SLUMP, SAYS LATEST REPORT

But Need for Homes Brings Hope.

"The slump in building which everybody was talking about and a few agencies were rooting for is apparent in the report of the common brick manufacturers of the country this month, but has not reached serious proportions," says the monthly digest issued last Wednesday from the Cleveland headquarters of the Common Brick Manufacturers' Association of America.

The gross orders on the books thirty days ago, the digest states, amounted to 403,691,000, while the orders reported in the current issue were [illegible] 447,000. The production of new brick for the month totaled 128,942,000, and there were moved from the plants 11[illegible] 761,000. This leaves the quantity of burned and unburned brick in the plants approximately the same as a month ago.

"The falling off in new business is most apparent in some of the centers that have been the busiest during preceding months," says the report. "In New York, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, and even in southern California districts, manufacturers, while well stocked with old orders and running at full capacity, have reported that the volume of new business coming in has been considerably reduced during the preceding month.

Some Optimistic.

"On the other hand, some important plants say that while they were pessimistic thirty days ago they are again optimistic. The condition is generally viewed as seasonal and while all admit that it is possible that the last six months of 1923 will not pile up a volume in new construction equal to the first six months, this will still be a banner year.

"There certainly is much building to be done. In the larger cities there is no surplus of housing. There is an extreme shortage of schools and hospitals and other public buildings."

Housing Offers Market.

The brick manufacturer is just learning that in the field of housing he has a vast market, declares the report of the association. The balance is rapidly changing from the ratio of about 89 to 11, as it stood for many years in favor of frame houses, as against more permanent types. The manufacturers ascribe the increased use of brick to publicity and advertising which attract the attention of the home builder. Another factor is the advent of the Ideal wall, substantially lowering the cost of a brick house.

"If each state in the union should make a gain of 1,000 brick houses this year that business alone would consume a billion and a half of brick," the digest states. "This would represent an increase of 25 per cent over the 1922 consumption of common brick. Present indications are that the gain in brick in home buildig this year will be much greater than that."

The only price change during the past months was a downward trend in some of the highest markets. In New England the highest price reported in current reports was $21, which is $2 below the high water mark of the month previous. The composite price of brick, taking all reports into consideration, is given as $14.65 per thousand.

NORTH DAKOTA HAS NEW CURE FOR FARM ILLS

Would Have the U. S. Fix Wheat Prices.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The birthplace of the Non-Partisan league, whose political economic experiments one by one have gone up the spout, is now shouting for governmental price fixing on wheat at a level that will yield the grower his "cost of production plus a reasonable profit." The wheat raisers, who have been walloped doubly by the slump in price and by the drop in in yield due to rust and other causes, are holding massmeetings and yelling for a special session of congress to try somehow to shove up wheat prices.

The chorus is swelled by the voices of business men, bankers, and politicians, many of whom say price fixing is unsound and wrong in theory, but who are naturally traveling with the procession to show they have sympathetic hearts although skeptical minds. The movement seems to be an overflow from Minnesota.

Only State for More Laws.

Out of eight states into which we have traveled so far—more than 3,200 miles on the speedometer—North Dakota is the first where agriculturists have been found whooping it up for price fixing and more legislative tinkering, and it gives point to the difference between the agrarian discontent in other farming states and the "radical uprising in the northwest." In Kansas and Nebraska farmers seemed to be against a special session of congress because "friends of the farmer have put over too many detrimental laws already." In North Dakota, however, the clamor is that the government should do something to guarantee the wheat raiser his costs and a profit. That's the general idea, although the word "guarantee" is soft pedaled.

As laid down at a conference here the other day, the proposal is that the government should set up some agency to handle the entire wheat crop of America.

Would "Segregate" Wheat Surplus.

This agency would "segregate" the wheat surplus in the United States which determines the price and sell it abroad at the world level of prices, anything to get rid of it.

Then the balance needed for home consumption in the United States would be sold at prices high enough to "insure the grower a profit."

There is the ideal in all its pristine beauty. Its sponsors, however, seem to stop short. Obviously if market prices in America were shoved above world prices plus the tariff, foreign wheat would naturally stream into America to get the higher price. When one mentions this, the comeback is that the tariff ought to be raised to the point where foreign grain would be kept out.

In other words, the North Dakota idea is that wheat growing should be treated as "infant industries" were in the days when America was getting started as a manufacturing nation and that a tariff should be erected for the wheat raiser that would keep outsiders out and allow prices to be run up.

Profit in Foodstuffs.

What America eats should be marketed at a figure that would guarantee a profit, while the surplus would be dumped abroad at any old price to get it out of the way.

In Kansas and Nebraska farmers in commenting on price fixing almost invariably said that if profits were guaranteed every farmer would start growing more wheat; overproduction would be greater than now; the government would be left holding the sack when prices fell and the cost would eventually drift back to the farmer in higher taxes. Out here, however, the big noise is being made for "stabilization," the politicians putting in the tenor parts in the chorus.

Here and there one hears farmers saying it's the wrong medicine, and that price fixing would be a dangerous precedent and that it would be as foolish to guarantee profits to wheat raisers as it would be to delicatessen shopkeepers or grocers or anyone else. But most of the farmers seem to think they have at last discovered the great panacea, just as they did a few years ago when Arthur Townley and his leaguers were doing their stuff.

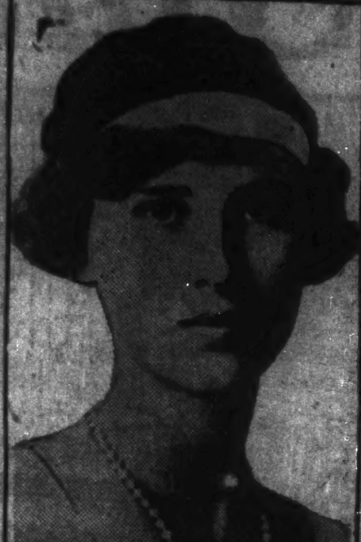
SERB-GREEK ROYAL BETROTHAL



PRINCESS OLGA.

PRINCE PAUL.

Engaged

LONDON, Aug. 4.—Arrangements have been made, according to a Belgrade dispatch, for the marriage of Prince Paul of Serbia and Princess Olga, eldest daughter of Prince Nicholas of Greece.

Prince Paul is a first cousin of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia. He is 30 years old.

Princess Olga, whose father is a brother of King George of Greece, was betrothed early last year to Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark, but in September the engagement was broken. The princess is 20 years old.

BIG PRODUCTION PUTS GREAT COAL SUPPLY IN BINS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—That unusually large stocks of both anthracite and bituminous coal are on hand is indicated by a survey made by the department of commerce and the geological survey, made public today.

Production of anthracite was maintained at a rate close to mine capacity during April, May, and June, with the resurt that the amount available for consumption and storage was greater than in any corresponding period except in 1917 and 1918. Domestic consumption practically ceased with the arrival of warm weather, and since that time stocks have increased rapidly.

Lay in Supplies.

It is indicated that householders have been laying in larger supplies than usual, with the result that retailers' stocks are somewhat less than normal. The carry-over from last winter was very small, however, and it is probable that householders' bins are not now much more heavily stocked than is usual. A canvass of 418 retail dealers shows that they had stocks which were 49 per cent smaller than on Aug. 1, 1921, and 17 per cent smaller than on Jan. 1, 1919.

45,000,000 Tons Stored.

Commercial consumers had in storage on July 1 approximately 45,000,000 net tons of bituminous coal. This was an increase over June 1 of 3,000,000 tons. The amount is twice as great as was in storage on Sept. 1, 1922.

The supply on hand July 1 was greater than on any date since the spring of 1922, when heavy supplies had been accumulated in anticipation of a strike.

The geological survey reports that the rate of production of soft coal during July increased gradually from about 10,500,000 tons to 10,800,000 tons. Production of anthracite continued in excess of 2,000,000 tons per week.

DANCING PARTNER OF PRINCE OF WALES MARRIES WAR HERO

LADY RACHEL CAVENDISH.
[K. & H. Photo.]

LONDON, Aug. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Lady Rachel Cavendish, daughter of the Duke of Devonshire and the dancing partner of the Prince of Wales when he visited Ottawa, was married today to James Stuart, third son of the Earl of Moray, who came through the war with a fine record. Lady Rachel is the fourth of Princess Mary's bridesmaids to be married.

The ceremony took place at St. Peter's church, Edensor, on the border of the Duke of Devonshire's Chatsworth estate. The bride was given away by her father and was attended by her younger sister, Lady Anne Cavendish, Miss Arabelle MacIntosh and Miss Pamela Cobbold. Lord Doune, eldest brother of the bridegroom, was the best man.

Lady Rachel is "an open air girl," fond of sports and games, and is an enthusiastic dancer and tennis player. The Cavendishes are among the richest of the old English families.

SILVER SAYS U. S. FARMERS' DEBTS $3,000,000,000

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The drop of 60 cents per bushel in the price of wheat has meant that the farmers of the country have lost the ability to pay debts to the extent of $3,000,000,000, according to Gray Silver, Washington representative of the American farm bureau federation.

"We have in this country nearly one billion bushels of wheat," said Mr. Silver. "The wheat market broke from $1.40 per bushel just prior to the harvest, to 80 cents a bushel, the recent price on western farms.

"This means a slump of $600,000,000. Since $1 of new credit will liquidate five times that amount of indebtedness the loss of this $600,000,000 means that the farm communities are thus deprived of paying off debts to the extent of $3,000,000,000.

"Thus if 100,000,000 to 200,000,000 bushels of wheat remains on the farms until there is a market for it the farmers will be able to liquefy debts amounting to $3,000,000,000 and the wheat crop of the United States will become a much greater asset than if the old method of marketing is followed.

"Before the passage of the intermediate credits act and the amendment to the warehouse act a farmer could not increase the income from his wheat crop except by increasing the yield. With these two acts functioning, however, it will be entirely possible to get more money for the wheat he has produced.

"By warehousing on the farm he should take advantage of the two laws which were passed especially to function in such exigencies as this and not sell at a loss."

An Intimate Interview With

C. Harold Wills, Creator of the Wills Sainte Claire

By DAYTON KEITH

NO. 1

When C. Harold Wills gave to the world the Wills Sainte Claire, I was one of the first to apply for a distributorship.

Having known Mr. Wills for a long time I knew that any car that he designed and built would be much more than "just another motor car."

Everyone knew that it would be probably the greatest achievement in the history of motor car building—and I wanted to be associated with it—

That was three years ago—

Today my fondest expectations have been met—and exceeded.

The Wills Sainte Claire in the hands of thousands of owners has more than justified every prediction that was made for it.

A few days ago I was in Marysville, on a visit to the factory—

Mr. Wills was not in his office—but I found him in the factory—and that, by the way, is where you usually do find him, checking up on a long line of motors that are coming thru the testing blocks, poring over blue prints in the engineering department, inspecting some new color combinations in the finishing department—anywhere but behind the mahogany desk in the front office, where a president is supposed to stay—

That really is one of the secrets of the marvelous performance of Wills Sainte Claire cars—the personal engineering and metallurgical genius, the hard work and indomitable patience that have been built into them.

But to get back—I found Mr. Wills in the factory and after dragging him away from the machinery to a place of comparative quiet I asked him to tell me what in his opinion were the outstanding factors that combined to give to the Wills Sainte Claire its amazing superiority—

And out of that chance question came the quiet, unassuming yet tremendously convincing talk upon which I am going to base the series of advertisements of which this is number one—

I want everybody in the Chicago territory to get, as I got it, the Wills Sainte Claire story at first hand—from the man who created the car.

Mr. Wills did not waste time in preliminaries. He talks like he works—straight out from the shoulder.

"The Wills Sainte Claire," he said, "is a superior car for just one reason—it is built upon an idea that is fundamentally right—

"My ambition for years has been to provide for the average successful man a motor car that would be not only a better car in point of performance—but a more permanent and profitable motoring investment—

"A car that would last longer, be more economical to operate—and give better service while it was operating—

"To do this it was necessary to design a motor that was basically new. My 20 years experience in engineering and metallurgy and in the production of several million motor cars taught me that no minor changes—or refinements would do—

"My car must be a new and different car—

"Not a larger, heavier car, but smaller, lighter and finer—not more complicated but greatly simplified—not more expensive but more economical—a safer, surer, more satisfying car.

"Hence for the first time in automobile use an eight-cylinder motor with overhead valves and cams similar to those used in the finest aircraft construction.

"Hence the development of Mo-lyb-den-um steel to insure greater strength and endurance, longer life and increased safety—

"Hence scientifically developed gears instead of the stretchy, troublesome belts and chains in operating the fan and timing mechanism—

"Hence specially designed thermo-syphon cooling, doing away with leaky pumps and affording greater efficiency—

"And, as a result of these and other features, a motor of tremendous power and flexibility—quiet and velvety in its operation—extremely simple in design—every part enclosed and protected, and yet amazingly accessible—

"Combine to this the scientific distribution of weight, the unique spring suspension and external beauty of design and finish—and you have—the Wills Sainte Claire."

In the next advertisement in this series Mr. Wills will discuss other distinctive details of Wills Sainte Claire construction and what they express in terms of motoring satisfaction to the owner.

EX-CHAMPIONS FALL IN WESTERN TENNIS

CAPT. CHARLEY HOLLOCHER JUMPS THE CUBS

EDITH AND ELAINE BEATEN BY CHICK AND CAPT. CARTER

Big Gallery Follows Play in Novel Match.

BY JOE DAVIS.

Conceding their opponents half a stroke a hole, Capt. E. F. Carter of Exmoor and Chick Evans defeated Miss Edith Cummings and Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt, formerly Elaine Rosenthal, 1 up at Briergate Golf club yesterday afternoon. Although matches of this kind are common in Great Britain, they are new in this section, and much interest was manifested in the outcome, the conclusion being that the handicap was just about right, under normal conditions.

Briergate is a long course for women, measuring 6,700 yards, with a hard par of 71, which calls for a number of difficult second shots. Yesterday a stiff wind from the northeast blew across a number of the fairways, and this was much more of a handicap to the women than the men.

Benefits Caddy Fund.

Chick and the captain had a best ball of 72, one stroke over par, Miss Cummings and Mrs. Reinhardt getting 88. It might be added that much of the rough at Briergate is real rough, even allowing for the present dry spell.

The match was staged for the benefit of the Chick Evans caddy foundation fund, which was benefited to the extent of several hundred dollars.

The match got away to a fine start as all four players got par 4s at the 365 yard hole. Then at the second hole, 350 yards, the women again got par 4s, while Chick and Carter took 5s, giving the women a lead of 2 up. A par 4 by Chick at the seventh hole left the men 1 down, and then at the short eighth, 165 yards, Carter holed a twenty-five foot chip shot out of a sand trap for a birdie 2, squaring the match.

Women Take Lead.

Mrs. Reinhardt won the ninth hole through a fine approach putt which netted her a 5. At the tenth Miss Cummings holed a 12 footer for a 4 and halved with Chick, but the half stroke allowance gave the women a lead of 1 up.

The thirteenth hole, 480 yards, was featured by a birdie 4 by Miss Cummings, who made a fine drive and a great second. She half topped her approach, but holed a 50 foot putt.

Carter's fine second at the fourteenth hole, 395 yards, netted his side a win in 4 and squared the match, but the women took the lead at the fifteenth, Mrs. Reinhardt notching a 3 after a clever chip shot over a trap. The men also got 3s.

Evans won the sixteenth hole with a par 4, and again the match was square.

Carter's Four Wins Match.

Chick's sliced second, which nearly went out of bounds, put him out of the running at the seventeenth, while the women both had trouble on the drives. Evans took 6, but Carter got a par 4.

Carter's 4 at the home hole, 425 yards, won the match, although Mrs. Reinhardt's 5 foot putt for a 4 looked into the cup. Miss Cummings at times drove close to the men. The cards:

JOIE RAY WINS TWO RACES ON TRACKS IN EAST

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4.—Joie Ray of Illinois A. C., champion mile runner, defeated Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A. in a one mile race today at the Caledonian games here. In a handicap race at Woburn last week Hahn won from Ray.

Today Ray took the lead at the 200 yard mark and held it throughout with ease, finishing fifty yards ahead of Hahn, who led the rest of the field by a similar margin. The time was 4:22 1-5.

Second Victory of Day.

Newton, Mass., Aug. 4.—Joie Ray of Chicago, champion mile runner, defeated Robert Dalrymple, New England A. A. U. ten mile and cross country champion, in a special mile race here late today. The time was 4:35. Earlier in the day Ray had run at the Caledonian games in Boston. Dalrymple had a fifty-five yard handicap. Ray finished six yards ahead of the New England champion.

Molla and Helen Wills in Title Playoff Today

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, who today won the women's singles in the invitation tournament of the Seabright club, will meet Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., tomorrow at the Westchester-Biltmore Country club courts in the playoff for the New York state women's championship. The two stars were prevented by rain from playing last Sunday.

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

DAVIS CUP TENNIS.

CHICAGO followers of tennis this week will see the finals of the American zone series of Davis cup play at the South Side Tennis club, where Australian and Japanese representatives meet. Winners of this series will play France to determine the challenger for the cup held by America.

While critics incline to call the impending local match a tossup, The Wake leans toward Australia. This forecast is based on the forceful but usually steady game of Anderson, who should have recovered from his erratic streak against Hawaii, and the brilliance of Hawkes.

Japanese experts have been noted for their steadiness and "gets" rather than for speed. It has seemed to us that a fast forcing attack would prevail against them. We think the men from the antipodes will show it.

Shimizu has improved greatly since his last Davis cup play. Fukuda is a newcomer of great promise, but lacking experience in title play of this importance. Kashio, when last we saw him, was not as good as Shimizu.

Australia for years has produced great tennis players. It reached the finals last year with neither Anderson nor Hawkes on the squad.

Japan did not participate last year. Its best players, in the past, have obtained their experience in tournament play in this country. Adopting an occidental sport, they deserve great credit for their showings.

Thrashin' Time Back Home.

It's thrashin' time on the Brandywine,
I can hear the reapers hum
And the welcome yell, as the shadows tell
That quittin' time has come.
I can see the trough where the boys "wash off,"
And the gourd on the spring house wall,
Where they quench their thirst till the buttons burst
As they wait for the supper call.
I long tonight for a table white
With honey in the comb,
And the pies and cakes my mother bakes
When it's thrashin' time back home.

Oh, the boundless joy of the farmer boy
Who sings as he tosses high
The golden yield of the harvest field
And pities you and I.
In the endless strife of our city life,
What a privilege it would be
To stand once more by the granary door
And watch the wheat flow free.
I've wandered far, but the evening star
Seems to bid me, "Cease to roam.
They're waitin' there, by a vacant chair,
And it's thrashin' time back home."

WRITES NOTE TO KILLEFER AND LEAVES CHICAGO

Too Ill to Do Self Justice, Is Explanation.

DOCTOR SAYS LAY OFF

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 4.—Charles Hollocher, shortstop and captain of the Chicago Nationals, told an Associated Press correspondent here tonight that his decision to remain out of the game for the rest of the season was made upon advice of a physician who had been treating him for a stomach aliment. Hollocher arrived here with his family today, but was undecided whether he would remain here.

Charley Hollocher has jumped the Cubs. The captain and shortstop of the north side team departed with his family for his home in St. Louis Friday night without consulting any of the officials of the Cubs about the move.

Hollocher complained of being ill ever since an attack of flu which he contracted during the winter. During the training season Hollocher deserted the team at the Catalina Island camp and returned to St. Louis, declaring that he was unable to play because of an attack of stomach trouble.

For more than a month after the opening of the season Hollocher remained at home. Then, after rejoining the club at New York, he was out of ball games off and on, declaring that his stomach still was bothering him.

Specialists and the club physicians failed to find anything radically wrong with Hollocher after a series of examinations. When the Cubs returned to Chicago after their last eastern trip, Hollocher again complained of being ill and declared he was not able to play.

Says Good Luck.

Yesterday Manager Bill Killefer received the following note on his arrival at the ball park:

"Dear Bill—Tried to see you at the clubhouse this afternoon [there was no game yesterday, because of the President's death] but guess I missed you. Feeling pretty rotten, so made up my mind to go home and take a rest and forget baseball for the rest of this year. No hard feelings, just didn't feel like playing any more. Good luck.

As ever, HOLLY."

Hollocher came to the Cubs in 1919 and was reputed to be one of the highest salaried men of the club. He never was a holdout for more salary.

President Veeck refused to comment yesterday as to what would be done with him. Adams and Kelleher will continue to fill in at shortstop and Oscar Ray Grimes, first sacker, will act as field captain of the team.

Voluntary Retirement.

Hollocher's desertion of the club comes under the regulation of voluntary retirement with no penalty attached, provided the shortstop applies to Commissioner K. M. Landis. He also will be reinstated immediately by the commissioner if he has asked retirement in the regulation manner.

Reports from St. Louis last night stated that Hollocher was at his home and that he declared that he had retired from the game on the advice of a physician who recommended complete rest. Hollocher is reported to have stated that he was not playing the game the way he wanted, and decided that a complete rest was the only thing to bring about a recovery.

Says He Informed Club.

He also was reported to have announced that he had informed the team management two days before leaving Chicago of his intention to return to St. Louis and stay out of baseball for the rest of the season, and that he regarded the note he left behind him as only a formal announcement of the step he had taken.

The Cubs yesterday announced the signing of Raymond Pierce, left handed pitcher of Topeka, Kas., club of the Southwestern league. Pierce is a product of the semi-pro lots of Kansas City, is 23 years old, and will report to the Cubs at the close of the Southwestern league season this fall.

FIRPO AND BAG OF COIN GREETED IN KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—A big, powerful looking chap, with black, piercing eyes, black hair, and a serious expression on his swarthy countenance, stepped up to the treasurer of the People's Trust company early today and placed a heavy traveling bag on the banker's desk. Turning, he motioned to a companion.

The companion came forward and said, in good English, "You will kindly make out a draft for $5,000, made payable to Luis Angel Firpo. The money for the draft will be found in the grip."

Firpo was accompanied here by Hughey Gartland, partner of Billy McCarney of New York, and G. Widmer, interpreter. The party arrived early in the morning and spent a couple of hours here. Part of their stay was to get the bills into a bank and obtain a draft, which now is on its way to South America.

REYNOLDS TEAM TOPS POLO FIELD IN ROUND ROBIN

A round robin polo match, with three teams in competition, was yesterday afternoon's feature at Onwentsia. Capt. Reynolds' team, comprising two men from Onwentsia and two from Grasmere farm, took high honors with 14 goals. Fort Sheridan was second in the running, with 8 counters, while the Onwentsia team tallied 5 markers. Following is a scoring résumé of the afternoon's play:

	Onwentsia-Grasmere [14]	Fort Sheridan [8]	Onwentsia [5]
No. 1	Fifield	Jones	Bader
No. 2	Blair	Smith	Breese

STRIKE HOLDS UP SAILING OF POLO PONIES TO U. S.

New York, Aug. 4.—The opening of matches between the army polo teams of England and America, scheduled to be played Sept. 3 to 8 at Meadowbrook and Philadelphia, will be delayed, it was announced today, because the London dock workers' strike has interfered with the sailing of the steamship Menominee, with ponies of the British team.

The Menominee also will carry Count de Madre's "Tigers" from India, and the team of the Hurlingham club. In all, seventy-five polo ponies, probably the most valuable pony flesh in the world, will cross the Atlantic.

Dempsey Eyes His New Camp.

White Sulphur Springs, Saratoga Lake, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Jack Dempsey established training quarters here tonight in preparation for his Sept. 14 match with Luis Firpo. Dempsey, with Jack Kearns, his manager, spent the afternoon at the Saratoga Springs track and came out to look over the quarters in the evening.

"This is great," said Jack, bounding out of his car at the hotel. "When do we eat?" then he trotted down to look over the training ring, erected midway between the shore of Saratoga lake and the state highway, hustled over to Fern lodge, his home for a month, and then back to the hotel for supper.

Among the first to greet the white heavyweight champion was Pancho Villa, flyweight champion.

Cubs In and Outers as They Split Twin Bills With Robins

BY FRANK SCHREIBER.

Killefer's youthful Cubs were in and outers yesterday in the double header with Brooklyn at the north side lot. After dropping the first game of the afternoon and making themselves more or less the victims of bad play, 7 to 3, the Bears came back and stood the Robins off for a shutout, the final figures being 3 to 0.

Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, rated as the fastest hurler in the league, hung up his eighth straight victory at the expense of the Cubs in the opener. Vance had the Bears in hand for the route and his mates made things easy for Arthur by putting over a four run rally in the sixth inning. Seven lean singles were all the bears could get off Vance's fast ball.

Tony Is Wild.

It was the third straight defeat for Tony Kaufmann. Tony started like a whirlwind and heaved great ball for five innings. But in the sixth Tony slipped, and then fell, and the Robins crowned his offerings for four runs. It was the old home run ball that sent two of the four markers over, but it was bases on balls that started the trouble.

Bailey walked to open the inning, and Tom Griffith smashed a home run into the right field stand. That upset Kaufmann, who had a one run lead at the time, and he walked Fournier. Bert Griffith singled and Deberry tripled, to score two more runs. In the seventh, French singled and Bailey walked, and when Sparky Adams heaved wildly on a force play, French paraded home.

Fournier Hits Homer.

Fournier sank a home run into the right field stand in the eighth, while in the ninth Kaufmann passed Bailey and Johnston after two were out, and Tom Griffith singled the final tally over. Although the Cubs had managed to pick up a brace of markers in the seventh off Vance, they were checked out of the picture by a double play in the eighth and couldn't get the ball out of the infield in the ninth.

The story of the second game is a story of fine pitching by Big Hearted Ernie Osborne, and some brilliant fielding by the rest of the Cub gang. Ernie held the Robins to six hits and only two of the Brooklyn gang reached third base. Bases on balls had Ernie wabbling in the first and ninth innings, but each time he pulled through without being scored on.

Big Fourth Inning.

Burleigh Grimes, star spitballer of Uncle Robbie's staff, also pitched a great game, faltering long enough in the fourth inning for the Bears to gather their three runs, but coming through after that and shutting the locals out. In that fatal fourth, Miller and Statz tore off triples, Adams and Heathcote singled, and Elliott drove one run across with a sacrifice fly.

All told, eleven safe blows were registered off Grimes by the Bears. Statz and Adams led the field, each getting three, Arnold turning in a single, double and triple, while Sparky had three single base blows.

Frequent jangles with Umpire Finneran occurred between both the players and the 18,000 fans during the afternoon. Finneran worked behind the plate in the opening contest, and had both Vance and Kaufmann yelling in disgust. On the bases in the nightcap, he gave a couple of decisions that were torrid, and drew the players around him in a swarm.

The Question.

From newspaper accounts of Luis Firpo's ability as a boxer, what do you think of his chances against Jack Dempsey?

Where Asked.

Madison street at Dearborn.

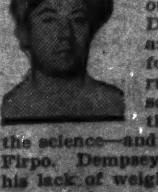
The Answers.

Edward A. Kelly, 1535 West 79th street, real estate broker—Well, I don't think very much of his chances, to tell you the truth about him. I follow the game pretty closely. Now, this fight, to simmer it down and study it out right down to a fraction, I don't believe Firpo has a chance.

P. F. O'Brien, 153 West Chestnut street, bank clerk—If you care for an amateur's opinion, I don't believe Firpo has any chance against Dempsey at present—except that a big man of his power to assimilate punishment, and through sheer luck or through error on the part of his opponent, has, of course, a possible chance to slip over a haymaker.

Victor G. Kaufman, 2323 North Kedzie boulevard, chemist—According to my way of thinking, judging from newspaper accounts, I believe Firpo has a very good chance of winning. He gives every indication of a champion in the making, and the coming fight against Dempsey will be the making. Dempsey has reached the zenith of his powers. Anyhow, I am for Firpo.

Bobbie Goldman, 802 South Marshfield avenue, bond clerk—I think the Firpo-Dempsey fight will be a gigantic twentieth century comedy-farce. It will be like putting Man o' War against some horse that's pulling a milk wagon—that's how they compare. Firpo has got to improve at least 1,000 per cent before he can hope to see Dempsey lying on the floor taking the ten counts.



Sol Rubenstein, 1104 Hamilton avenue, electrician—I think Firpo will hold out five or six rounds. Dempsey is too fast, and he knows too much for him. Firpo has ruggedness, minus the science; Dempsey has the ruggedness and the science—and that's what will beat Firpo. Dempsey will compensate for his lack of weight by his science and his experience.

BY HUGH FULLERTON.

Walter Wesbrook of Detroit defeated Walter Hayes, the perennial western championship contender, in the semifinals of the western tennis title tournament on the hard courts at the South Side Tennis club yesterday, after a bitter struggle.

Hayes, fighting for his third leg on the championship, and playing some of the greatest tennis in his career, fell after three and a half hours of battle waged through five sets had both contestants wobbling from weariness. Hayes came so close to staging a great comeback that only a break in the sixth game of the fifth set smashed his prospects.

In that round, with a brilliant rally, Wesbrook made a marvelous get, a seemingly impossible shot which turned the tide of battle. The count by sets was 6—4, 6—3, 4—6, 7—9, 6—3.

Close All the Way.

The closeness of the match cannot be judged by the score in sets, but better by the detailed analysis of strokes, which follows:

	Nets.	Outs.	Placements.	Aces.	Double Faults.
Hayes	75	68	40	3	2
Wesbrook	54	62	36	4	6

Wesbrook started as if to sweep the courts and in spite of Hayes' stubborn defense took the first two sets handily. His speedy service and his forecourt rushing stopped Hayes, and Wesbrook had little trouble with the latter's service. Hayes rallied tremendously in the third set, which gave the gallery of 3,000 their thrill of the week.

Wesbrook's Great Rally.

Rushing to the net and fighting hard, he carried the game to deuce, fought Hayes off his feet and, after deuce in points a number of times he took the game. Then he broke through Hayes' service and on a love game and in a fierce fight in the ninth game, he won after Hayes had reached set point four times. In the tenth game, another deuce affair, after having been within one stroke of the set eleven times, Hayes finally triumphed over the fighting little Michigander, and took the set, 6—4.

They came back after the rest with Wesbrook strong favorite, but neither seemed able to win his own service, and every game was a fight. The third game went to deuce five times and in the eighth game Wesbrook appeared to be weakening and Hayes led. Wesbrook took the tenth and twelfth games and evened the score.

Breaks Favor Hayes.

Hayes by two great breaks of luck, on a ball that struck the net and rolled over, and a lob which blew back in the rising wind and hit the back line, won, and then took the set game after a hard fight. Each continued to lose his own service and Wesbrook had lost all his drive, while Hayes, cold and determined, was hitting harder in the fifth set. That brilliant shot in the sixth game turned the tide and Hayes faded while Wesbrook, rallying his strength, went through to victory.

In the women's finals for the championship, Mrs. A. F. Riese of Saginaw, Mich., won the western title from Miss Marion Leighton, 6—1, 7—5, overthrowing the Chicago star after a hard fight. Mrs. Riese played brilliantly through the entire match. Her speed and her driving were too much to withstand.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Clifford Happenny, the young collegian, developed a weakness on popups today, and distressing things occurred. He muffed two of them in the early innings, and gave the Red Sox such a flying start that they rolled up a lop sided victory over the pale hose in the final of the series. The count was 8 to 1, and until two were defunct in the ninth, the Gleasons didn't even have that lone tally to their credit.

Although Happenny's misdeeds were costly, the Chicagoans probably would have been trimmed nevertheless, for the simple reason that Howard Ehmke opposed them. The tall boy lobbed up his slow ball time and again, occasionally mixing in a fast one or a hook, and the invaders were not much better than helpless. Six safeties was the extent of their damage.

Happenny Taken Ill.

Possibly the miserable showing of the pale hose can be excused by the fact that they played half the battle with a mangled lineup. In the fifth, after slapping a double to right, Happenny became ill and had to desist from further toil. With no extra infielders available, Gleason had to send Elsh to the outfield and switch Mostil from center to short. No team can play ball with a balled up lineup such as that.

Gleason's hurling burden was shared by Gorham Leverett and Ted Blankenship. The former was on the job until the end of the fifth, and by that time the Red Sox had blown themselves to seven runs and eight hits. Blankenship fared better, although he was hit hard. Out of eleven hits unloaded against the pair eight were doubles, proving that if a pitcher can't throw up something besides fast balls the enemy batters will knock down the fences with their drives.

Collins Steals Thirtieth Base.

As an indication of the efficient manner in which Ehmke toiled, let it be said that in only one inning did the Chisox manage more than a solitary single. This occurred in the fifth, when Mostil opened with a single but died trying to coin it into a two bagger. Then Eddie Collins followed with a safe blow, and as Sheely fanned the captain stole his thirtieth base of the season. Falk drew a life on an error, after which Kamm struck out. The run in the ninth was produced on one hit, because Graham delivered it in the wake of an error and Falk's steal of second.

Happenny's first blunder happened in the second, when he dropped Burns' popup for two bases. Harris singled to the run. In the next inning with a man on and none dead Happenny slipped up on Devormer, and a single by Burns and double by Reichle counted three.

Mayor Dever Sees Game.

Three more scored in the fifth after Mostil's bad throw had lost a chance to retire the side. Two baggers by Burns, Harris, and Shanks were the contributing factors. Two more doubles off Blankenship in the sixth counted the last hostile run.

Among those present at the game was Mayor William E. Dever of Chicago. Paul Castner, the Notre Dame athlete, who is a left handed pitcher, joined the Gleasons today.

BRAVES BEAT CARDS TWICE.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 4.—Boston took both games from the Cardinals today, 4 to 2, and 7 to 6 in eleven innings. A home run by Southworth in the final inning annexed the second game for the Braves. The Cardinals had gained an early lead but were unable to retain it.

The first contest was decided in the opening inning when the visitors scored all their runs on six straight singles and a wild pitch, before a man was retired. Kopshaw, a young catcher, obtained recently from the Appalachian league, made his first appearance in the second game and broke into the hit column with a two base hit. Score:

MACKS LOSE TWELFTH STRAIGHT TO TIGERS

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 4.—Athletics lost their twelfth straight game today, when Detroit won the first of a scheduled double header, 14 to 4. Rain fell during the latter part of the game and the second contest was postponed. Late in the game Manager Mack sent Wood, formerly of Tulane university, to second base, and Rowland, from Rocky Mount, N. C., took Perkins' place behind the bat.

The big thrill of the game was a triple play by the Athletics in the third inning. With Blue on second and Jones on first, Cobb lined to Galloway, who threw to Scheer, getting Blue off second. Scheer relayed the ball to Hauser, nipping Jones. Score:

BUFFALO COPPER WINS NATIONAL ROWING CROWN

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 4.—[By Associated Press.]—Edward McGuire, a big, strapping policeman from Buffalo, N. Y., wearing the colors of the Mutual Rowing club, today won the national single scull championship at the fifty-first annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen on the Patapsco river here.

Hilton Belyea, who lost the Canadian championship last Saturday, was second, and Paul V. Costello, the defending champion, third.

Victory Big Upset.

The policeman's victory was the second surprise he sprung on the thousands of spectators who lined both sides of the course, for in winning the association single sculls event in the morning to qualify for the championship race he defeated two oarsmen who were favorites over him.

Before the race every one had conceded it to either W. E. Garrett Gilmore of Philadelphia, who defeated Belyea and Costello at the Canadian regatta last week, or Granville Gude, the youngster from the Potomac Boat club of Washington. McGuire's victory was a startling upset.

Wins By Two Lengths.

Belyea made a splendid effort to overcome the new champion over the choppy mile and a quarter stretch, but McGuire always had something in reserve and finished fresh in the championship singles. Costello, the defeated champ, finished eight lengths behind the leader, who had an advantage of two lengths over the Canadian.

Team honors went to the Duluth Boat club, which, although losing the senior eight oared race to the Undine Barge club of Philadelphia, scored enough points to retain the Barnes trophy, emblematic of the senior championship, which the Minnesotans have held for ten years. In the senior eight race, the Undine outfit won by 4-5 of a second from Duluth, West Philadelphia Boat club being third and New York Athletic club crew No. 2, fourth.

For the first time in the history of the regatta, all the events were rowed in one day. Summaries:

MOLLA BEATS BRITISH CHAMP AT SEABRIGHT

Seabright, N. J., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—A second Seabright bowl went outright today when Mrs. Molla Mallory, the national woman's lawn tennis champion, defeated Mrs. R. C. Clayton of England, British covered court champion, in the final round of the women's singles in the annual invitation tournament of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket club.

The American woman won in a convincing fashion as she defeated Miss Kathleen McKane on Friday, taking the match in straight sets at 6—2, 6—3 in 30 minutes of actual playing time. This was the third successive victory for the champion and gave her permanent possession of the women's bowl.

Save for an occasional instance in which Mrs. Mallory was drawn forward by her opponent's shortened strokes, the final of the women's singles was entirely a baseline duel.

Molla Plays Steady Game.

Mrs. Mallory was the steadier of the two, being guilty of only 30 errors to Mrs. Clayton's 41, and made six more earned points than the English woman.

It was spectacular tennis that the two women played. Each drove with uncompromising severity at all stages of the match, shooting the ball deep to the alternating corners with crossing shots that kept both continually on the run. Mrs. Clayton's timing of her strokes was beautiful to watch and only Mrs. Mallory's quickness to anticipate saved her again and again.

Johnston-Griffin Win.

In the finals of the men's doubles, William M. Johnston and Clarence J. Griffin, former national doubles champions, defeated Watson M. Washburn and R. Norris Williams II., former Davis cup pair, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, 4—6, 7—5, in a spirited match. The contest was another fight between east and west, with the west emerging victorious. In the first part of the match the western pair outplayed their rivals by their net attacks. In the third set Johnston camped at the net, playing the ball in sensational form and often covering up for his partner.

Miss Kathleen McKane, British women's champion, and Mrs. Nancy Covell of England defeated their countrywomen, Mrs. Geraldine Beamish and Mrs. R. C. Clayton, in the final round of the women's doubles, 6—1, 6—1.

GOLFERS REQUESTED NOT TO PLAY DAY OF PRESIDENT'S FUNERAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—The executive committee of the U. S. Golf association, of which President Harding was an honorary member, today requested all golfers throughout the country to refrain from play Friday during the funeral services for the late President at Washington.

New York, Aug. 4.—The New York state athletic commission today directed that all boxing contests in the state scheduled on the day of the funeral services at Washington for the late President Harding be postponed.

Auburn, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Secretary John H. Farrell of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minor leagues) today announced that the association had decreed that all games in minor baseball be suspended on the day of President Harding's funeral and that all flags at the baseball fields be displayed at half-staff until after the funeral. The minor leagues' group covers about twenty-five leagues and 200 baseball teams in all parts of the United States, Canada, and Mexico.

FRENCH TEAM STARTS FOR U. S. DAVIS CUP PLAY

PARIS, Aug. 4.—[Associated Press.]—The French Davis cup team which will compete in the finals in the United States left Paris today en route for America. The team was depleted by the inability of Jean Borotra to make the trip because of business. The team now comprises only Rene Lacoste and Jacques Brugnon, with a substitute in the person of Hirsch, who was runner up to Lacoste for the French singles championship this spring. The team is captained by Allen H. Muhr of the French Olympic committee.

Pal Moran 7-5 Favorite Over Bernstein in Bout

New York, Aug. 4.—Pal Moran is a slight favorite over Jack Bernstein in their ten round battle at the Velodrome next Wednesday night, the layers of odds around sporting circles quoting 7 to 5 that the New Orleans lad will get the verdict.

GOOZEMAN TO BOX DUNDEE.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 4.—Ernie Goozeman, Milwaukee, and Mike Dundee, Rock Island, featherweight boxers, today were matched to meet in a ten round bout in Milwaukee on Aug. 14. Eddie Boehme, Milwaukee, and Eddie Barr, Pittsburgh, lightweights, will furnish the other half of a double windup.

AUSSIES WAIT ARRIVAL OF JAP NET ARTISTS

TILDEN, ALONSO HERE

TENNIS CHAMPION WILLIAM TILDEN and the Spanish star, Manuel Alonso, passed through Chicago yesterday en route from California to Philadelphia. They were met by President J. C. Stewart of the Western Lawn Tennis association, and assured him that they would return to Chicago to play an exhibition match during the Australia-Japan Davis cup series scheduled here on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Tilden will arrive here Thursday again.

Alonso is entered in the important eastern tournament at Southampton, N. Y., but in case his elimination occurs in that event, will return here to play before the local Davis cup galleries.

Tilden and Alonso will play a singles match here on Saturday, following the Australia-Japan Davis cup doubles, if the Spaniard can make his return in time. At the last appearance of the two world stars here Alonso defeated Tilden in the Illinois state finals at Skokie Country club.

Australia's Davis cup team put in a hard day of practice at the South Side Tennis club grass courts yesterday. The Aussies are in magnificent condition and are awaiting the arrival of the Japanese Davis cup team this morning, with interest.

Yesterday Capt. Anderson and Schlesinger played Hawkes and McInnes doubles in the morning. McInnes appears to be one of the best players the antipodes have sent over in years. In the afternoon Anderson and Schlesinger played against each other in singles, while McInnes and Hawkes fought it out on the grass courts.

Reserved seats for the Davis cup preliminaries were placed on sale during the day, and a rush was made to secure the best locations. The demand for seats to the Aussies-Jap match on Friday, Saturday and Sunday indicates that the greatest crowd that ever attended a western tennis event will be present next week.

Former I. A. C. Swimmer Wins Metropolitan Title

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Ranger Mills, former Illinois A. C. swimmer, who now sports the Mercury Foot of the New York A. C., captured the Metropolitan A. A. U. men's senior swimming championship today in the annual title race conducted under auspices of the New York A. C., in Travers Island creek.

FOUR GIRL STARS TO DIVE IN TRIB WATER CARNIVAL

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Algina Ortlepp of the Illinois A. C., Eleanor Eberle of Bellfuss natatorium, H. Walters of Peoria, and June Epperson of Sinai Social center have been selected to give diving exhibitions in connection with the second annual water carnival of THE TRIBUNE A. A. in Lincoln park on Aug. 18 and 19.

The men chosen to dive from the twenty-seven foot tower are Rose and Porter of the Illinois A. C. and Billy Heyn and Gordon Garveth of the Chicago A. A. In addition to diving from the top of the tower the men will give exhibitions from the ten and sixteen foot heights, the same distance from the water from which the women will perform.

Diving Favorite Event.

Diving is one of the most spectacular of aquatic events. The dives are made in plain sight of the spectators, and, unlike swimming races, in which few know who the contestants are, the divers are in full view until they strike the water. The men will perform all dives known to the art from the various heights, while the women will confine their efforts to the compulsory dives of A. A. U. competition.

These experts will give exhibitions during the afternoon. Each will be rewarded with a TRIBUNE gold medal, and those who have never seen such performances will be given a rare treat. Like the other features of the carnival which is being staged for the amusement of Chicago's public, no admission will be charged and the diving will take place in a deep spot of the lagoon where the high bridge used to be.

Great Lakes Cutter Entered.

Addition of Great Lakes to the cutter race will result in an interesting three cornered struggle with crews of Culver Military academy and the Illinois naval reserves. Capt. Waldo Evans, commandant at Great Lakes, has graciously tendered the use of a cutter to the Culver boys, while the reserves will use one of their own boats. The three boats will be seen on the water on Aug. 18, when they will pull over the course in practice.

Culver, which meets the Lincoln Boat club in the eight oared race, feature of the program, will bring its own shell, although the cadets were tendered the use of a Lincoln park shell by Capt. Albert Palm. According to Coach Fowler of the Culver eight, he is anxious to have his boys make a strong showing, and he believes they can do this by having a shell they are accustomed to using. The Culver eight will be on the water for practice spins on Aug. 18 at the latest.

Peoria Crews to Race.

Single, double and four oared crews of the Illinois Valley Yacht and Canoe club of Peoria, which will meet Lincoln park in a dual regatta, will arrive a day in advance, according to Commodore Dick Daniels. Like other oarsmen, the Peorians want to get accustomed to the course and learn a few things about whatever currents are in the lagoon.

Aug. 18 will be devoted entirely to elimination in the canoe races. These contests will consist of a single, double and four. In the preliminary races, the number to qualify in each race will be reduced to four for the final on the following day. A trophy will be given to the club whose canoeists score the greatest number of points on a basis of 5 for first, 3 for second and 1 for third. Winners of first, second and third places will be given gold, silver and bronze TRIBUNE medals, respectively.

All visiting oarsmen will be quartered at the Parkway hotel, which is within easy walking distance of the course.

EVANSTON TEAM WINS NET TITLE ON NORTH SHORE

By virtue of a default in all matches by Onwentsia yesterday afternoon, Evanston Country club's team took the league championship in the North Shore Tennis league. The Evanston netsters had dropped but two matches in the entire play during the last seven weeks. Maurice and Hubert James, Paul Rogers and Henry Raeder are the team members, with Walter Wing as alternate. A large silver loving cup is the trophy for the Evanstonians.

Bethany Baptist was a shade better at slugging than Trinity yesterday in a Church league game and took a 12 to 9 decision. McDonald and German both hit homers.

TOWN, GOWN CLASH IN EVANSTON CARNIVAL

Town and Gown clashed in marine and land combat yesterday afternoon, when Tom Robinson's annual carnival of sports was held at Patton gymnasium in Evanston. Swimming events were conducted in Lake Michigan, and the track events on the cinder track outside the gym. An indoor baseball game in which the Evanston Rotarians defeated the Kiwanians, was one feature, while a volley ball game between faculty and student teams was another occasion to wind up the program. The students were victorious.

Swimming events and a track program were arranged for contestants of all ages. A crowd of several hundred watched the events from the shore line and the embankment above the track. Summaries:

FINALS IN STATE BIKE TRIALS TO BE HELD TODAY

Final trials to select a senior and junior racer to represent Illinois in the national bicycle championships, sponsored by The Tribune A. A. on Sept. 8 and 9 will be held over the two and one-fifth mile course in Humboldt park this morning. Riders are requested to report at Kosciuszko monument on Humboldt boulevard just south of North avenue at 8 o'clock, as the first event will start one hour later.

In addition to the Chicago riders, experts from West Frankfort and Kewanee will be on hand. The field in each division will not number more than eight and this may be reduced as the series of races are held. Armour V. Mission and Charles W. Mitchell are the riders who will compete in the senior division from West Frankfort and Kewanee will be represented by Charles Tellier.

Four Races in Each Class.

Four races in each class will be held and owing to the small field it will not be necessary to hold heats. There will be one race in each event and the winner will be credited with five points. Second place will be rewarded with three points, third place with two and fourth with one. The riders in each class having the greatest number of points will be eligible for the national championships.

In order to eliminate accidents as far as possible, a ruling has been adopted by the Amateur Bicycle League of America which will be enforced today. No silk cord tires will be permitted and all riders must use the single tube road racing tires. The same rule will apply in the nationals. This ruling not only protects the good riders who take chances with the silk cord tires but also prevents spills and consequent injury to other riders who may have chances to win the state title.

Julian T. Fitzgerald, western representative of the Amateur Bicycle League of America, who will act as starter in today's events, announced the races will be run in the following order:

Senior one-third mile, scratch.
Junior one-third mile, scratch.
Senior five miles, unpaced.
Junior, two miles, scratch.
Senior, one mile, scratch.
Junior, one-quarter mile, scratch.
Senior, ten mile, scratch.
Junior one mile, unpaced.

McComb Coöperates.

James J. McComb, new secretary of the West Chicago Park commissioners, has issued a permit for the events and intends to aid in making the national championships one of the most successful bike meets ever held in Chicago.

Arthur Gardiner, former world's sprints champion, will act as referee and Eddie Mahlke and Harry Bera will clear the course with Bob Little and Walter Simonson, the head judges.

Chicago riders eligible for the competition in the senior division are Gregory Fatow, Marquette Wheelmen A. A.; John Shiffer and Ed Walsh, Opal A. A.; and Edward Siegler of the Lincoln Park Boat club. In the junior class Alonzo Vertenten, Belgian American C. C., Stewart Platzer, Franklin Skating and A. C.; Richard Scherer, Park Ridge C. C., and Henry Ritchie, unattached, will ride for the state championship.

GIANTS SIGN TOM HART.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 4.—Tom Hart, catcher of the St. Xavier college team, this city, signed a contract today to play with the New York Giants next season.

ADD EVENTS FOR WOMEN TO A. A. U. NATIONAL GAMES

For the first time in the history of the National A. A. U. championship track and field games to be held this year under the auspices of the Illinois A. C. on Stagg field, Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2, events for women will be held and the winners of each contest will be recognized as national champions in their specialties.

Charles A. Dean, chairman of the championship committee, has announced the following events for the fair sex: 100 yard dash, 75 yard low hurdles, running high jump, and running broad jump. These events will be held on the third day of the games, when the relay championships and decathlon will be decided.

Efforts to Get Champ.

Efforts will be made to secure the entry of Miss Camile Sable of Newark, holder of a number of world's records for women. It is the intention of Chairman Dean to have Miss Sable meet Miss Helen Filkey of Blaine school in the 75 yard low hurdles. On a number of occasions Miss Filkey has bettered the easterner's marks in the low barriers. In addition to Miss Sable, efforts will be made to induce other members of the American women's team which competed in France last summer to take part in the nationals. Entry blanks have been sent to all the leading women's athletic clubs.

Addition of the four women's events will add considerable interest to the games, according to Chairman Dean, who has been urged to encourage track and field athletics among the women by local enthusiasts. The four events are expected to attract a large entry from Chicago where some starling performers are being developed in the playgrounds and public parks. Entries close with C. A. Dean, 112 South Michigan avenue, on Aug. 20.

Proceeds to Olympics.

World's and American record holders, together with intercollegiate champions, will compete in the junior and senior championships for men. Coaches of the various club aggregations have started their athletes to train with the result teams will be selected in the near future and the athletes sent to Chicago a few days in advance to work out on the track and test the jumping takeoffs.

Assurances have been received from the leading athletic club coaches of the country they will send full teams, with the result the fight for team honors will be about as keen as ever took place in this event. Tickets will be placed on sale next week, and all proceeds will go into a fund to help send the American team to the Olympic games in France next summer.

LOCAL WALTONS LEAD IN PRIZE FISHING CONTEST

According to a dispatch from the judges' headquarters of the Field and Stream fishing contest, a nationally known annual event for fishermen, Chicago anglers are making remarkable catches and lead in several divisions.

George P. Stevens is in the van on muskies, his catch weighing 37 pounds 8 ounces, being 54 inches in length and 23½ inches in girth. This remarkable catch was taken from Pickerel lake, Wisconsin. The woman's division is headed by Mrs. Agnes Lamourex of Chicago. On July 4 she captured a muskie weighing 29 pounds, 48 inches long and 20 inches in girth. Mrs. Lamourex caught his big beauty in Little Arbor Vitae lake, Wisconsin.

Illinois is well represented with contestants. Charles V. Mutcheler has put Oak Park on the fishing map with his catch of a wall eyed pike weighing 12 pounds 8 ounces, 29 inches long, and 17½ inches in girth. He caught this on June 17 in Fish Trap lake, Wisconsin, and is in the van.

There can be no doubting the authenticity of these various catches in view of the fact that they have been sworn to before a notary public and in each instance witnessed by two or more persons.

I. A. C. AND IOWA RELAY MEN MAY RUN IN GOTHAM

Announcement that the Wilco A. A. of New York has extended invitations to the four mile relay team of the Illinois A. C. and the one mile relay quartet of the University of Iowa to compete in the two feature relay races at the pre-Olympic games of that organization at the Yankee stadium on Sept. 8 means that, if these great combinations accept, and it is confidently expected that they will, Gotham track fans are assured of witnessing the breaking of two world's records.

Opposed to these two teams will be two combinations composed of four of the best milers and four of the best runners of the east. The records that are in danger when the runners of the west meet the runners of the east are the 1,600 meters, one mile and four mile relay records.

WHERE MAROONS MEET ORANGE AND BLUE

Airplane view from a height of 1,100 feet of the new Illinois Memorial stadium at Urbana. The stadium will contain 56,000 seats, 20,000 of which have already been completed. Barring strikes or other unforeseen circumstances, the huge structure will be all ready for the Chicago-Illinois football game scheduled for Nov. 3.

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 4.—Work is being speeded along on the University of Illinois memorial stadium these days. The concrete for more than 20,000 seats has been poured and there are three months left in which to complete the rest of the 56,000 seats in time for the opening on Nov. 3, when Chicago and Illinois play football.

The playing field is sodded and is being carefuly nourished by a deluge of water all night by a big oscillating system. Two acres of fine blue grass were transplanted and the field should be in excellent condition for the tread of the Illini and Maroons.

Within a short time all the concrete for the seats on the main deck will be poured and then the workmen will move to the balcony. Underneath the big stands carpenters are building the forms for the ramps which will carry the throngs to the openings in the main deck.

Brick and stone masons are rapidly erecting the ramp towers which will contain the passages which will lead to the balcony.

The clip which construction is making means an expenditure of more than $100,000 a month and the stadium committee will strive hard to speed up collections from subscribers, in order to be able to meet these big bills. The great structure will cost about $1,700,000.

YOUNG COPS OUT FOR TITLES IN FIELD MEET

Chicago's police track and field champions of 1922 are taking strenuous workouts these days, preparing themselves for the battle to retain their titles at the second annual Police field day, in Grant park Sept. 8 and 9, for the benefit of the Policemen's Benevolent association, which cares for the widows and orphans of policemen.

Headed by Edward B. Donovan of the 11th district, individual champion, who won the Everett C. Brown trophy, with 11¼ points, the winners of last year's prizes are training every day to compete with some of the young blood of the department who will try for athletic laurels this year for the first time. Among the topnotchers who will battle Champion Donovan are Daniel Ahearn of the 16th district, who won second place; J. G. Lynch, traffic division, who was third; Frank J. Put Track in Shape.

The men of the traffic division, which captured the mayor's team trophy, with a record of 48 points, will have to work hard to retain their position of the team champions, according to the reports that are coming into E. C. Delaporte, director of track events, and Chief Collins from the various training fields in the parks and playgrounds. The nearest rival to the traffic boys was district 11, which scored 25 points.

The track in Grant park is being put into shape for the big event, and it is planned to have at least 10,000 more seats than last year, which will give a seating capacity of about 50,000. That every one may be able to see the spectacular events, such as the mounted push ball, motorcycle football, cockade tilting, wrestling on horse back and chariot race, there will be a double performance of these features, one at the north and the other at the south end of the arena.

PRICES OF GRID GAMES AT IOWA REMAIN SAME

Iowa City, Ia., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Entrance charges at next fall's gridiron fights at Iowa field will approximate those of former years. The fee for the pre-conference games, those with Oklahoma A. and M. and with Knox college, is set at $1. To see Purdue perform will cost spectators $2.50, and for the two homecoming games the price will be $3 each time.

The official homecoming day is with Illinois, but nearly as large a crowd is expected to witness the tilt with Michigan.

PALMETTO WINS AURORA STAKE AND PAYS 10 TO 1

Aurora, Ill., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Palmetto, a long shot, as good as 10 to 1, won the seven furlong Jockey club handicap here today by a head after beating off three challengers in the run home.

Coming down the stretch Palmetto, Sun Dial II., Winnipeg, and Delante raced almost as a team, with 10,000 persons shouting madly. Sun Dial II., a stout finisher, gained slightly on Palmetto and Winnipeg ran determinedly, but neither could quite make the grade. Delante spurted in the stretch but was slowing down as he went under the wire.

The race was a hard one to figure, as four of the starters—Tuscola, Sun Dial II., Delante, and Winnipeg—had won during the week, and it was known that Winnipeg and Harry B. were dangerous contenders. The race delighted the crowd, the biggest of the week, as the horses hot-footed it all the way and the driving finish was a continuous thrill. The time was good, 1:23 4-5.

Only Two Favorites Win.

Palmetto's victory was not the only upset of the day. Only two favorites on the program won. They were Proceeds, in the third, and Woodie Montgomery, in the last race. A killing was made on Proceeds, however, as he was backed down from 3 to 1 to 6 to 5.

Victors in the other races were Querulous in the first, Paula in the second, Consort in the fourth.

The contests were the best of the week to watch, as not a one was a parade. All were marked by furious stretch drives, and in the majority the winner was decided right in front of the stands.

Local People Like Sport.

While the crowd was largely made up of Chicagoans, the countryside furnished a much larger part of the attendance than was expected on a Saturday. In the country towns, Saturday afternoon is one of the busiest days of the week, but there were several thousand from these parts at the showing today.

In the Miller stakes, Sande took Martingale into the lead and he never was menaced. Moon Raker ran second, beating Dunlin a head.

Woods and Waters by BOB BECKER

HERE AND THERE OUTDOORS.

A DAY with a guide while fishing is always an interesting experience whether the fish are bitin' or not. The other day we were taking a crack at several of the lakes in the Manitowish string near Manitowish, Wis., and old Bill Averill was our pilot. He's quite a character and if you ever fish this fine stretch of lakes you want to get Bill to take you out.

When we met him we thought he was about 50 years old. Brown as an Indian, active, handy with motor or oars, he doesn't look older than that. When he admitted that he was 77 we could hardly believe it. And Bill guides more from the sheer love of the outdoors and fishing than from necessity. That he has a real heart for the outdoors was shown after lunch. We had on hand several slices of bread and a couple of doughnuts.

"These are for the birds," said Bill and he got up to spread out the feast for them. Cutting off the tops of a couple of saplings he slipped the doughnuts over some twigs and then proceeded to arrange the bread in a similar manner. Some "bold" or chipmunk is goin' to be mighty surprised to find that kind of grub growing on trees, but that thought didn't bother Bill. He says he always feeds the birds when he's out on trips.

The muskies haven't been hittin' much in the Manitowish waters during the hot weather recently. While fishing Clear lake we could see the big fellows in the clear water, cruising around like battleships. Toss any kind of bait or lure in front of them and they merely nose it or look it over. However, a thirty pounder was landed a few days ago by using Indian tactics. A two pound sucker was used as bait and after being attached to the end of a heavy line it was turned loose. This old thirty pounder grabbed it and after a fight it was curtains for the muskie.

Reports from the lakes and streams just across the line in Canada indicate that fishing has been good in spots and off in others, just as you would expect in July. This region sees an increasing number of American fishermen every year as there is some wonderful fishing up there. Well, here's hopin' the big ones don their fightin' togs by the time we reach the Lake of the Woods this month.

This is a wilderness region for you, with miles and miles of water and acres and acres of virgin forest. With a guide a fellow could browse around in the many bays and pockets of that big lake and fish to his heart's content day after day without seeing a single soul. It would be a trip for both scenery and fishing, such as you find in the Superior National forest of Minnesota, but without the portages included in a trip through the latter.

There is a C. P. bungalow camp just out of Kenora on the shore of the lake where a fellow can outfit for a jaunt through the Lake of the Woods. And the best of it is this. If a fellow likes that region he can buy a little five acre island from the Canadian government and settle down up there. The crown guarantees the title and will sell you a five acre island for a ridiculously small sum.

DIABLO FINISHES 42 HOURS BEHIND, BUT WINS HONOLULU RACE

HONOLULU, T. H., Aug. 4.—[By Associated Press.]—The yacht Diablo, by finishing the Santa Barbara to Honolulu race last night, was declared today by Commodore A. R. Pedder of Santa Barbara to be winner of the race, although the yacht Mariner was the first to arrive from the mainland. The Mariner had an allowance of 56 minutes 56 seconds and the Diablo an allowance of 43 hours 43 minutes and 59 seconds.

Viking IV., carrying an allowance of 60 hours 20 minutes and 4 seconds, would have won if it had appeared at 7:45 o'clock this morning. The yacht Poinsetta, the scratch boat, was forced to return to the mainland after her sails were torn by a storm.

Commodore A. R. Pedder owns the Diablo and was at the wheel during a greater part of the trip. The Diablo is a Herreschoff boat, 61 feet over all. It carried a crew of five.

"TOO AWKWARD" FOR FIGHT WITH FIRPO; EVEN FOR $12,000

NEW ORLEANS, La., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Billy McCarney, matchmaker and agent of Luis Firpo, the Argentine heavyweight, has refused an offer of $12,000 to box Marty Burke, local heavyweight, fifteen rounds. Frank C. Edwards, promoter of the Coliseum, offered McCarney $12,000 for the bout. McCarney refused, saying Firpo would not fight Burke because Burke was too awkward, but that Firpo would meet Capt. Bob Roper of Chicago here if Edwards cared for the match.

AURORA FIGHTS ARE SET BACK TO THURSDAY NIGHT

Jim Mullen announced last night that in view of the fact that next Friday would be a day of mourning in memory of the late President Harding, the Aurora fights scheduled for Friday night would be moved up to Thursday night, Aug. 11.

Cowboy Padgett of Dolores, Colo., and Morrie Schlaiffer of Omaha, rough and ready welterweights who meet in the windup, will arrive in Chicago today preparatory to resuming training tomorrow at the Arcade.

This match is creating much local interest, and the early demand for tickets indicates a capacity house. Fans hereabouts have seen both Padgett and Schlaiffer in action. They saw Cowboy go ten rounds with Welterweight Champion Mickey Walker at the Coliseum last spring, and they saw Schlaiffer give the king pin of the welters a battle for six rounds at Dexter Park pavilion.

Have Met Before.

Schlaiffer and Padgett have met twice. They clashed in Denver last winter, and Padgett was given the referee's decision after twelve rounds of milling, during which first one and then the other was on the floor. They had a return match in Davenport last May, and the popular verdict went to Schlaiffer. In the latter fight both were knocked down, but neither was on the verge of being knocked out.

Science is almost foreign to both. All they know is to wade in and hit with both hands. There are times when they have no idea where the socks will land, and Friday night's bout should be a give and take affair from start to finish.

Butch Meets Flannigan.

In the eight round semi-windup George Butch and Patsy Flannigan of the Twenty-seventh Ward Democratic club will meet in a return engagement. They clashed at Aurora last Tuesday night, and Butch was given the shade. Flannigan asserted he was not in the best shape.

Another attractive match for west side fans is the eight rounder between Joe O'Hara and Jimmy Gory. Both have large followings west of the river and opinion is about equally divided. Tillie ("Kid") Herman of California and Billy Rolfe of Omaha meet in the other eight round bout.

Tickets will be placed on sale tomorrow at the usual places, and Aurora prices of $3 and $5 will prevail. Special trains will be run over the Aurora and Elgin electric.

Eddie Long, manager of Bud Taylor, expects to close a Labor day match with Harry Gordon of New York at Terre Haute early in the week. A slight hitch over terms is all that is keeping the boys apart and this is expected to be smoothed over in a day or two. Taylor and Gordon met at Aurora recently and Taylor was given the edge.

Joe Burman, who injured his right hand a couple of weeks ago in a training bout, has resumed training at the Arcade. Joe asserted his match with Joe Lynch for the bantamweight title will be held the latter part of next month as the Dempsey-Firpo match will take place on the original date set for the bantamweight championship go.

Eddie Long, manager of Sammy Mandell, the Rockford featherweight who injured his right hand at Aurora last Tuesday night in his bout with Frankie Frisco, announced his fighter's hand is badly bruised and that Mandell will be ready to box again in two weeks. This report is the result of an X-ray examination.

Soccer Vacation Is Short; Break Out in Action Today

After a short vacation the local soccer players will resume this afternoon, the Bricklayers club having arranged a seven a side contest in which nearly every major club in the city has entered a team. Play will start at 2 o'clock.

MISS SHULTS IS AGAIN CHAMPION OF COUNTY LINKS

Miss Ruth Shults of Jackson park retained the Cook county women's golf championship, scoring a comparatively easy win over Mrs. Loring Aldrich of Marquette at Jackson park yesterday afternoon, 6 and 4.

Against a fine display of golf by the champion Mrs. Aldrich was able to win only two holes, the first and twelfth. At the first hole Miss Shults was trapped and lost, 7 to 6, but for the rest of the route she was mistress of the situation, outdriving her opponent by many yards.

Miss Shults won the second, third, and fourth holes and was 2 up. They halved the next three, but the champion took the short eighth with a par 3 and, winning the ninth with a 5, was 4 up. Save for her 7 at the first hole, her round of 41 was finely made.

Three 4s in Row.

Coming home Miss Shults reeled off three 4s in a row, got a par 3 at the thirteenth, and ended the match with a fine 5 at the long fourteenth. The cards:

Miss Shults, out.....	7	4	3	4	6	4	5	3	5—41
Mrs. Aldrich, out....	6	5	5	5	6	4	5	4	6—46

HACKNEY VICTOR IN CANADIAN OPEN GOLF

Toronto, Ont., Aug. 4.—Clarence W. Hackney of Atlantic City, N. J., today won the Canadian open golf championship with 295 for seventy-two holes. His nearest rival was Tom Kerrigan, Siwanoy, Mount Vernon, N. Y., with 300. Gene Sarazen was third with 301, and Jock Hutchison, Chicago, fourth with 302. The tournament was a walkover for the Americans, all of the leading Canadian players fading from the picture in the earlier rounds.

Hackney is the fifth American to win the title. It first came to the United States in 1912, when George Sargent beat a big field with 299. The late J. Douglas Edgar of Atlanta won it in 1919 and held it in 1920. W. H. Trovinger of Birmingham, Mich., won in 1921, and Al Watrous of Radford, Mich., won in 1922. Watrous did not compete this year. Kerrigan, who finished second today, was runnerup last year.

Hackney took the lead in the play this morning, negotiating the third eighteen hole round in 74 for a total of 221. He had finished the first thirty-six holes yesterday in a tie with Laurie Ayton of Chicago, both with cards of 147.

Hackney took 75 strokes for his first eighteen yesterday, as did Ayton, and both set a new course record on the second eighteen, doing 72 each. Ayton went to pieces this morning, taking 82 to get around, and followed with an 80 on the last eighteen for a total of 309. On the last eighteen today Kerrigan equaled the course record of 72 set by Hackney and Ayton yesterday.

The leaders and scores for the four eighteen hole rounds follow:

C. Hackney, Atl. City...	75	72	74	74—295
T. Kerrigan, Mt. Vernon.	78	73	77	72—300

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

SINGLETON CARDS.

FIRST season players are usually delighted when they can lead any card from the dummy and trump in the declarer's hand. When the object of this is merely to make trumps in the declarer's hand, the play is bad at least ninety-nine times in every hundred. The same players are apt to consider a singleton in the declarer's hand as a trick, when it should be considered as an asset only in the supporting hand.

A couple of instances of play of this nature are given below:

THE HANDS.

H—K, J, 7.
C—9.
D—Q, 10, 9, 5, 3.

C—A, 7, 3, 2.
D—K, 8, 4, 2.

West secured eight tricks.

At trick two the declarer should have led the king of trumps and then another trump, winning in his own hand with the ace. After that he should have led a club, and the opponents could have made only the ace of clubs and two trump tricks. But the hand was played with the idea that ruffing in the declarer's hand would gain tricks, and it was carried to a point where north was given a beautiful opportunity at tricks seven and eight to overruff the declarer and sacrifice a sure trump trick in order to make his remaining diamonds. The game was gone in any case unless south could win a trick in the club suit, and north secured three tricks in diamonds for the one trick he lost in spades.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mr. and Mrs. A. doubled Mr. and Mrs. B and set them 400 points. Mr. A. revoked. Would Mr. and Mrs. A. be entitled to any points, or would the B.'s get the 50 penalty?

I am somewhat confused about this and would like your decision.

I. A. R.

The side that revokes cannot score except for honors held. In the above case the B.'s would score 50 and the A.'s 0.

PURPLE STANDS INADEQUATE FOR GRID FOLLOWERS

A plan for handling crowds at next fall's football games is the puzzle confronting Dana Evans, director of athletics at Northwestern university. With one of the best fields in the Big Ten conference, the Purple school has one of the smallest grand stands, with 14,000 as the capacity load in normal times. Special stands have accommodated as many as 20,000, including standing room, at two games, but indications point to larger crowds at this fall's games.

Illinois sent in a first request for 13,000 ducats for the Illini-Purple game, and followed it with a demand for 3,000 more. This not only exceeds the normal capacity of the Northwestern field, but it leaves no room for Purple fans.

Illini Coming En Masse.

Illinois plans to journey to Evanston en masse, and other conference schools will bring large crowds with their teams. In addition, Illinois as well as Big Ten followers of every school have a large alumni following in and about Chicago, who never miss a chance to see their school play the Purple or Maroons.

Director Evans has been scurrying about trying to locate a place to play the biggest games. He found that the Grant park stadium will not be ready until the season is closed. Cubs' park will seat more than Northwestern field, but it will satisfy fans who sit on but one side of the field.

To add to the difficulty, Alumni Secretary Charles Ward announced early this week that the Illinois-Northwestern game would be the homecoming contest.

No Relief in Sight.

No relief, however, is in sight for the present. When the new Alexander McKinlock campus has been completed, several years hence, a new athletic field is to be among the features, with a seating capacity to rival the Polo grounds.

First come, first served will of necessity be the rule at Northwestern field this season, and as much longer until a field is found that has an adequate seating capacity.

The Iowa game promises to be a strong drawing card. It is scheduled to close the Purple season, and if the Hawkeyes keep up their work of the last two years, tremendous crowds will journey to Evanston to see the Jonesmen in action.

DE PALMA, RESTA IN AUTO RACES AT HAWTHORNE

RALPH DE PALMA.

The six greatest drivers of racing cars ever assembled on a dirt track will roll their cars to the tape when the American Automobile association's dirt track championships are decided at the Hawthorne race track next Sunday afternoon. Composing this sextet are Ralph De Palma, Dario Resta, Louis Chevrolet, "Howdy" Wilcox, Joe Boyer, and Leon Duray.

With the eyes of the motor world following their every move they can be counted on to make every foot a battle from the drop of the flag. For the last ten years, or since the advent of the long, highly banked speedways, dirt track contests have not seen the spectacular performances of De Palma, Resta, Chevrolet, Wilcox, and the others; but the closing of several of these monster courses has put dirt track racing up to the front again, a position in which it rightfully belongs.

Chevrolet Back on Track.

It was this desire to show his real mettle as a racing driver that caused the veteran Chevrolet to hand in his entry last night. Not since his brother Gaston was killed on the Los Angeles speedway four years ago has "Louie" taken a shot at the racing game.

"But with dirt track racing it's different," he said last night. "That is a game for skill and cunning. I tired of the speedways. There it was largely a case of who had the machine that would stand up the longest. There was not the real thrill of outgeneraling an opponent, of taking just one big chance of crossing the tape first or going into the fence."

Chevrolet is as good as ever. While not competing in races, he has been continually trying out and tuning up his Frontenacs, which he designed and built, and has been driving them at greater speed and under more hazardous conditions than he would have encountered in a race.

Oldfield May Referee.

W. D. Edenburn, who represents the the A. A. A. at the Indianapolis races and who is in charge of the contests at Hawthorne, stated last night that Barney Oldfield probably would referee the races here. He has put up a silver trophy for the dirt track championship. Oldfield contends that speedway racing will soon be a thing of the past and that the dirt track contests are the only ones that show the real skill and daring of a driver.

RACES AT ROBEY TODAY

Every dirt track racing driver of importance in the midie west is entered for the third meeting at Roby speedway, 108th and Indianapolis avenue, today.

Only ten cars will be allowed to start in each of the fifteen mile events, one for heavy cars and one for Fords, the heavy entry list necessitating qualifying heats, which will start at 10 a. m. The races will start at 2:30 p. m. Paul Clancy, who cleaned up last time, is entered with his Miller Special. Ed Wenniston, hero of the race meeting in which Rance Olds lost his life, and Barney McKenna, who was disqualified when his car went into the ditch, are some of the pilots who are looked to to provide the thrills.

WORSE AND MORE OF IT.

The twelve story building next door
Is up; its bombardment is still;
The roar of the engine is o'er;
The saw and the hammer are nil;
But quiet and peace haven't lit;
I've hopped to the flame from the pan:
When the jubilant workingmen quit
The merry cliff dwellers began.

A guy with a fiddle scrapes up
A fiend with a player-piano;
A barytone (poisonous pup!)
Off-keys with a shrieking soprano;
A yowling kid's music is blent
With a symphony feline in name;
Since the Artisans' chorus has went
The chorus of Artists has came.

My nerve centers wabble and reel:
From dawn until sun-up a squall;
From dusk until twilight a squeal:
My brain and heart threaten to stall;
My slumber and rest are in rout;
A babel has followed a din;
When the Friends of Disturbance moved out
The Foes of Contentment moved in.

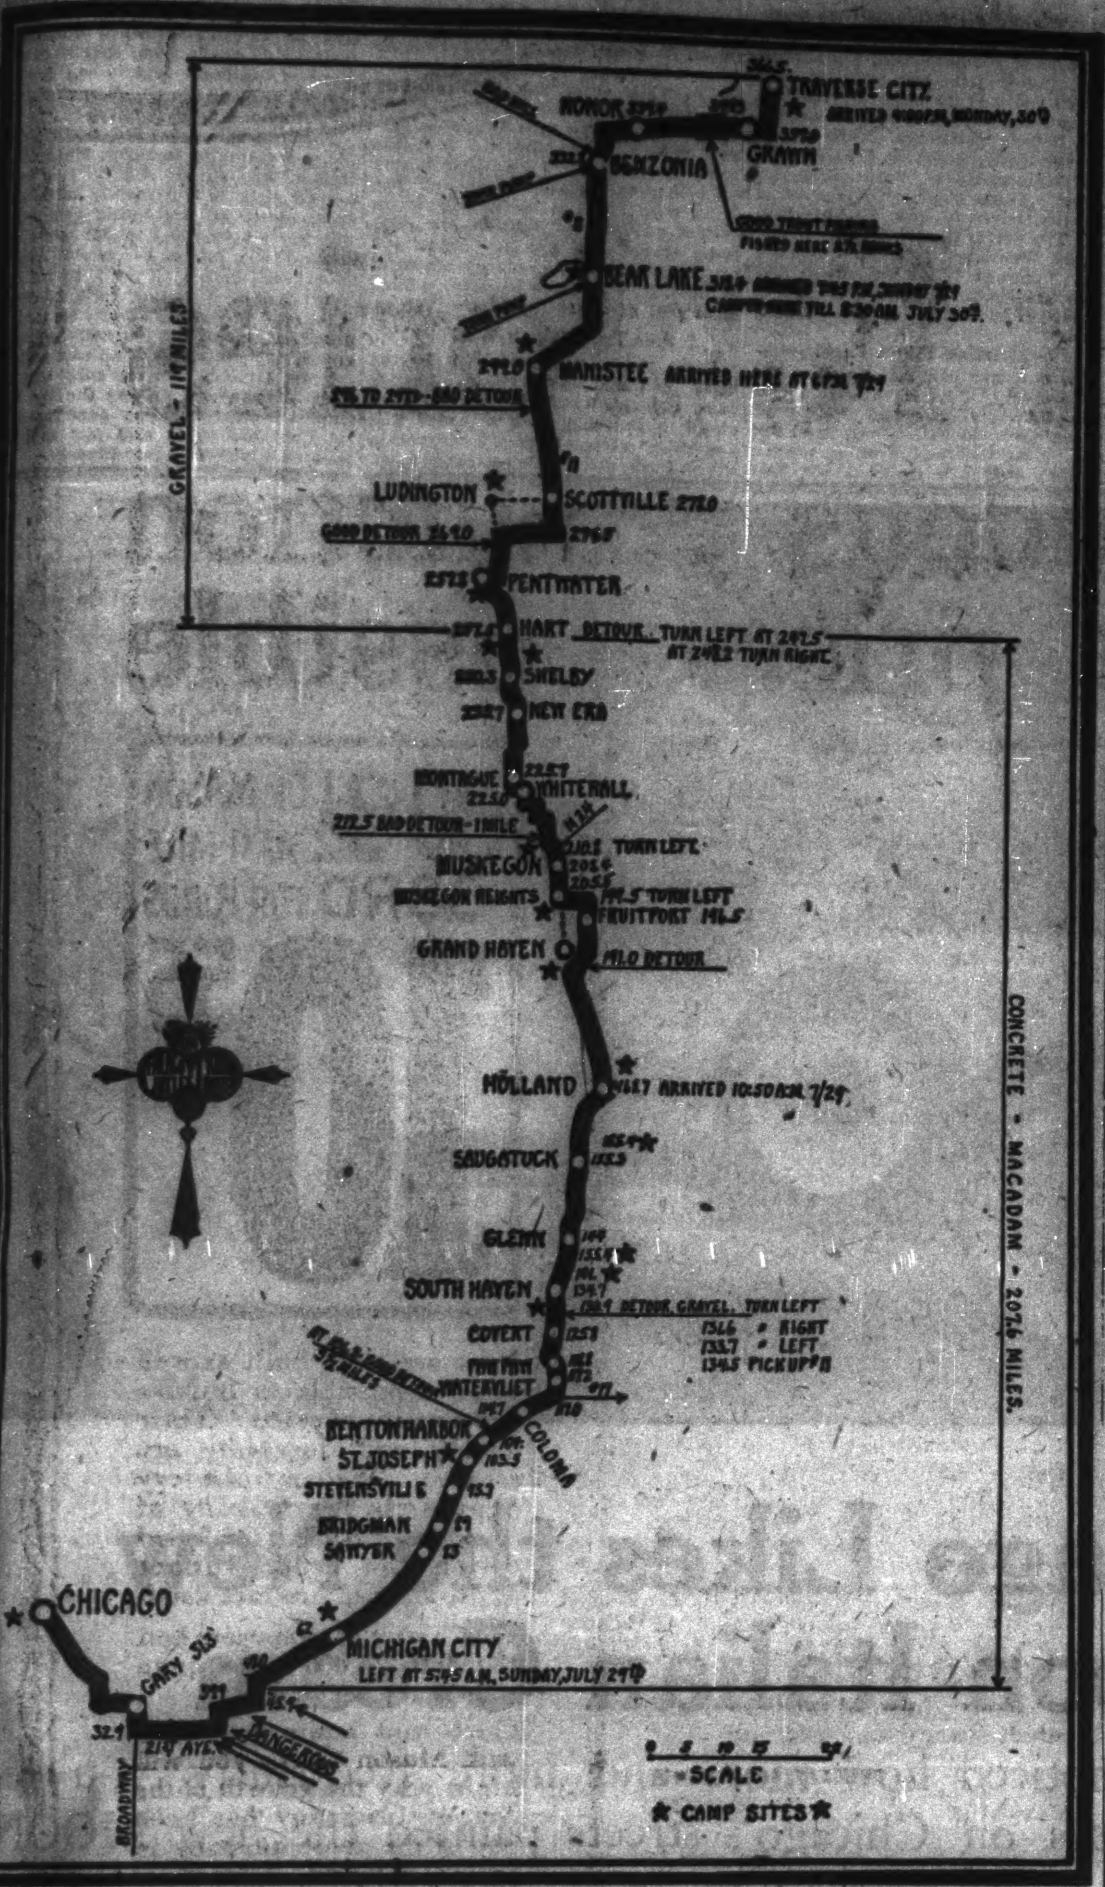
Tribune Tours

XIV.—WEST MICHIGAN PIKE



Whichever route is chosen—M 11 or M 12, the tourist will find much to interest and amuse. The best and most interesting of the two routes is the West Michigan Pike, M 11, which runs all the way from Grand Beach, on the Indiana State line, to Mackinaw City, the lower half of which is concrete and macadam. Practically every important city on the West Michigan Pike has boat connection with Chicago and Milwaukee. At 7 p. m. we left THE TRIBUNE plant and arrived at Michigan City about 10:30, leaving there the next morning at 5:45, Chicago time. The roads between East Gary and Baileytown are terrible—much worse than the two bad detours we found on M 11. The best route at present to Michigan resorts is via Valparaiso, Laporte, South Bend, Niles, and St. Joe.

From Baileytown, Ind., to Hart, Mich., is a continuous stretch of hard road and fair to good gravel to Traverse City. On Sunday several hundred men were laying macadam road between Muskegon and Manistee.

At 7:45 p. m., Sunday, we found a very good camping ground between the eastern shore of Bear Lake and M 11. It's a free camping ground, with electric light and good pump water. Fishing was good there—a party caught twenty pike and one black bass between 4 and 8 p. m.

Look out for steep hill between Benzonia and Beulah.

At 344.2 miles there is a new concrete bridge over a fast running creek, and, although it was at noon time, we caught a good string of brook trout. First started out with worms, but had better luck with black fly hook.

GOSSIP OF THE AUTO TRADE

The 1924 model Studebaker cars have been announced. They are offered in three six cylinder chassis models, the big six, the special six, and the light six, in twelve body types. There are no radical changes, but many improvements are embodied in each. The closed cars are equipped with glareproof visor, windshield cleaner, clock, coach lamps, and other features.

A new enclosed model, the Haynes 60 sport brougham, has been announced by Alton G. Seiberling, vice president and general manager of the Haynes Automobile company, Kokomo, Ind.

The Milwaukee Motor club, recently organized in that city, and the automobile club of Peoria, Ill., were among clubs which were officially welcomed into the family of the American Automobile association at the meeting of the executive board of the A. A. A. at the Blackstone hotel last Monday.

The Inquiring Reporter

He's Out to Learn the Truth About Motordom.

The Tribune will pay $5 each for questions accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "The Inquiring Reporter, Chicago Tribune." For today's question Edward C. Larson, 5942 Baldwin avenue, Berwyn, Ill., was awarded $5.

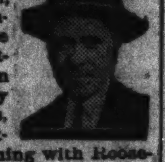
The Question.

What do you consider the most picturesque spot within fifty miles of Chicago?

The Answers.

Paul Hedburn, 4645 Homer street, commercial artist—I am partial to the town of Lemont, Ill. It is not only picturesque but there is considerable Indian history connected with it. Situated on a hill, the buildings all of stone, it appears very much like an old-fashioned town as one approaches from the opposite side of the canal and river.

Robert C. Raveret, 3901 Van Buren street, printer—I'd say Starved Rock, but that's too far. Well, you couldn't ask for prettier scenery than that around Romeo, Ill. What makes it more interesting, there's good fishing and occasionally in the fall there's good duck shooting. That is enough to make it as fine a sight as you could wish to see.



Frank A. McCarthy, 720 Cass street, interior decorator—I would say Glen Ellyn, Ill. There are any number of places that are artificially made pretty, but around Glen Ellyn it's just naturally pretty—natural lakes, country hills, and attractive valleys. Beginning with Roosevelt road, it's like a boulevard all the way, and only about thirty miles from Chicago.

Chandler Mahoney, 167 East Ohio street, barber—My favorite is Mooseheart, Ill., and vicinity, although I am not a Moose. I used to live at Aurora, and it's pretty around there, and all that, but perhaps the main reason for my interest is that it is the home of hundreds of children who otherwise wouldn't have such good homes.

E. W. Tholin, Downers Grove, salesman—Fifty miles isn't quite far enough to take us to the finest picturesque spot near here. Let's go a little farther—it's a fine ride to Lake Geneva, Wis. Then we'll have something different. We will have scenery; we will see old World's Fair buildings on some of the estates; we can take a swim at the finest bathing beach I ever saw.

"Lots of them come this way but they never stop"

A Marmon owner reports that when he stopped for water on the highway into Yosemite Park a repairman said, "I'm glad you stopped. I want to look at one of these Marmon engines."

"Why," asked the tourist, "don't any of them come this way?"

"Oh, yes," he said "lots of them, but they never stop."

There are certain necks of the bottle which all motor cars must go through in long-distance travel.

That's where to find out about motor cars—out where there are no smooth tongued salesmen to defend them—where the strong ones need no defense.

It isn't an accident that Marmons are so much in evidence in these places and at the terminals of the transcontinental motoring arteries.

When Admiral Jellicoe asked Admiral Sims how much time he would need to get the fleet ready for its return voyage across the Atlantic, Admiral Sims replied, "We got ready coming over. Let's go."

There is something about that remark which a Marmon owner will understand. It is the same instant readiness of the Marmon which gives Marmon owners such a genuine affection for their cars.

Here to-day, there to-day, they are always ready.

The unanswerable story of Marmon superiority is being written to-day on the transcontinental highways of America.

The roads of America haven't it in their power to strain a Marmon.

Far from home the Marmon is most at home.

As the fellow said, "lots of them come this way, but they never stop."

Again this summer the Marmon stands unquestionably the foremost road car in America.

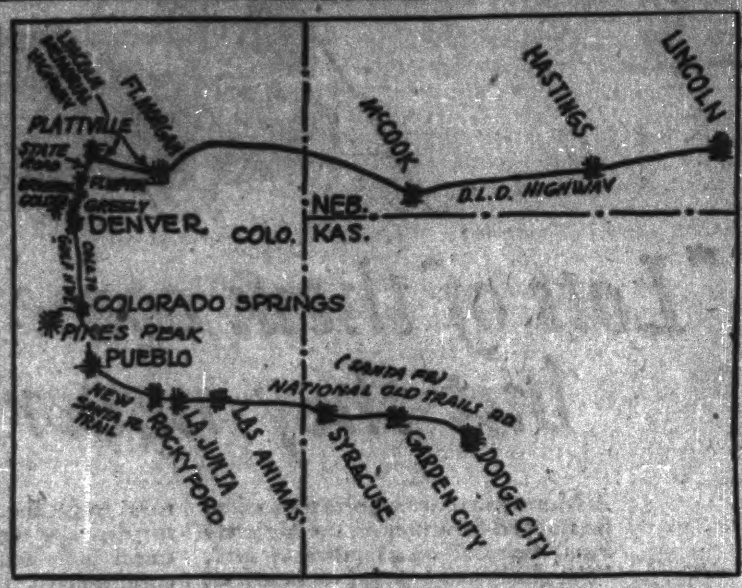
TALES OF THE TRAIL

By Jenks

MOUNTAIN silences are no more in the high places along the great divide of land which wallows its way from ice fields of the north to desert sands of the south across the great American plains.

The bark of a thousand motors echoes now through olden passes where moccasined feet wore the first winding trails. The sing-song of the guide brigade drowns the murmur of leaping mountain streams; and the clatter of modern crockery chases the storied evening hush through glens where solitary prospectors used to wield their gold pans. Gasoline has conquered altitude. It has brought the mountains to the millions, and the millions are digesting them in huge mouthfuls and in clouds of crushed shale dust.

A week ago this log of The Tribune pilgrimage stretched back over broiling Missouri hills and across Kansas prairies to reach into the old cow country of Abilene and Wichita and Dodge City. From there the notes follow the rise o' land with the trail of the pioneers into Colorado, through the foothills and into the land of [illegible] and roaring Denver, to circle back again across the plains and the vast ranches of Nebraska.



SOME summer day it will be worth your while to pull out of old Dodge City along about sunset and swing into the Santa Fé trail that heads toward Colorado and the western ocean. You'll invariably start about the same time that a long Santa Fé train is snaking its way out of the rambling station with its passengers munching contentedly on Fred Harvey's best ten minute lunches and its engineer leaning from the cab window into the western blaze.

He will wave a challenge from his rocking seat, but it will be just as well to disregard it. For the road clambers almost at once into the rise bordering the winding Arkansas and mounts up and up with hidden limestone ruts under the dust to the first outcropping butte that marks the tableland. Out there on top of the world the plains stretch on into a purple distance with bunch grass replacing the prairie carpet of the east and empty ranges rolling away to still higher steps. There you may draw up and watch the sun set over the river valley, spilling its raw colors into an empty world. If you are lucky you may see on some far hill a little bunch of horses come to a stand and remain silhouetted for a moment sharp black against a rose tinted sky.

In the clear air distant objects stand out boldly and twilight comes slowly to cover them with moving shadows. There the stillness is complete, with no living thing to shatter it—no cattle on the vast ranges, no wheat, no trees, and only occasionally a loping jackrabbit or a very distant ranchhouse deep in the valley.

Several hours of this under a moon that suddenly swings up over the table top will bring you to a lonesome ribbon of concrete road pinned over the center of the night plain; scattered houses; defunct chickens, too slow for this moving age; patches of dejected corn; wheat stubbles; and, at last, Garden City with its rich farms and old hotel. The hotel must have been built when the land was new, for it is even bigger than its old fashioned center court and its one dusky bell boy, who tells the world that stairs are hell.

"Must ha climbed e'zactly a thousand miles ovah these stairs today," he will confide. "An' you know, boss, sometimes Ah don't get ary a dime from these gemmen with heaviest grips. No, sah; thank'ee, sah; ice watah comin' right up 'nother flight of stairs!"

A concrete path carries the river branch of the old trail out through tumbling gardens and a welter of wheat and corn fields to the west. Then more dirt road, fair to rough, climbs endlessly under a sun that burns like dry tinder to the first detour leading into Kendall over the dry sand beds of a dozen creeks. A few lonesome cows wander here where the millions of buffalo grazed.

Another climb and a hairpin turn and the pilot blunders over the line into Colorado and a new deal all around. The road becomes civilized and smooths out to hurry through fields fairly oozing well irrigated crops—beets, timothy, clover, and prosperous looking farm houses. Come Holly, Lamar, and Las Animas, tanning under the blazing sun in the crystal Colorado air.

They Have No Melons.

Here the admiral, adjusting his nose glasses, announced that he could see Pike's peak, more than 100 miles to the north and west. It was his story and he stuck to it and the triangular cloud that gave it substance, all the way to Rocky Ford.

"Yes," said every restaurant in Rocky Ford, "we have no melons!" And added that the world famed canteloupe thereabouts refused to ripen until September, is shipped out immediately then, and, as nothing else comes up to standard, the natives seldom feast on the fruit of the melon at all. All this, added to the Pike's peak argument, dampened the ardor of the passionate pilgrim somewhat. The situation was not materially helped when one of the mountain going flivvers, geared for precipice scaling, spilled an ocean of dust on us over a mile long grade before we could pass him, and the road into Pueblo, washed out by the last floods, proudly exhibited two coal yards, three railroad freight terminals, and a hillside goat farm before it reached the redhot town.

The world righted itself again in a night ride to Colorado Springs over the gulf to coast highway. Good gravel and hard packed sand carry on through foothills that march north with the majestic Rockies, to enter the cool, clean resort center. The road fairly bristles with intriguing side trips into the mountains, but comes to rest at last at the breeze swept old hotel in the shadow of the peaks, where contented elderly folk rock everlastingly on the wide verandah or watch from the terraced garden the fantastic web of light made by a motor road up the dark mountain.

Where All Wear Knickers.

The Springs are always astir at dawn. School teachers from Iowa in knickers clutter up hotel halls. Millionaires from Oklahoma in knickers yell for tardy cars. Old ladies in knickers con guide books and side trip prices. Tourists in knickers flock from a hundred cottages and rooming houses to crank the old bus and strike into the mountains. Pretty girls and young men in knickers shoulder their way to the golf course. Everybody is in knickers except the ex-cow hands who drive the roaring sight seeing cars over the passes. They wear store clothes and wide hats and they throw a mean steering wheel.

There is an ancient diplomat who has been carriage man at the hotel ever since Pike's Peak was built. He has some secret understanding with the cow hand driver-guides. He herds each flock of eager mountaineers down the steps of the hotel with a practiced hand, discovers the two prettiest girls at a glance, and maneuvers them into the front seat with the bronzed driver. Men, homely petticoats of the party, and tag ends generally are honored with the back seats. Then: Ride 'em cowboy! Gears clash. The car leans into the driveway and whirls downhill. The driver flashes a smile at his startled seatmates. It says: "See me now. I admire to sit 'em rough and wheel 'em hard. Shaving cliffs is my specialty and thrills is my middle name."

Negotiating Pike's Peak.

The stranger can usually start the day properly, if he is without a car, by taking the sunrise trip to the peak by cog road. If with a car, head out early over Colorado avenue toward Manitou and turn right at the first natural rock gate leading into the Garden of the Gods, the world famed public park recently given to the city by heirs of the late Charles Elliott Perkins. An excellent motor road climbs through the garden and winds past all of its wonderfully fantastic rock groups and formations, swinging south again and right to the adjoining Mushroom park with its Balanced Rock and superb views of mountains and valley. The same road can be used to enter the Manitou cliff dwellings via Phantom Cliff canon and the Skyline drive into Williams canyon, which opens directly into the town of Manitou. Then, after taking on plenty of radiator water and perhaps resetting the carburetor for a leaner mixture to combat the altitude, thread the tourist traffic, and hit the steep north grade on beautiful Temple drive to bring up after a long, hard pull at the Cave of the Winds.

Side Trips Worth While.

From the Cave, drop back to the state road and climb again into Ute pass, through which the gold seekers swept in the wild days of Aspen and Leadville. Here starts the marvelous Pike's Peak automobile highway, winding in easy grades and safe spirals to the very tip of the 14,000 foot crest.

If the day is not yet complete, come back to Manitou and turn right into the Bear Creek Canyon road, which circles over the unequaled High drive, North Cheyenne canyon, and to Colorado Springs via Broadmoor and Ivywild. The trips to South Cheyenne canyon and Seven Falls, and a score of other parks can be crowded in within a remarkably short time, thanks to the feats of highway engineering accomplished and the aforementioned toll organizations.

This expedition headed north along the mountains to Denever, where [illegible] Hogan, who stands side by side with Long's peak in automobile sales altitude, acted as welcoming committee and guide over the Lookout mountain scenic circle, one of the world's really superlative drives. Then it pulled out north over another uniformly excellent state road to Greeley, the town that is proof positive of the journalist's sound advice to young men of an earlier day.

From Greeley the log runs east to Fort Morgan and follows the Detroit-Omaha-Denver highway over wonderful Colorado roads and fair to poor Nebraska highways into Lincoln.

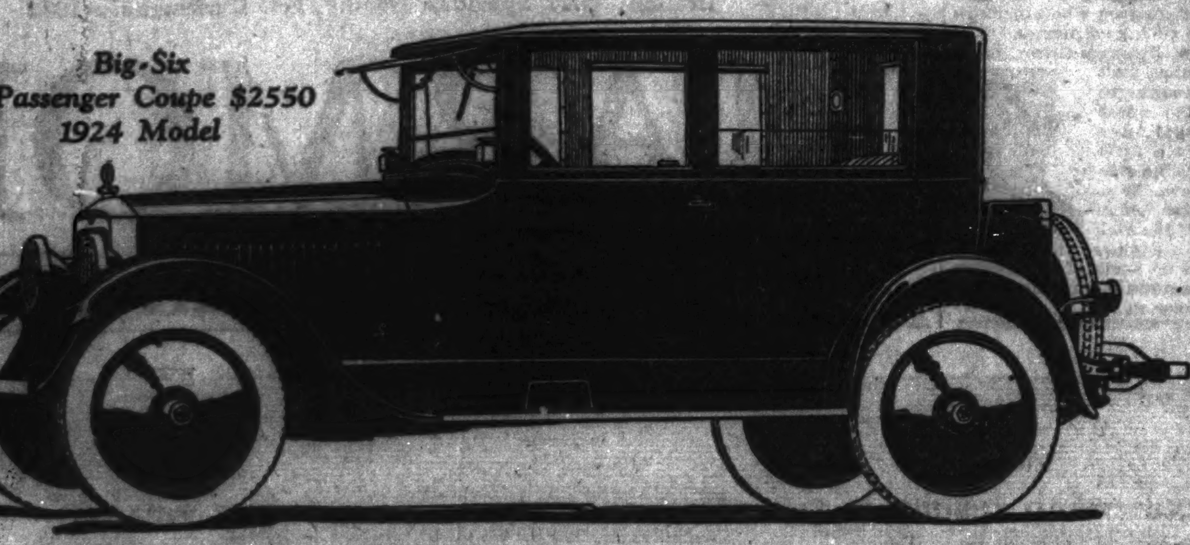
Big-Six
5-Passenger Coupe $2550
1924 Model



1924 Models Are the Finest Big-Sixes Studebaker Ever Built

The enthusiasm with which the new 1924 model Studebaker cars have been received locally is an indication of the reception they have enjoyed throughout the country.

No wonder. They are emphatically the most compelling values Studebaker ever offered and the public knows that Studebaker has been a consistent leader, year after year, in the amount of intrinsic value per dollar invested.

The Big-Six seven-passenger Sedan and the five-passenger Coupe are the finest cars that have ever borne the name Studebaker. They provide all the performance, all the comfort, and all the dependability that any car will give—at a price that smaller producers cannot approach.

Their appearance is most impressive—stylish and suggestive of power and stamina, yet dignified.

Everything for which one can wish in motoring convenience, comfort and utility has been provided—even to the extra disc wheel with tire, tube and tire cover (two on Sedan); handsome nickel-plated bumpers, front and rear; large, roomy trunk; automatic gasoline signal, and many other features. There is nothing more to buy.

The prices of the Sedan and Coupe are moderate because of Studebaker's large production, vast physical and financial resources, the manufacture of all vital parts in Studebaker plants, and the accumulation of experience and prestige gained through 71 years of building quality vehicles.

The name Studebaker stands for quality, durability, comfort—more than ever.

Chicago Likes the New Moon Italian Cream

HAVE you noticed how more and more frequently you see MOON cars on Chicago's streets painted the new MOON Italian Cream?

Seems like a funny idea, doesn't it, to buy space in The Chicago Tribune to advertise a new color for a car? Yet in no small way this smart new MOON finish is as great a triumph in automobile building as is the beautiful MOON design and smart line, or MOON unrivaled mechanical excellence.

Chicago likes this new coach color developed by MOON because Chicago has already learned the truth of our statement that this, not only one of the most beautiful of all finishes, is also the most serviceable all around color ever developed for motor car use. It will not show dust. It can be washed and cleaned with less effort and in less time than commonplace dark finishes. It is perfectly adapted to long service. Even on surfaces exposed to sun and weather until the protecting varnish has worn away it will show no spots nor streaks. It just mellows to an eggshell surface without change of color.

See the Six-40 MOON Sport finished in MOON Italian Cream at any MOON Neighborhood dealer. Its price delivered, tax paid and fully equipped, is only $1,785.00.

Sales Drop When Pure Bred Owners Fail to Register

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

Bitter experiences of breeders and sales managers are stimulating interest in the keeping of accurate records on pure bred cattle. There is perhaps no single factor injuring the industry more than breeders' neglect to record necessary information to register animals. A man's entire life may be wasted in building up a high grade herd if the records are not carefully and promptly made.

[illegible] the value of a pure bred herd is determined by the reputation of the breeder and the confidence a prospective buyer has in him.

There is only one safe way to make sure records are accurate and that is to enter all necessary information before the offspring is allowed to mix with other members of the herd.

Experienced men have found the best scheme is to make all records and diagram the color markings of a calf before it is more than twenty-four hours old, at least, within the extreme limit of one week. If there is danger of a calf's death, the application for registry may be withheld to avoid paying the fee. As a rule, if it lives to be one month old, it is safe to apply. The records must be made sooner or later if the animal or any offspring is to be registered and the longer this is delayed the more difficult it is to get the animals registered. Mistakes may occur, as they frequently do. The owner may forget the name of the sire or dam, or the calf may be confused later with other calves with similar markings.

It is common to find owners who cannot tell one animal from another when it is time to register. In such cases there is endless confusion. It is not uncommon to find pure breds six or seven years old in a herd which the owner may fully intend to have registered.

Public Sales Demand Papers.

"Owners who neglect to keep up to date records cause us more trouble than any other feature of our organization and our work in conducting public cattle sales," says W. L. Baird, secretary of the Waukesha County Holstein-Freisian association in Wisconsin. "We have had so much difficulty with registration papers that our board of directors has voted that no animal will be allowed to go into the auction ring until registration papers are in our hands.

"We are not the only ones who have trouble. I attended a sale recently where they had animals six years old, daughters of these animals, with daughters, granddaughters, and great granddaughters, and there had been no registrations made by the owner in three years. These animals were sold as pure breds. It will, no doubt, be exceedingly difficult to get the papers straightened out.

"In the first place, it will take time for the national association to prepare the registration certificates, even if all the records are kept accurately. And because registration papers have been neglected for several years there probably are mistakes in the breeding dates and dates of birth, for how many men can remember those facts? A farmer may make records of breeding and birth dates, but if he has no diagrams of the color markings, he has nothing to depend upon except his memory.

Discouraged by Delay.

"Buyers of these animals will want papers. Many are new buyers who have never owned pure breds. They will be greatly discouraged about the purchase, for it will take approximately a year to get registration and transfer certificates correct and delivered."

Mr. Baird says that if farmers are fairly accurate in making diagrams of calf color markings, the animals can always be easily identified, because no two are ever marked alike.

Twenty head of cattle were sold at the sale referred to by Mr. Baird, and if they cannot be registered they are worth no more than grades, he says. The animals, he believes, sold at a relatively lower price because only six of them were registered. Some of the animals would have sold for double the price had they been registered. The owner lost fully $1,000. The delay will cause him to pay double for the registration of every animal over 1 year old.

Duplicate Records Advisable.

An excellent system followed by one of Wisconsin's successful breeders could be profitably adopted by the average pure bred cattle owner. As soon as a calf is born it is put in a nursery pen for twenty-four hours. While there its color markings are sketched and the application for registration filled out and signed by the owner and breeder. In case of Holsteins it is ready to be forwarded direct to the Holstein Association of America, Brattleborough, Vt. The calf is also branded on the left hip with a hot iron—just as ranchers brand cattle on western ranges.

In making application for registration a duplicate should be made, with color markings also. This can be kept in a permanent file. Many different forms of record blanks are used. Some farmers use 6 by 9 inch cards, furnished by many pedigree houses. These have blanks for the same information that is put on the application for registration.

If the latter is lost in the mail or elsewhere, or if registration papers are delayed in the national association's office, the breeder has in his files the duplicate for reference.

"There is one good thing about the duplicate system—either cards or books—a breeder has a permanent record of every animal in his herd and the animals that he may sell from time to time,'" added Mr. Baird. "He has a complete history, giving date of birth and markings. The duplicate record is to the dairyman what the carbon copy of a letter is to a business man—a protection.

Washington Amends Regulation as to Accredited Herds

Valuation of cattle in localities where animals are practically free from tuberculosis will, no doubt, increase rapidly with the federal government's OK on modified accredited areas. Cattle breeders have advanced from the accredited herd unit to the point where the government is ready to accredit areas that are almost completely free from the disease.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture C. W. Pugsley has just signed an amendment to the federal regulation having to do with the eradication of tuberculosis among cattle in which provision is made for classifying certain areas where the disease has been practically eliminated as "modified accredited areas."

Work Shows Progress.

Secretary Pugsley's announcement of the new regulation, which is now in effect, states that there are many counties in various states where the cattle plague has been practically eradicated, and many others in which cleanup work has gone far. As a result, these areas will be recognized and freed from certain inhibitions which are necessary in other territories.

Last winter the United States Live Stock Sanitary association adopted the provisions contained in these new regulations. They have also been adopted by various cattle breeders' associations. The bureau of animal industry, in coöperation with state live stock sanitary authorities, will carry them out, maintaining quarantines to protect designated areas from the introduction of untested animals from other counties or states.

"Under the amended provisions a county may be designated as a modified accredited area when a complete test of all cattle in the area shows less than one-half of 1 per cent to be reactors—that is, affected with tuberculosis," says the acting secretary's announcement. "Those few herds in which infected animals were found will be quarantined and cannot be retested within less than sixty days from the date of the original test.

"Once an area is put into this modified accredited classification, no cattle can be brought in unless from an accredited herd or after having passed a satisfactory tuberculin test. However, under certain conditions they may be brought in for slaughter or for feeding and grazing."

Washington Gives Rules.

According to the announcement from Washington, when an area is designated by the coöperating state and federal authorities as a modified accredited area, it will remain in this classification for three years, provided there is no indication, through animals slaughtered or in other ways, that the percentage of tuberculosis does not exceed one-half of 1 per cent at any time. If it is found that 1 per cent or more reacts, all cattle must be retested; if the infection is between one-half of 1 per cent and 1 per cent, only infected herds must be retested, and when the percentage of reactors is reduced below one-half of 1 per cent the area may be classed as a modified accredited area.

Illinois, Michigan, and Indiana have counties listed in the announcement made by the chief of the bureau of animal industry. The first list of counties classified as modified-accredited areas under the new regulations is as follows: Illinois—Edgar. Indiana—Dearborn. Michigan—Hinsdale, Charlevoix, Antrim, Emmet. California—Modoc. North Carolina—Scotland, Rowan, Pender, New Hanover, Davis, Davidson, Cumberland, Cabarrus, Buncombe, Forsythe. New Mexico—Don Ana. Tennessee—Bradley, Marshall. Nevada—Lincoln, Clark. Utah—Boxelder, Tooele, San Juan, Grand. These counties all have less than one-half of 1 per cent tuberculosis, according to the result of tests.

Dairymen's Jottings

Teams of horses and mules used around dairy barns in hauling feed may be safely fed silage, but never moldy silage, because they are particularly susceptible to mold. Some molds that develop in silage which is not properly cut and packed are deadly poison to horses and mules. Frozen silage in winter causes colic. Corn silage is best for either horses or mules, experts say.

H. A. De Werff, farm adviser of Franklin county, Ill., says farmers in his section are beginning to realize the value of sweet clover for pasture. "One of our farmers has a fine hog pasture on volunteer sweet clover coming up from last year's seed," he announces.

Cows, hogs, horses, and mules all like to graze in sweet clover fields and this crop is becoming more and more popular with Illinois farmers.

Iowa farmers had new tuberculosis laws passed last spring, which make widespread testing possible. When 51 per cent of the owners of breeding cattle in a county signs a petition asking for testing, live stock sanitary authorities must proceed to eradicate the tubercular herds of that county.

National Egg Marketing Organization Under Way

Another definite step has been taken in the farmers' national coöperative movement, making it possible for poultry owners to pile all of their eggs in one basket and sell them at better prices through a central organization.

An even dozen men and women from different states have been appointed to form the egg marketing committee authorized at a conference held in Chicago last May. They are J. E. Whetsel of New Jersey, L. R. Simons of New York, Mrs. H. W. Lawrence of Ohio, C. R. George of Indiana, J. D. Harper of Illinois, R. W. Bingham of Kentucky, A. S. Chapin of Tennessee, C. E. Hearst of Iowa, J. S. Jones of Minnesota, B. Brown of Utah, J. B. Barber of California, and Mrs. W. C. Martin of Texas.

The committee will organize local, county, and state organizations. The movement is fostered by the American Farm Bureau federation. Standardizing, grading, and marketing of eggs on a big scale is the object of the plan in which farm women will play a dominant part.

Hoosier Onions Under Contract.

Sixty per cent of the onion crop in Indiana this year is under contract to be sold coöperatively, excluding dealer acreage as not being "commercial onion" in the legal meaning. The contracts go into effect at once, according to notices sent to members of the Indian Farm Bureau Onion exchange. The Hoosier Growers' exchange expects to handle a third of the onion crop in Indiana this season.

GARDEN NOTES

The good or bad luck you have in growing asparagus tips next spring and summer will depend upon how well the plants are taken care of this season. The wheel hoe or cultivator should be kept busy all the rest of the summer and fall to keep the plants growing, because the growth made during the rest of the season is producing the shoots for next year.

Cornell university plant breeders have found that pure strain selections of potatoes are much superior to those ordinarily grown by farmers in New York. Plants of the pure strain, developed from a single tuber, produced forty-eight more bushels to the acre than seed potatoes selected by farmers in a two year commercial test.

Dr. Stanley Appointed Head of Home Economics

Secretary Henry C. Wallace has selected Dr. Louise Stanley, dean of home economics, University of Missouri, to head the newly created bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. Her work with the federal government begins Sept. 1.

Until the first of July the home economics work was done in connection with the state's relations service, where the chief function of the office was that of furnishing information and assistance to extension workers.

Acting Secretary C. W. Pugsley says there is no more important work than that devoted especially to the homes of the country, and "the nation is to be congratulated in securing Dr. Stanley."

Millions to Raisers in Stock Commission Cut

Three-quarters of a million dollars a year will be saved to farmers and live stock shippers, according to estimates, as a result of the new reduction in commission rates at Chicago, Omaha, Kansas City, and St. Paul. Schedules of live stock commission rates at these four markets have been under consideration by arbitrators of the packers and stock yards administration of the United States department of agriculture and they will be amended as a result of the report and award made public recently.

The new rates represents reduction in selling charges. The cuts at the Chicago live stock market amount to $1 to $3 a car and 15 cents a head, and for Kansas City, Omaha, and St. Paul they amount to from $1 to $2 a car and from 10 to 15 cents a head on cattle. The reductions on hogs range from $1 to $4 a car and 5 to 10 cents a head.

The decision was left to two men—G. N. Dagger, in charge of the rate division, and Howard M. Gore, in charge of the trade practice division.

Anticipating Co-operative Demands.

Basis for meeting demands of coöperative marketing agencies next year have been discussed during the last few days by members of the farm loan board and the War Finance corporation. The latter expires on March 30, 1924, and it is believed this governmental agency will gradually close out its business and intermediate credit banks will take it over. M. L. Corey, member of the farm loan board, recently exhibited a long list of loans which have been made to coöperatives at 1¼ per cent below the price charged by local banks for the same amount of money lent to individuals.

MILK GOAT DAIRYING

Remember that goats eat many things that a cow refuses. Many of the weeds that are found along the highways, vacant lots, in orchards, along borders of gardens, and other places where goats range and feed often produce a peculiar and undesirable flavor in the milk if the doe happens to eat them. Weed patches can often be avoided by setting the stakes far enough away that the animal cannot reach the weeds even when she is at the end of her chain.

Poultry Tips

During May, 619 hens kept on the Duncan poultry demonstration farm in Monroe county, Ind., produced 11,[illegible] eggs, an average of 18.5. After the feed costs were deducted, there was a profit of $95.26, about 15 cents profit from each hen.

Poultry fans who happen to be in Washington, D. C., the second week in August will be able to pick up some new slants on chick raising at the eighth annual convention of the International Baby Chick association to be held Aug. 8 to 10. The poultry outlook in Europe at the present time will be given by Edward Brown of England, one of the chief speakers at the meeting.

"An egg every other day will keep the ax away" is the slogan Iowa hens are living up to in the 512 flocks whose records are being kept by the poultry owners coöperating with the experiment station in that state. The 73,371 layers in these flocks produced an average of 16.2 eggs during the month of May. After the feed cost had been deducted the farmers had $25,056.47 left at the end of the month, an average of 35 cents profit.

PACKARD

It is certainly significant that more and more purchasers of the Single-Six have had previous experience with cars of lower price.

There is only one interpretation of this fact. Investigation and testimony of other owners have proved to these buyers that there is a greater economy in the Single-Six that makes it a sounder investment.

Thus many people who have always aspired to Packard ownership have discovered that the gratification of this desire is not an indulgence, but rather, the exercise of good business judgment.

The New Hupmobile

We feel sure that every Hupmobile owner, or even observer, will agree with us that in order to dominate its field, the Hupmobile has only to improve upon its own past.

In this new Hupmobile, that triumph has been accomplished in every important essential—with results in performance so brilliant that they validate more strongly than ever its legitimate right to be called the best car of its class in the world.

We direct the attention of Hupmobile owners in particular to these results, which they can absolutely count upon in the new Hupmobile:—

Noted as the Hupmobile has always been for settling down instantly to smooth, steady straight-ahead going, this new Hupmobile has a coasting, skimming quality that surpasses any Hupmobile which has preceded it.

Prized as the Hupmobile has always been for smooth operation, this new Hupmobile is even more free from noticeable vibration.

Celebrated as the Hupmobile has always been for snapping away in the flash of a second, this new Hupmobile is even quicker on the trigger than any Hupmobile before it.

Easy-riding as the Hupmobile has always been, this new Hupmobile—in front and rear alike—outdoes all of its predecessors in bump-absorbent spring action and restful riding.

Comfortable as the Hupmobile has always been, this new Hupmobile is more roomy and affords greater convenience to driver and passengers alike.

These magnificently improved performance qualities are produced by the engineering and other changes detailed below

The new Series R-12 Hupmobile embodies improvements in motor, clutch, and transmission, in addition to a longer chassis; and new body models throughout.

The net results of the engineering improvements are longer life, still smoother operation, better engine operating balance, an increase of power, and pronounced increase in acceleration and economy.

Heavier crankshaft, counter-balanced, with bearing areas 20 per cent greater. Light-weight alloy pistons and connecting rods.

GRAINS STEADY; LOSSES SLIGHT AS WEEK CLOSES

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While grain prices averaged lower as the result of the break in the stock market and President Harding's death, the undertone was by no means weak. In fact, it held up somewhat better than expected in view of the better weather conditions in the Candian northwest, and continued lack of export demand for wheat. Prices had a range of ¾ to 1c for the day and closed ⅛@⅜c lower, with September at 96¾@96⅝c and December at $1.00⅛@1.00⅜. Corn was ⅛c lower for September at 76⅝c, and unchanged to ⅛c higher on the deferred deliveries, with December 63⅛c. Oats were unchanged to ⅛c higher and rye off ⅛@⅜c.

Prices averaged higher for the week, liquidation and hedging pressure having apparently run its course for the time being. At no time were September and May wheat lower than the finish of the previous week, with the finish 1@1⅛c higher. Corn finished ⅛c lower on September and ⅛c higher on the new crop futures, while oats were ½c higher and rye ⅛@⅜c lower. Decline in lard was checked by smaller receipts of hogs, and it finished unchanged for the week, with ribs 25@27½c lower.

Warmer in Canada.

With the exception of the forecast for generally fair and warmer in the Canadian northwest, there was little in the wheat situation that attracted much attention. No frost was reported in Canada over night and there was a fairly persistent run of hedging sales in futures against purchases in the sample market. Country offerings were light in all sections, and of the 1,183 cars received here and 75 per cent was applied on contracts to arrive. Some of the wheat was damp and graded No. 3 and No. 4, and sold at 1½@3c under September, while contract grades were unchanged at ⅛@1½c over the future.

Export demand at the seaboard was limited, with Liverpool closed, and that market and Winnipeg will be closed Monday. Crop news from abroad was generally of a slightly bearish character. A soviet Russian government estimate on the principal crops was received in such form as to be valueless from a market standpoint, although it indicated a liberal yield of grains and potatoes.

Southwest Sells Corn.

Houses with southwestern connections were good sellers of September corn, and were instrumental in making a decline of 1⅜c from the early low point. An early drop of ½c in premiums on spot and forecast for cooler weather southwest had some effect. At 75½c there was good support, and a strong rally came toward the last, with yellow corn in the sample market advancing to 10½c over the future, against 9½c early. Receipts for the two days were 331 cars. Rains fell in parts of Iowa, Nebraska, Illinois, and Missouri, and offset to some extent the hot wind reports from Kansas and Oklahoma.

Oats had a range of ⅝c, but failed to reflect fully the break in corn early, receiving support on the declines, and closed firm. Country offerings are not large and the basis on spot showed little change. A fair increase in local stocks is expected to be shown for the week.

Rye Has Easy Tone.

Rye showed an easy undertone, with a light trade. Export demand continues limited.

Lard was in fair demand, and sufficient support developed on an early decline to offset a sharp break in hogs, and the close was the same as on Thursday. Ribs declined 20c, with a light trade. An outside packer shipped 50 cars of lard for export one day the last week. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Grain traders would like to see prices advance and hold, but there is little in the immediate outlook to cause sustained advances. Action of the market and the current run of news fails to stimulate interest on the part of the public, and the rallies run into selling, which makes it difficult for values to hold. At the same time, prices have held surprisingly well considering all the surroundings.

Canadian grain traders are modifying their view of the wheat crop in the three big northwestern provinces. All expectations of the 500,000,000 bu yield have been dissipated, and the trade seems to be getting down to the sober opinion that serious damage from rust, heat, and blight has resulted. The highest estimate is for 400,000,000 bu, and there are a great many 350,000,000 to 375,000,000 bu estimates. Cathcart of Winnipeg wired that the best authority estimated the crop at 350,000,000 bu. Unfortunately the reduced figures are not bringing increased buying, and Winnipeg prices were ⅛@⅜c lower at the close yesterday.

Commission house opinions were mixed last night. Some of the estimates are for the largest increase in the visible supply of wheat in Monday's report that has been seen for a long time. Bartlett-Frazier say they look for wheat to work irregularly lower as the movement of spring wheat increases. They see little in the selling side of corn as long as cash corn remains scarce and high. E. Lowitz & Co. favor sales of wheat and corn on hard spots.

President Coolidge's platform as viewed by leading grain men is highly commended. They say it is safe and sound, especially as regards price fixing.

An analysis of the domestic wheat situation east of the Rockies made by R. O. Cromwell for Lamson Bros. & Co. suggests that after allowing for bread and seed requirements on the basis of last year's disappearance there is an exportable surplus of only 39,000,000 bu after allowing for 50,000,000 bu durum which is not used for bread making purposes. Wheat from west of the Rockies is not expected to move eastward to any extent on account of high freight rates. Lowest prices of the season are expected to be witnessed during the next thirty to sixty days, during which period, as a material advance is looked for is exerting a depressing influence, with purchases advocated for investment during that period, as a materia advance is looked for later when there is general recognition of the milling wheat situation.

"Wheat has had a break of 30c from the recent high point and at 98c the buying power of the dollar is selling at a pre-war level of 63c," says T. J. McLaughlin. "We have a crop promise of about 800,000,000 bu and before we raise another crop this may not be burdensome. I think that wheat is on an investment basis."

CASH GRAIN NEWS

Export demand for grain at the seaboard was very limited. Wheat sales were estimated at 150,000 to 200,000 bu in all positions.

Chicago handlers sold 15,000 bu wheat, 200,000 bu corn, and 75,000 bu oats to the domestic trade.

Cash wheat premiums at Chicago showed little change, with No. 2 red and hard mainly ⅛@1c over the September, with No. 3 grades ⅛@⅜c over for dry. Mills and elevators were the best buyers. Dark hard sold at 4@5½c over the future. Receipts, 1,183 cars. Outside markets were 1@3c lower.

Basis on cash corn was ½c lower early, but recovered the loss toward the close. No. 2 yellow was quoted at 9½@10c over the September, with some cars at the last at 10½c over, while mixed was 9@9½c over and white 9¼@9¾c over September. Receipts, 331 cars, with a good demand. Outside markets unchanged to 2½c lower, with St. Louis showing the most decline.

Offerings of cash oats were fairly good, with the basis about unchanged at 3½@4½c over September for No. 2 white and 2½@3¼c over for No. 3 white. Receipts, 258 cars.

FINANCIAL NOTES

Yesterday's stock market was the first session since the death of President Harding. A heavy accumulation of selling orders coming from timid investors and professional speculators for the decline resulted in recessions of 1 to 2 points in the initial sales of the usual leaders with a few other issues showing losses of 3 to 4 points, but the breaks did not become wide open at any time. Substantial supporting orders kept the decline in check. Confidence increased as trading progressed and the main trend was upward towards the close.

United States Steel, Baldwin, Studebaker, American Can, and other so-called pivotal stocks registered net losses of approximately 1 to 1½ points after having sold down 1 to nearly 3 points below Thursday's final quotations. Houston Oil and American Car and Foundry each broke 4 points, but recovered a good part of their loss before the close. Some of the motor accessories were in rather free supply. Stromberg and Stewart-Warner each showing net losses of about 2 points on the day.

Bond prices pointed downward, but there was no evidence of liquidation on a large scale. In a few individual instances prices moved forward. Active United States government bonds were relatively firm, fluctuations being limited to one thirty-second of a point. Most of the French issues reacted fractionally. There was an active market in railroad mortgages, with the majority easing fractionally.

In the Wall street district the belief is rather general that the decline of the western railroad share was simply a continuation of the movement that has been in effect now for several weeks. Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, St. Paul, Wisconsin Central, Chicago and Northwestern and Rock Island were among the roads in the western district to go to new lows for the year. The price of the grain crop, and the railroad earnings for the first half of the year, are considered as factors operating against these roads. Officials of the roads insist that their showing for the second half of the year will be much more favorable.

With respect to declining stock and bond prices during the last four months and particularly during the last two or three weeks, an explanation was advanced today by one banker that uncertainty lay at the foundation. Figures as to iron and steel production, car loadings, bank clearings and general commercial reports are being scanned with unusual attention to help solve the big question as to whether buying will be resumed in the fall on the scale anticipated by the more cheerful of the Wall street community.

President Coolidge and his stand on such important railroad problems as valuation, consolidation and the radical legislation that will come before the next session of congress are the cause of much discussion among railroad men. With few exceptions these men are inclined to regard him as a friend of the railroads, or at least as one who believes in a sound transportation system and will give their side of any proposition favorable consideration. Especially are railroad men inclined to look on his record in the Boston police strike as an indication of what he might be expected to do if an emergency arose either in the rail or the coal fields that threatened to tie up industry and imperil the interests of the public.

Directors of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the preferred stock. "The company commenced business the 1st of March, 1923," said President E. F. Rosenbaum. "The net earnings from March 1 to June 30 were in excess of $154,000, so that, after allowing for dividends paid and accrued, there was added to surplus $51,000. The company is now doing a large and satisfactory business and everything indicates increased and satisfactory earnings.

The Texas company has decided to renew for one year its option to take over 51 per cent of the stock of the Carib Syndicate, Ltd., which controls about 8,000,000 acres of lands in Venezuela and Colombia. The option, which expires next month, was made two years ago, and gave Texas company the option of taking over the stock at $5,000,000. The option was renewed a year ago.

The Chicago Federal Reserve bank reports the weekly movement of credits as follows: Debits to individual deposit account reported for the week ending Aug. 1 by 268 banks in 35 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district, aggregate $1,068,761,000, a decrease of 1.9 per cent compared with a week ago. Aggregate debits to individual deposit account reported by 248 banks in 32 clearing houses amounted to $1,056,275,000, an increase of 7.2 per cent compared with the corresponding week of last year.

Gerard Swope, president of the General Electric company, announces an additional issue of $2,000,000 General Electric Employés Securities corporation bonds, paying 8 per cent as long as the original holder remains an employé of General Electric company. The first issue of $5,000,000 of these bonds was announced Feb. 8, 1923.

No dividend action was taken at the Booth Fisheries directors' meeting. J. C. Markley and F. J. Carrol were elected directors in the place of P. B. Shumway and C. Hull Ewing, resigned.

Bradstreet reports 325 failures last week, compared with 377 in the preceding week and 352 during the corresponding week last year.

RAILROAD NOTES

Officials of railroads operating east from Chicago and St. Louis noted but little change in the traffic conditions. Some of the roads are adding considerable rolling stock and motive power and find a use for all of it. So far railroad men report nothing that would suggest a change in the business outlook.

The railroads could well afford to grant a temporary emergency 25 per cent rate cut on wheat and flour for export, a special committee of the Omaha chamber of commerce declared in a letter to J. E. Gorman, president of the Rock Island, answering a recent communication from Mr. Gorman in which he announced the refusal of western railway chiefs in Chicago to grant a rate reduction requested by Omaha business men.

The addition of twenty-two limited trains on the lines of the Chicago, Aurora and Elgin railroad will be made today when the new all-steel cars received this week from the Pullman company will be placed in service, J. H. McClure, vice president and general manager of the company, announced.

Revenue loaded freight cars handled by the Pennsylvania railroad for the week ended July 28 totaled 173,537, against 150,932 the same week in 1922. From Jan. 1 to July 28 cars handled were 4,915,188, against 3,957,017 in the same period of 1922.

U. S. SIFTS TAX FRAUDS CHARGED TO BUCKET SHOPS

In the belief bucket shops of Chicago have defrauded the United States government out of several million dollars, the internal revenue department at Washington for some weeks has been conducting a secret investigation of fifty firms here, it was learned yesterday.

Among the firms are most of those put under fire last June when State's Attorney Crowe conducted a grand jury investigation of the operations of "fly by night" concerns, which, he charged, obtained about $50,000,000 yearly through fraudulent stock sales. The Chicago Stock Exchange, the Board of Trade and the Investment Bankers' association coöperated in that drive, as a result of which several indictments were voted.

Special Agents Detailed.

After a brief local investigation by federal officials of this city, the results were forwarded to Washington and special agents of the internal revenue department were assigned to make a lengthy inquiry. In the first stages of this it was found many of the brokers had closed shop and fled. An effort is being made now to trave them.

Fail to File Schedules.

In addition to evading the various corporation taxes, the brokers in some cases failed to file even personal income tax returns, the government agents say.

It was said the same line of investigation is being made in New York, where a similar expose of bucket shops was conducted by state authorities.

The New York Times.

New York, Aug. 4.—[Special.]—The various markets today opened and closed at the accustomed hours and in the intervening periods buyers and sellers went through the gestures of carrying on business, but it is extremely doubtful if anything conclusive could be found in price movements unless it was that the figurative financial mind was still in the dazed condition in which it was left by reason of the shock of President Harding's unexpected death.

Wall street was inclined to look far afield for manifestations of interest, and in this respect the nearest approach probably to a general and uniform movement of significance was contained in foreign exchange transactions.

Foreign Exchange Rates Firm.

While European cables failed to bring over much by way of definitely constructive news, the general advance of European bills served in a measure to sweep away whatever misgiving may have been nourished by the financial community. French francs advanced quite sharply and compared with the low point reached last Thursday closed the day with a gain of approximately ½c. A similar movement took place in Belgian francs and lire, while sterling displayed steadiness.

A large factor in today's transactions was doubtless the buying by speculators who had sold francs for the decline, but, even so, it was reasoned that they, as well as buyers for purely commercial purposes, had undergone a change of view with respect to at least the immediate future of Europe's affairs.

Stocks Nervous; No Smash.

Nervousness was apparent in the opening hour of the New York Stock exchange, but liquidation was not in sufficient volume to indicate a definite reaction on the part of security holders to the unfortunate death of the nation's chief executive. In fact, Wall street appeared to have suspended judgment on the question as to what effect a change in the presidential office might have on security markets in general, and it is extremely doubtful if any definite expression of view on that subject, as evidenced in price trends, will be had for a week or so to come.

Weakness of the western and northwestern railroad shares was again a feature which attracted what little attention was paid to the market, and in this respect it was reasoned that the same underlying conditions in being last Thursday were exerting their influence in today's selling.

Cotton Market Has Upturn.

There was evidenced again a strong buying power in the cotton market and quotations advanced moderately from the opening, the closing prices showing substantial gains for the day. Cross currents were in evidence at certain periods in the course of the abbreviated market, but whatever profit taking appeared was readily absorbed, partly by operators for the decline, who had been unnerved by reason of drought reports, and possibly more largely by operators for the advance, whose purchasing was of a character to indicate considerable confidence. The markets for other commodities were dull.

After having declined each week during July, the loans of the New York banks this week reversed the tendency and increased moderately, the gain amounting to $6,394,000. The decrease last month had amounted to $202,929,000. Net demand deposits this week increased $5,791,000. Time deposits increased $2,675,000. The surplus reserve decreased $12,460,940.

CHICAGO CURB MARKET

While trading in local unlisted securities embraced a wide range of issues, the volume was rather light. Prices generally ruled steady throughout.

Bunte Brothers ranged between 33¼ and 33¾. Fairbanks Morse common was in demand between 50½ and 51½. Fractional improvement was made in Albert Pick preferred at 92 bid, 93½ asked. Some few transactions were made in Burroughs Adding Machine at 125 and 127. Northwestern Yeast was again quoted 196 bid, 199 asked, with little stock changing hands. National Grocer common moved up to sales at 7½. On Aug. 1 a cash dividend of 2 per cent was paid. This is the first disbursement made on these shares since March 1, when the stockholders received 3 per cent. The preferred was wanted at 88, with no stock offered for sale. Bucyrus issues were quiet and slightly easier, the common closing at 33½ bid, 34½ asked, and the preferred at 103½ bid, 105 asked.

Elgin National Watch was wanted at 45 with sellers at 46. Kellogg Company common was again quoted 19 bid, 20 asked, and the preferred 101 bid, 102 asked. Brunswick Balke Collender was quoted 100 bid, 103 asked, with few reported transactions. Beatrice Creamery preferred was wanted at 100 with odd-lot offerings at 102.

On few trades Pyle National scored an advance of some 20 points to 190 bid, 195 asked. A stockholders' meeting was held July 21 to vote on the directors' recommendation that five shares of new $5 par value stock be given in exchange for each share of the present $25 par value stock outstanding. Official notice of the result of the meeting has not been made public. Initial trades on the new no par value stock of the Hygienic company were made between 23 and 25, on a when, as, and if issued basis. The company is giving five shares of new stock for each share of the old $100 par value stock. Edmund-Jones relinquished ¼ at 34¼ bid, 34¾ asked. Ford of Canada at 413 bid, 418 asked, was off some 2 points. Motor Wheel, however, was up ½ at 10 bid, 10¼ asked. Timken Axle changed hands at 8½. Transactions in Paige Motor common ranged between 20¼ and 21. Packard preferred at 93½ bid, 94½ asked, was a point improved.

Fractional price recessions marked a quiet session in the sugar shares. Closing bid and asked prices follow: Columbia, 5¾-6; Holland-St. Louis, 4½-5; Godchaux preferred, 78-79; Michigan, 4⅝-5; Utah-Idaho, 2⅞-3¼.

Public utilities were weak, prices in a number of issues relinquishing several points. American Light and Traction common lost some 6 points of its gain of the previous week, closing at 113 bid, 115 asked. Cities Service issues were also under pressure, the common closing 130 bid, 132 asked, off 5 points; preferred, 64½-64¾, off ½. Illinois Traction common improved ⅛ to 50 bid, 50½ asked.

Textile Dividends Paid Last Quarter $677,675

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—The dividends paid out by local textile corporations in the third quarter of 1923, according to figures furnished today by G. M. Haffards and company, reached a total of $677,675 which was distributed on a capitalization of $43,015,000, an average of 1.575 plus per cent. This amount compares favorably with that of the second quarter. The tendency during the quarter just ended has been to maintain the average rate of six per cent if possible although in order to accomplish this end the great majority of mills have been compelled to pay their dividends from accumulated earnings.

DRY GOODS AND GARMENT NEWS

[Copyright: 1923 Fairchild News Service.]

LONDON.—The F. W. Woolworth company has purchased a site on Oxford street, adjoining Bond street, at a reported price of $100,000, for the purpose of erecting a modern store along the same lines as its existing stores. The new unit will be in the heart of London's shopping district. The company already operates more than 100 stores in England.

GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—American fabric glove manufacturers who have manufactured little or nothing during the last few years, are again resuming operations. Rising German prices, and demand for a higher grade of glove than is usually produced abroad, is responsible for the resumption.

NEW YORK.—In sharp contrast to the woolen and worsted piece goods industry, the woolen blanket industry is in excellent condition, according to reports. Most mills are said to be sold up for several months ahead. Blanket mills have experienced few cancellations this season, it is said.

NEW YORK.—Demand for black woolen and worsted goods is reported in this market, following the news of the death of President Harding. Prices on this type of goods are said to have jumped 10 to 20 per cent as a result of the sudden heavy call.

NEW YORK.—The sharp price cutting that has been going on during the last ten days or so has resulted in some improvement in the broad silk business. Manufacturers are still far from satisfied with the situation, because cancellations have been numerous and have helped to create a surplus of merchandise that has been demoralizing to prices. Manufacturers have been further discouraged by lack of any substantial fall business.

NEW YORK.—The past week in the woolen and worsted goods market has been one of anticipation and uncertainty, with the words "watchful waiting" characterizing the policy of the buyer. Ordering is being done on a sample piece basis, generally speaking, and buyers are inclined to wait for the independent openings before committing themselves. When all is said and done present opinions of both buyers and sellers indicate that the largest amount of business will be done on worsteds, with pencil stripes and self stripes in several colors retaining a leading position.

SUCCESS!

—Unqualified Success!

Again is Rickenbacker Leadership Proven! Again is the Soundness, as Well as Progressiveness of Rickenbacker Engineering Endorsed

"4-Wheel Brakes" have taken the automotive world by storm.

"4-Wheel Brakes" is the one most absorbing topic of discussion today wherever motorists meet.

"4-Wheel Brakes" have been proclaimed—even as we predicted—"the greatest improvement made in a motor car since the invention of the self starter."

"4-Wheel Brakes" have become at the same time the joy of motorists and the despair of those manufacturers who are always a "year behind."

Rickenbacker "4-Wheel Brakes" have not only aroused the public to the need and shown the advantages of this latest Rickenbacker achievement—but have become the focusing point of all automotive engineering.

Proof is so conclusive—superiority so pronounced—rival makers see an overwhelming demand for "4-Wheel Brakes" and are frantically working to bring their product up-to-date.

And—right there, is a serious menace.

Purpose of this ad is not so much to advertise Rickenbacker "4-Wheel Brakes"—for the factory tells us they are already swamped with orders—but to inform you as to the problems and the principles that enter into the development of a workable system of "4-Wheel Brakes."

Rickenbacker engineers have been working and experimenting with "4-Wheel Brakes" for several years.

The first Rickenbacker Six chassis ever "laid on a drawing board" had 4-Wheel Brakes.

But—no less than 362 changes were made from this early design before we felt we had the most perfect system of brakes ever known.

Now, consider these facts.

Rickenbacker announcement of "4-Wheel Brakes" has created a nation-wide sensation.

A tremendous demand has suddenly developed.

Other makers did not forsee that demand.

Only during the past few weeks—since Rickenbacker began production (a condition we could no longer keep secret from competitors) have others begun to experiment with this intricate and difficult problem in engineering.

Obviously—many mistakes will be made.

Many expedients will be tried and some of these will be offered the public in their imperfect form.

And that isn't all.

Rickenbacker's success has proven that all those old "1913 models" must be revamped—or completely re-designed.

For most cars that still pass current as "1923" models are, as you know, of pre-war design basically.

Here are six important discoveries, inventions and improvements that were first seen in the Rickenbacker Six, and which others are just now beginning to adopt.

—for this Rickenbacker was "post-war" in design from the ground up!

Mark this!—You will see more changes in motor car design in the next ten months than you have seen in the past ten years.

And among the improvements you will see as, one by one, these pre-war models are revamped will be:—

1—Steel Disc Wheels as standard—first sponsored by Rickenbacker.

2—"Double Depth" frame with wide webs—less weight, twice the strength.

3—Ball Bearings in steering knuckles—when first shown in Rickenbacker Six other engineers, who are now copying this feature, proclaimed this impractical and "unnecessarily costly."

4—Commutator located on top and over center of motor—advantages are so many it is amazing it was not done before.

5—Two Fly Wheels—one at either end of the crank shaft to eliminate all periods of vibration.

Others must at least try to eliminate these periods of vibration—for Rickenbacker proved it can be done, and an intelligent motorist will no longer tolerate an engine that has "St. Vitus Dance" or is given to "Spasms of Shimmying."

6—And finally—"4-Wheel Brakes!"

Here are some things you ought to know about "4-Wheel Brakes"—lest you accept something that is hastily designed—and more hastily built—to meet a demand that other makers have just recently heard about:—

A glib salesman, who does not yet have 4-Wheel Brakes to offer, will say: "Oh! we don't need brakes on all four wheels—our drums are extra large."

Here is the engineer's reply to that:—

It would not matter if the drums were the full diameter of his driving wheels—and 12 inches wide—he could not stop his car any quicker.

And, if his drums were only 6 inches in diameter—and half an inch in width—; and if his "brake shoe" were a quarter-inch wire!—he could stop his car just as quickly and with no more effort on his part.

Only difference would be, the smaller brake would wear faster, while the other would go several thousand miles before it needed adjustment.

The limit of your braking ability is the number of points of contact with the road.

Either of the brakes above mentioned would stop the wheels—and when you have stopped the two wheels you have done all you can do.

"4-Wheel Brakes" enables us to use all points of contact with the road—thereby doubling our efficiency, reducing the wear on tires—and resulting in many times the mileage between adjustments.

Now, "expediency" is a hard task master.

Others must have "4-Wheel Brakes" and will adopt various expedients to get them quickly.

Let us repeat for emphasis—because this information is vital to you:

Rickenbacker is mechanically operated. Not hydraulic—not pneumatic, not electric.

Neither are there any chains to rattle, cables to stretch, pulleys to bind, nor universal joints, no reservoirs, no pumps, valves or tubes to leak.

Our engineers tried the different methods and finally adopted the simplest, most direct and most certain.

Any child can understand the Rickenbacker principle—any ten-year-old boy can adjust them.

And Rickenbacker "4-Wheel Brakes" are of the most approved internal expanding type.

That is the most perfect type of brake ever invented.

It is the only type of brake that can be equalized under all conditions—only kind that will always function uniformly. Will wear longer—need less adjustment.

There is a prevalent notion in the minds of the uninformed (and makers have fostered it in the past for reasons that will be obvious) that the external, or "wrapping band" type of brake is more efficient.

This erroneous idea is based on the fact that when the band comes in contact with the revolving drum, the tendency of the latter is to wrap the band around itself.

It does just that!—it wraps until it is tight, and then it grabs!

But grabbing or gripping is not ideal braking.

In actual operation, as soon as the wheel takes hold, the driver loses control—he cannot apply his brakes smoothly, or prevent them grabbing, screeching and finally stopping the car with a jerk.

This is the most fruitful cause of skidding, as all engineers and most drivers know.

Band brakes are cheaper to make,—of course.

That is the principal reason this type was so generally used in the past.

You are hereby invited to inspect and drive this Rickenbacker car yourself.

Five minutes at the wheel will be a revelation to you.

And—we urge you—drive it yourself!

"Trick driving" by a professional demonstrator is not necessary to show the superiority of Rickenbacker "4-Wheel Brakes."

Sleight of hand stunts add nothing to the performance of these brakes.

Take the wheel yourself—control is standard, of course—and, seeing how slight the effort you will be the more amazed at the response.

No jerking—no noise—the smoothest, as well as quickest, stop you ever experienced.

You are invited, therefore, to give yourself your own demonstration.

Your enthusiasm will know no bounds.

But—don't delay.

Tardiness in placing your order will mean just that much more delay in the delivery of your Rickenbacker with "4-Wheel Brakes."

Come in—see the latest thing in motor cars.

Today won't be a minute too soon.

Fashions Beauty Contests

IT'S THE DRAPED LINE GRANDMA WANTS

by Mary Alonour Howell

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—I asked a group of four men once what dress they liked best on women. Three of the four agreed that a woman looked her best to them in "a pretty print dress." The fourth said: "I love to see my mother in lavender."

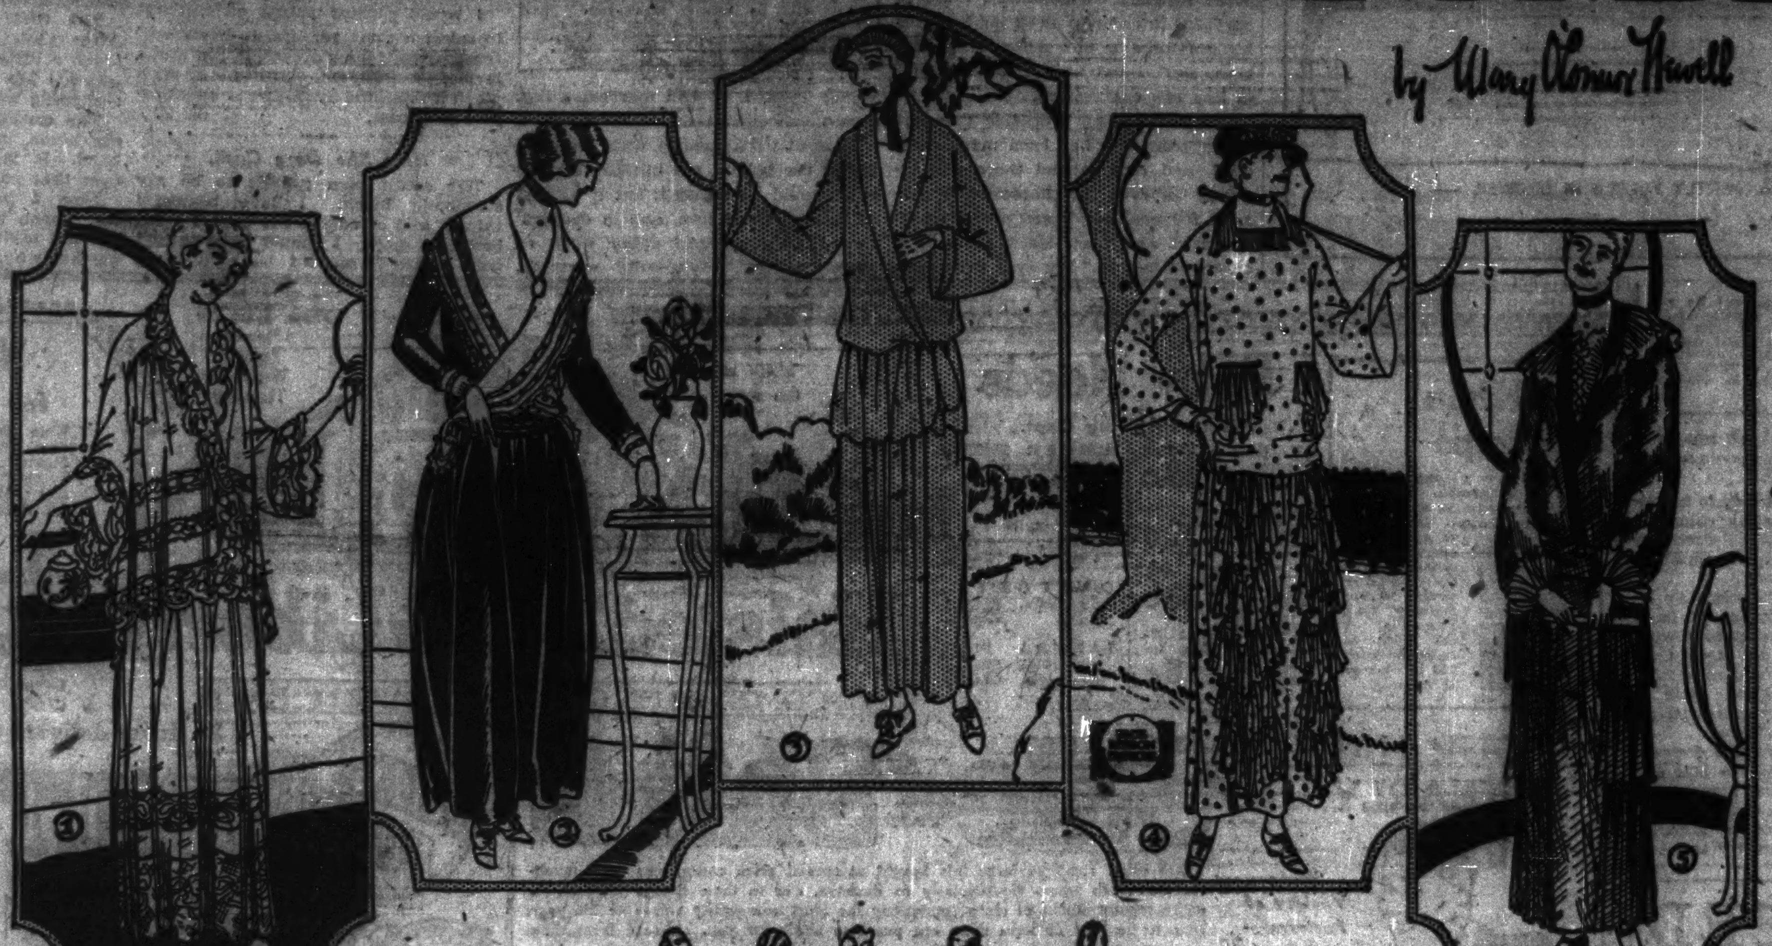
There is poetry about old ladies in lavender. When grandma accepted it she took over her kingdom of gracious old age. She made it beautiful, adorable. Part of the aid in that was due to the way she dressed her years. The white curls or softly waved, parted hair of an old lady, the soft ruching about the lined throat, the lace that droops over hands that have done their bravest and can now rest, the soft shawls, the full skirts, even the fine gold chain that held grandma's eyeglasses—all of them were precious and dear, with grandma keeping her kingdom.

It is for grandma that the page today is designed. How shall she be dressed with all the world in bright colors—scarlet hats and scarlet shoes; Indo-Persian, Egyptian, Chinese embroideries, and all that?

Grandma has one great blessing. Modes are not always becoming, at best, and she doesn't have to compromise with new styles at all, or work them out to fit her need. No flat backs for her if she doesn't want them; no straight, unbending lines—just the suitable, accustomed silhouette.

Of course, she will drape a good deal. Drapery flatters plump lines and conceals scrawny ones.

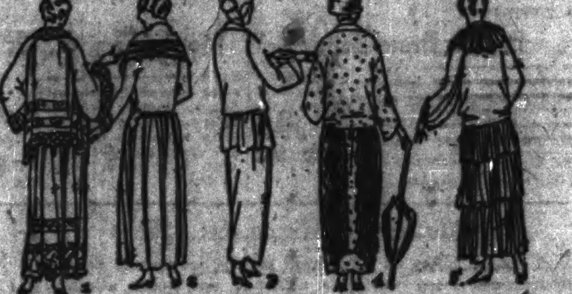
She can go in for all the pastel shades she wants. Soft ecrus, so popular today, are good for her, and creamy yellow, powder blue, soft mauve, tan, and delicate gray. And the laces! It is a lovely thing for a woman to possess and wear nothing but real lace, as she grows older to have every mesh she wears real, however little, Valenciennes, Spanish, and so on. It is particularly distingue to carry that note.



Let us give grandma here lavender for the beginning of her day—a negligee at the far left of cream lace and insertion over a petticoat of soft, cream colored satin with cream lace.

If she is the dear, old fashioned sort she will probably want to be out of that into her day things and first downstairs of early morning, leaving the negligee for other moments. So next we give her a house dress. For that, the fichu.

She can have as many fichus as she likes, whether they are in style, as at present, or not. Grandma should affect them, and make loving work for willing fingers as gifts for her. For the morning dress, adorned with a pretty fichu, a soft black silk is a good material, with full skirt and round bodice, easily buttoned or hooked up the front. The style is all right for all her house dresses. Put together this way, it makes easy work of dressing.



OTHER VIEWS OF TODAY'S FIGURES.

No sweaters for grandma! She will want a jacket, a cape, a shawl, a scarf. It is the draped line that makes the grace she seeks. Even the soft knitted dress has a harder line than she likes. So the suit for grandma—third from the left—is soft and gives draped lines where sagging contours might show. Crepe or any pliable material is built into a straight skirt with slightly uneven hem line and plaited fullness set in front in panel effect. The side fastened, bloused coat has a soft peplum. With this one grandma wears a widow's bonnet faced with white, its Marie Stuart curve being extremely becoming. Her shoes are white suede oxfords, worn with white stockings.

For the afternoon promenade, or to pay a visit, we give her a white crepe with black silk dots. Little handkerchief drapes in plaits give additional fullness to the easy skirt, set in panels at the sides, back, and front, and two of the handkerchief drapes give all needed draping to the bodice. Both tucker and collar are of organdy, and the sleeves have a pleasant flare. There is a brimmed, shaped hat of black satin with white flowers bunched to the front.

Black, mauve, or gray georgette or chiffon serve admirably for grandma's evening wear. She will always have sleeves to her evening gowns, for she will be the first to know that flesh, unless flawless, is better veiled at any age—long, flowing full sleeves, caught at the cuff with a plaited ruffle, as in the dress to the far right, where plaited white georgette shields the neck and makes the cuffs of a black georgette dress with tiered skirt.

Medium sized hats or small toques, with not too severe a line, for grandma, and, above everything else, no fussy straps and idle decorations about shoes or laciness of stockings. If buckles, small ones, whether cut steel or rhinestone. And shoes and stockings harmonizing. A well turned ankle and neat foot is as prized a possession in years as in youth; and should not be belittled with garish footwear.

None of the brilliant novelty materials for grandma's wraps. It should be draped and soft about the neck. None of your staunchly straight, squared, voluminous collars. Rather smooth finish materials are best in utility coatings. Youth carries off the shaggy effects best. Instead of the popular metalized effects for evening wraps, she must use the dull finished fabrics for the best returns.

Low cut tan shoes and white canvas for the country are for grandma, too, on informal occasions.

The latest revival of grandmother's day is the square shawl of crepe de chine. Whatever belongs to "the charm and grace which time makes strong" belongs to her, too. She may have plenty of such shawls—or any shawls. And if there is a color liking she has carried with her into her kingdom—a love for blues or browns—she can find softened shades of them that still belong to her.

THE POTTERS

PROLOGUE.

Father Time, for all his long gray beard and paternal aspect, is an incredible comedian . . . how else can one account for the sly malice with which he changes the royal palaces of yesterday's pomp into the plebeian peepshows of today? . . . with what an ironic smile he must have watched the building of those arrogant barriers raised by the kings and princes around their privileges, knowing that today the tourist—that quintessence of democratic indifference—will stray with irreverent contempt through these sacred confines and paw with idle curiosity the crumbling vestiges of a pride that believed itself immortal . . . and yet in Versailles one is touched by the pathos rather than the whimsy of Time's huge jest . . . these glorious halls seem full of stately ghosts, lingering mournfully amid the grandeur which was theirs in life and which remains to dazzle and astound us with its wanton magnificence.

SCENE I.—THE ROAD.

Any number of sightseeing busses leave Paris for Versailles every day, so the Potters can make the trip in an hour which used to take the king, behind his eight plunging horses, four times that long . . . the same road down which the mob walked all that grim October night to bring Louis XVI. and Marie Antoinette back to Paris and the guillotine . . . quaint villages, drowsing indifferently behind their impassive gray walls . . . enter the Potters . . .

MA (enthusiastically):
My, what a cute little town!

PA (eyeing lack of bustle with disfavor):
It looks dead to me. I bet you couldn't stir up any excitement in this town to save your life.

(Ah, that's what the kings thought about these same little towns, and then one day they all went off like a bunch of volcanoes . . . BAM . . . BLOOIE . . . good-by, king.)

MAMIE:
All the houses have little walls around them! (To Guide.) How old do you suppose that house is?

GUIDE (nonchalantly):
O, two or three hundred years, I suppose. Maybe four hundred.

PA (whistling):
Whew, they built 'em to last in those days, didn't they?

(Yes, Pa, they sure did, whereas back home: "Why did the house collapse?" "Because they took down the scaffolding before they pasted on the wall paper.")

SCENE II.—THE PALACE.

In reality a number of palaces all run together, some beautiful, some tremendous, some execrable, but welded into a breath-taking whole . . . the Potters are going to "see" it all this afternoon . . . only a few thousand rooms inside and a few thousand acres of park and a few more thousand of forest and a few hundred fountains . . . well, let's go . . .

GUIDE (conducting party through huge outer court and smaller inner "Marble court"):
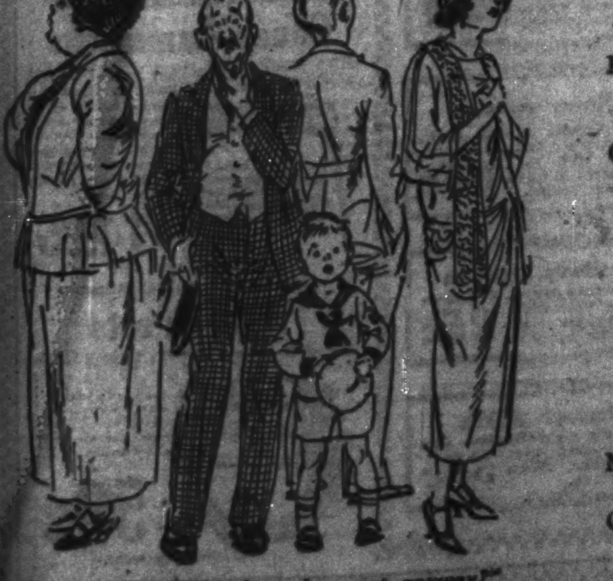
We will first enter the Chapel of Versailles, which dates from the last period of the reign of Louis XIV.

PA: Last period? How long did he reign?

GUIDE:
He became king of France when he was about four years old, and he died when he was seventy-seven, so he reigned nominally for about seventy-three years.



"How much did this darn place cost, anyway?"

PA (reflectively):
Well, well! You could almost call that a life job.

GUIDE:
We will view the chapel from the king's gallery, as all the proportions were taken from it. The king only came down to the ground floor on rare occasions. As a general rule, he sat here in a little round wooden cage that screened him from view, and just opposite on the right was the "logette," or cage, used first by Mme. de Maintenon and later by Marie Antoinette. You will notice they have little wooden platforms for their feet. The marble floors were too cold for royalty.

MA (solicitously):
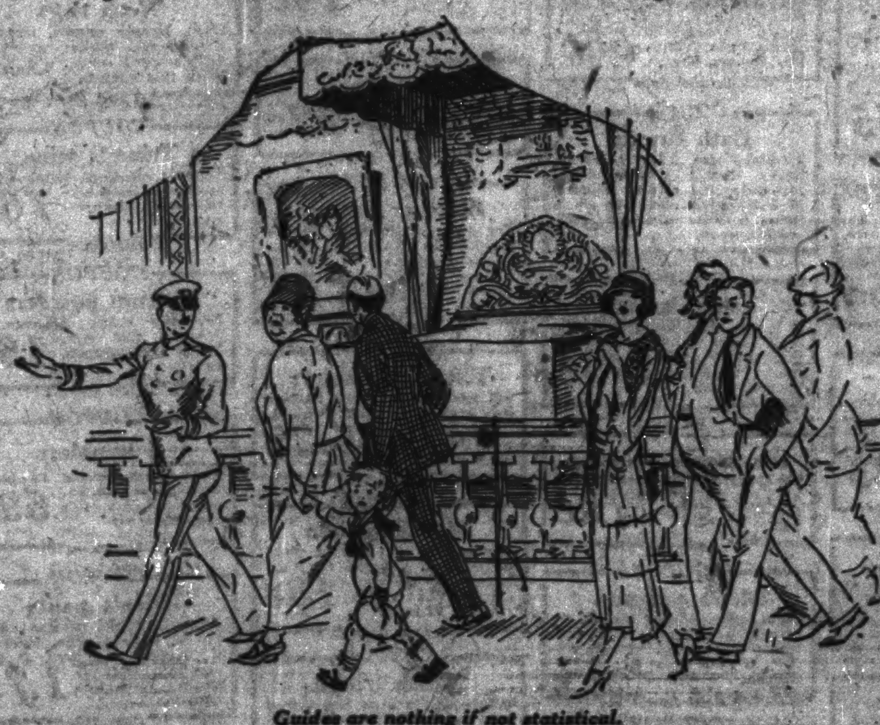
My goodness, how did they keep warm?

GUIDE:
They didn't. We are told that during some of the great feasts in the palace they depended on little charcoal braziers to keep warm, and wine often froze in the cups.

(Louis XIV. would probably have traded a few hundred yards of palace for a good heating plant in the basement . . . and maybe the royal janitors wouldn't have to step around . . . "The janitor refuses to empty the ashes, your majesty." . . . "Ah, very well; chop off his head and feed him to the gold fish." . . . "But the gold fish won't eat janitors, your majesty; it deranges their digestions." . . . "Then give him to the carp, but be quick about it; our royal corns are freezing.")

GUIDE:
This is the Salon d'Hercule. The painting on the ceiling comprises one hundred and forty-two figures and was painted by Francois Le Moyne, who worked at it seven years, lying on his back practically all the time. He received $36,000 for it, but the ultramarine paint alone cost him $14,400, and, firmly convinced that he would never recover what he spent, he lost his mind and killed himself with seven sword thrusts and the age of forty-nine.



Guides are nothing if not statistical.

(Guides are nothing if not statistical. . . . he might have added that it was here the cat organ was played for the court . . . it consisted of an organ case in which were tied a row of cats, the tails of which protruded through holes in the wood. A monkey was taught to run on the keyboard, pulling now this and now that tail, the result being a gamut of fearful mewing that convulsed the court . . . what exquisite sensibilities they must have had in those days!)

MA (as the Guide takes them through room after room of the king's "state apartments," inlaid with over one hundred different varieties of marble, hung with rare tapestries, decorated with superb paintings, hand carved, gold leafed):
Oooh . . . Ohhhh . . . Ahhhh . . .

PA (dazed):
Gosh . . . Gee . . . Oootch . . .

MAMIE (dazzled):
Mmmmmm . . . Ahhhhh . . . Ohhhhh . . .

BILL (admiringly):
Them kings sure didn't give themselves any the worst of it. Baby!

GUIDE (indicating curious timepiece):
This clock was made in 1706 for Louis XIV. by Antoine Morand de Pontdevaux.

("Every time the clock strikes," relates D'Argenville in his "Voyage Pittoresque des Environs de Paris," 1779, "two cocks sing three times each and some figures come out, each carrying a bell as a shield, on which two Cupids strike alternately the quarters with clubs. A bust of Louis XIV. comes out from the middle of the decorative device. Above it rises a cloud whence Victory comes down, carrying a crown, which she holds over the head of the King, while a very pleasant chime is heard, at the end of which everything disappears and the hour rings out." . . . After that, one supposes, the clock had nothing to do for another hour . . . imagine trying to sleep with a machine like that in the room!)

PA (at the entrance of the Great gallery, or Gallery of Mirrors):
Mamma! Lookit this . . . wow!

BILL (dazzled):
Ooh, Baby! Some joint!

GUIDE:
The Galerie des Glaces was begun in 1674 and finished in 1684. It is 74 meters long (nearly 250 feet), 10 meters 40 broad (nearly 35 feet), and 13 meters high (over 40 feet). It was here King William of Prussia was crowned emperor of Germany on Jan. 18, 1871; and in this same place and on the same spot was signed the treaty of peace between the allies and Germany. Clemenceau sat here, President Wilson there, and Lloyd George there.

CHORUS:
Where?

GUIDE (pointing to historic spot in center of room near mirrored arcade):
Right here.

(The Potters and the other tourists crowd around to see, reconstructing in their minds, each to his own taste, that memorable occasion when, by the scratching of a few pens, was ended the most disastrous war of all history and was begun one of the most curious peaces ever known . . . standing here with the Potters, one wonders where and when the next great peace will be signed and who will survive the whirlwind of the next great destruction to sign it.)

PA (dazed by the magnificence of endless vistas upon vistas of these gorgeous rooms):
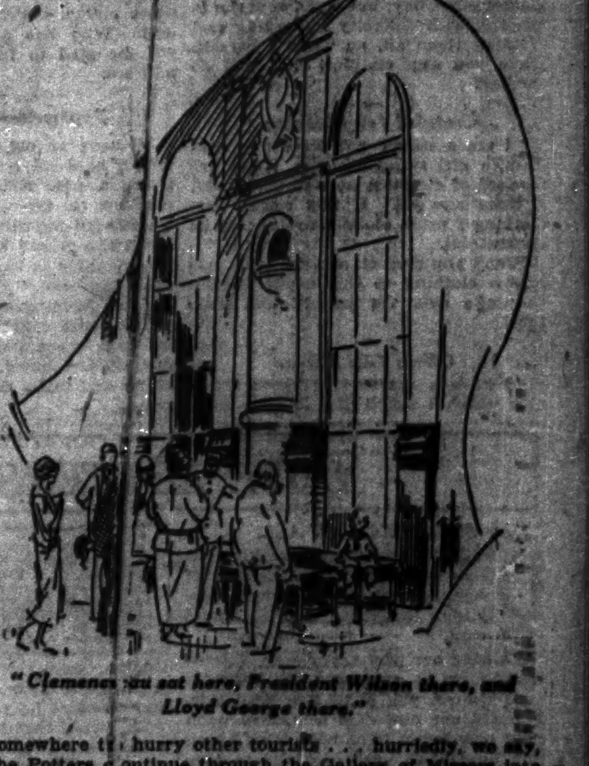
Jiminy Christmas, how much did this darn place cost, anyway?

GUIDE:
Nobody really knows. It is said that during the reign of Louis XIV. alone more than 380,000,000 francs was spent, or around $76,000,000. On the other hand, the historian Volney speaks of 1,400 millions of livres, which would be $8,600,000,000. Somewhere between these two figures is the real sum spent for the palaces, the great gardens and canals, and the systems which bring the water for miles to supply the 1,400 fountains that existed in the Grand Monarch's time, of which only 600 jets survive.



"Clemenceau sat here, President Wilson there, and Lloyd George there."

(Hurriedly, for tourists must always hurry, in order to make way for other tourists, also hurrying to make way, in turn, for still more hurrying tourists, hurrying to go somewhere to hurry other tourists . . . hurriedly, we say, the Potters continue through the Gallery of Mirrors into the Chambres du Roi, the bedchamber of Louis XIV. and later of Louis XVI. . . . it was on the balcony of this room that the King and Marie Antoinette stood before the mob that had marched all night from Paris and now clamored in the early dawn for bread and vengeance . . . out there in the Marble court the ragged mob wolfed bits of half roasted horseflesh and howled in derision at royalty cowering in terror . . . and this was only one of the many mobs that screeched with joy as the head of this same unfortunate Louis XVI. fell in the basket, followed by that of Marie Antoinette and, still later, in turn, by the heads of the beheaders, Robespierre and the rest . . . a terrible animal, the mob . . . we in the States have seen but one real mob, and that was on Armistice day and the mob was happy . . . one shudders to think of this same mob aroused in anger.)

PA (as the party finally completes its tour of that small portion of the palace open to the public):
Gosh!

MA (simply):
I suppose it was very grand, but I didn't see one good bathroom in the place. Didn't those kings ever take a bath?

GUIDE:
Perfume was cheaper than water and much more popular.

MA (fervently):
Well, give me the good old United States and hot and cold running water.

GUIDE:
We will now see the Trianons and then the little hamlet of Marie Antoinette, where she loved to dress up and imagine she was a simple peasant, among the bees and doves and vegetable gardens. And then the fountains, which, fortunately, play one hour today, this being the first Sunday of the month.

PA (glad to look at anything as simple as a bee and a vegetable for a change):
All right; c'mon, let's go.

(And hurry through, of course, for tomorrow the Potters leave Paris for Nice.)

(And that's that—until next Sunday.)

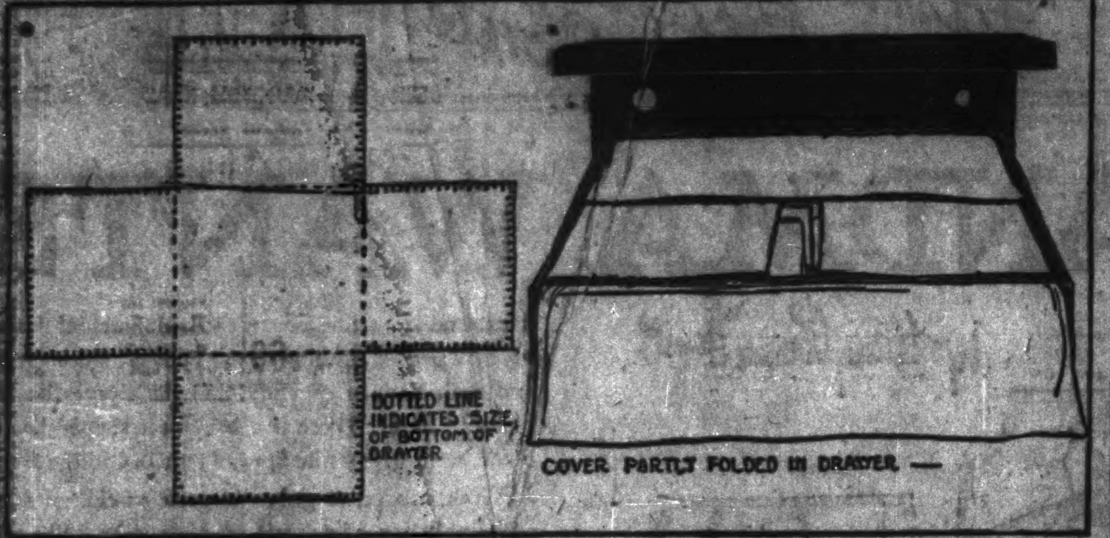
Practical and Fancy Needlework

BY CLOTILDE



DOTTED LINE INDICATES SIZE OF BOTTOM OF DRAWER
COVER PARTLY FOLDED IN DRAWER —

COVERS FOR LINEN.

It is often necessary to lay towels over table and bed linen to keep them clean, for dust will sift into drawers in most instances. Instead of using makeshifts, why not make regular covers?

Cheesecloth is ideal for the purpose, the best quality being none too good.

The measure of the drawer must be taken. The picture accompanying this article shows the manner of cutting. The square or oblong in the center should be the size of the bottom of the drawer and the four shaped pieces are intended to be folded over the linen, entirely covering the contents.

These covers are made of two pieces of material, with a single layer of sheet wadding laid in between. This wadding should be split through the middle, and sachet powder of some kind or sweet lavender plentifully sprinkled over the surface. Then this wadding is laid on a piece of the material, and the material is turned up over all edges and basted down. The second piece of material is pinned in place, all edges turned in, basted down, and the edges held together by the blanket stitch. Mark off two inch spaces all over the upper surface and tack with floss.

These covers are pretty made in colors, using some contrasting color for the edges and tacking. Sometimes China silk is used; and that is especially pretty for the purpose.

If one chooses, these covers may be made of a single thickness of dark blue linen, and the edges finished with a narrow hem. On the piece that folds over the top, one could embroider one's monogram in white. Such a cover would be decidedly practical as it would be so easily laundered.

For the bottom of a bureau drawer, the flat pads made of China silk are most attractive. These pieces are finished to the exact size of the bottom of the drawer, and one's favorite sachet powder can be used for them.

What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune.

MARITAL REEFS

What was the greatest stumbling block to happiness in your married life? Did you have to struggle with too idealistic and too romantic a viewpoint toward mate and matrimony? Was it incompatibility of temperament or interests? Was there an economic reason for the reef you nearly struck? Was your stumbling block age disparity? Religious differences? Too much mother-in-law? Poor housekeeping? Extravagance? Jealousy? Unfair division of the pay envelope? Husband unfaithful, thoughtless, unkind, alcoholic, lazy, deceitful? Perhaps it was some other stumbling block about which you can tell us and which may help some other couple about to embark upon the good ship Matrimony. Tell us about it, won't you? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Has Handsome Husband.

My husband was the Beau Brummell of our set. Naturally handsome, he augmented nature's gifts by what seemed to me then a commendable attention to sartorial effect. After our marriage, I thought it delightful for people to gush over my handsome husband; but later, when I found that every legitimate expenditure must be curtailed in order to swell the fund for his innumerable new suits, coats, silk hose, shirts, and underwear, I began to lose my enthusiasm.

And when every available garment in my trousseau had been made over, dyed, and remade and there was no money for even the simplest new garment for me and heard myself characterized as "that dashing Mr. F's dowdy little wife," my eyes were completely opened. I had married a fop, a vain, conceited, selfish tailor's model.

I hoped that perhaps with the coming of the babies, my husband's manhood would be aroused; but it altered matters not one iota, and in desperation I found myself doing work at home, sewing, laundering curtains, anything to turn an honest dollar, so that the children might be neatly clothed.

The worst of my troubles is over now, I hope, for our eldest son is self-supporting and the other two nearly so; but my leisure hours are still devoted to cleaning, pressing, and mending my ever dashing husband's extensive wardrobe.

I would caution young girls, about to select a mate for life, to beware of the over-fastidious dresser. Too much love of fine raiment, despicable enough when a feminine attribute, is unendurable in a man.

Now She Pays Cash.

The credit plan proved to be my stumbling block. I love beautiful things, and of course the ones I liked best cost most. I should have turned back when I found I hadn't enough money to pay for them, but, instead, I listened to the smooth words of the salesman: "Only a dollar down, madam, and a few dollars every month. Why wait until you have saved the money when you can have the use and enjoyment of these articles by our extended payment plan?"

And I was tempted, and fell. In fact, I fell so hard I bought quantities of things right then. Why not? It was so easy. The salesmen were indeed silver tongued orators.

The first few months went fine. After that the payments began to pinch a little. And when my husband lost his job then, indeed, my day of reckoning was at hand.

The credit plan not only broke up my home, but I nearly lost my husband. It is best to draw a curtain over that part.

Now I pay cash for everything. One lesson was enough for me. And I'm not taking any chances on losing my husband.

A FRIEND IN NEED

by Sally Joy Brown

I want to be the medium through which the friend in deed and the friend in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy, and you would gladly give it if you knew how to go about it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Unusual and Urgent.

"You have been so successful making other people happy, I am going to make an unusual request of you for a most deserving case. It is a poor family on the northwest side of the city. They have had a great deal of sickness, and are still having it, and the doctor recommends goat's milk. They have no way of paying for it. I wonder if any of your readers could get a milch goat for them for a short while. They would be ever so grateful.

"G. B. B."

An unusual request, but an urgent one. I know any one who can help will do so. I shall be glad to forward the address upon request.

Meeting with Difficulty.

"I must help to support my family, but can't do so until I get some clothing. My size is 44; shoes, 7. I have eight children, boys, ranging from 3½ to 16 years. Our only income is what the eldest earns, which is a small amount. He also needs clothing badly. We are two months behind in the rent, and have been threatened with a notice if we do not pay soon.

MRS. M."

These boys will be a big help to their mother some day, but right now she is meeting with difficulty in feeding and clothing them all, as well as herself. Have you any clothing that will do for her?

Grateful for Clothing.

"I am a widow and have two children, a girl 4 and a boy 2. They are in need of clothing, as well as myself. I wear size 36. If any reader has clothing I could make over I would be so grateful.

MRS. K."

Won't you pass on some of your outgrown clothing to this needy woman to make over for herself and little tots?

Offers Gas Stove.

"I have a gas stove in good condition which I would like to have some deserving family get. It is a tall stove, standing on legs, and has a good oven.

MRS. H."

A most timely offering to some family who is trying to cook on a hot range or on one that has seen better days. Write in to Mrs. H. if you want her to consider you as an applicant for this most generous gift.

For Poor Children.

"I have a great deal of time on my hands and would like to make dolls and cats such as are made of the legs of stockings for poor children. Could some one send me the patterns, as I do not know if they can be bought?

"MRS. S. P."

A request for indirect help to make some child's heart happy with a rag doll. Who has any suggestions? I will be glad to forward Mrs. S. P.'s address.

Typewriter Is Offered.

"I have an old standard typewriter which has one shift key broken and needs a new ribbon. Any one who can use a typewriter will have no trouble getting service out of it. Kindly let the person know what condition the machine is in, so he won't expect anything new.

MRS. S. P."

Some budding author or perhaps an invalid who could find home work to do with the aid of your gift will be delighted, I know, to receive the machine and make the few necessary repairs.

LOVE LETTERS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one or if you have one in your private or family possessions you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Love Letter Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. As no letters will be returned send copies of the ones you wish to keep.

BITTEREST OF ALL.

DEAR JOHN:—There are love letters which depict the heights of ecstasy, and others, abject desolation, loneliness, and bitterness of the soul.

Viewing our past experience, John—could mine be aught but the latter?

Of course, you will never read this. I would not now cast a shadow upon your new found happiness. But I love you, and shall ever continue to love you, and perhaps the poignancy of my loss will be lightened if these thoughts find expression, if only on paper, for there is no one to tell; no one to understand or sympathize. My life has been strangely filled with disappointments; and to have found you—you who brought beauty, hope, and happiness into my starved life—and then to have lost you, is the bitterest of all cups.

When last you came to see me, the time elapsed can be measured in minutes; do you remember, in your dear, teasing way, you measured my height as compared to yours? I have not seen you since, but the memory lingers, and the evidence is before me, night and day, that I failed in some way to come up to your standard.

The word that you had married was a staggering blow. The thought of your dear, tender, inspiring companionship through life—that which formed the golden network of my dreams, now blasted—that companionship now lost to me forever, is the cup I must drink to the bitter dregs in the weary, empty years to come.

But the sweet and abiding knowledge that I love you can never be erased. The thought of you will follow me wherever I may go, will fill my days, elevate me to better things, wider scopes and nobler desires. Even for this, I thank you.

EMILY.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—It is natural enough, I suppose, in the first warm spell Paris has enjoyed, with the horses dropping in the streets and shoes sticking to the melted tar on the pavements, that I should find myself wishing to discourse on the little woolen jackets that we are going to be permitted to wear even round town this winter. Probably the way of it is that the French have been cold for so long and have had their feet hurt so uninterruptedly that the flesh is beginning to assert itself, with the result that they are bringing in sensible shoes and articles that give the body warmth. They call us freezers when we wish a wadding or interlining in our fur coats, that being what makes them more than fall wraps.

Of course, out of doors they think they are killed when the thermometer begins to strike a pitch far short of the extremity it reaches either in winter or summer in America, and in the out of doors they cannot compete with us for bearing either heat or cold. In the interiors, however, they have it all over us for feats of strength and endurance, we being entirely undermined by the heat which we endure in our homes.

At any rate, they have now produced this new type, called Russian, but I am sure it came into existence not far beyond the boundaries of France. Russian is the name of it, and it finds itself on sale in numbers and colors never sanctioned by the rainbow up at the Russian tearoom, which is just about the smartest place in Paris in which to have your tea. We must really have a letter on this subject apart.

As for the jacket, it is the softest of wool, and has a pattern going horizontally round it, usually in crude, sounding colors, although there are some among the number in soft melanges of shadings. England is turning out her quota in Shetland wool—or rather the Shetlanders themselves are making them for shipment, being so jealous of the industry they allow not one skein of their wool to leave home shores.

You can gather for yourself how much of a hit has been this little jacket, with at least one of which every person on European territory is going to be provided. They all tie at the neck, and for some time were left to hang free as in the accompanying model. Recently they are beginning to lap them at the lower extremity and sometimes they tie the two lower points as they have done those at the top. The sleeves all fit closely round the upper arm and spread into a bell shaped fall over the wrists.

On the afternoon I bought one I protested they were suitable only for the country, and the lovely Russian who served me spared her words, although she used English ones beautifully, pointing merely to the smart tea drinkers through the doorway of the next room. I think that barring perhaps two, every woman present wore one. They are chic indeed on the street, even without jacket, for little dresses of crêpe, silk and light wool.

The idea is but a variation of the style Chanel made popular, providing sweaters with dresses and lining them with the material or with crêpe de chine the color of the dress. These in their wild combinations of color have nevertheless a care to repeat some color of the gown which they "support."

This one is in brown, with red and yellow colorings supplementaire, and it is over a dress of brown crinkly crêpe. There is a long jacket with the dress, and with the assistance of this warm jacket, the suit will be available for use at least until Christmas here and in a climate even as severe as yours with the addition of a fur piece.

Just why is one so moved of a warm day to play up wraps in all their phases? A smart ermine cape was seen at Longchamps by a large number of admiring people, with a new "wrinkle" in trimming to it. The second sketch shows just how it went. The cape part came not far below the waist line, and from it hung white suede leather fringe. The underdress was of black satin, and the hat of a combination of dull and shiny ribbons overlapping.

Drecoll shows a dress in black brocaded crêpe trimmed with monkey fur in this unique chic fashion. All of the drapery goes down one side. Note the long, tight, mousquetaire sleeves.

The fourth is a Lanvin robe de style, of apple green wedding gown satin, shiny and stiff. The "amusing" part of it is, to quote the artist, that the umbrella feature, which is the distinguishing thing about the dress, does not take place in the back, which is perfectly flat. Two big diamond motifs "find themselves," as both the artist and the French would put it, on the low corsage, near either shoulder on the front. At the right hip there is another, which holds a streamer of green satin in place.

HOW TO ORDER YOUR CLOTILDE PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of each pattern you want. Inclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE, Chicago.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

A LAVENDER and white plaid gingham, combined with fine white pique, linen, or cotton poplin, would make up charmingly by pattern No. 1771. There is nothing prettier than wash dresses for afternoons at home all the year around, or for many out of door occasions during warm weather, and if one can do her own sewing the cost, even for the best materials, is a fraction of what the same garment would be ready made.

This is a one piece dress, with a front panel in two pieces, the upper part extending and forming the neckband. The dress is slashed in from the under arm edges below the waistline—the lower edges gathered and joined to the upper slashed edges, and the width for size 36 is about 1⅝ yards at the bottom.

The slashed edges should be taken care of first and in gathering the skirt begin where the cutting stops, with the narrowest possible seam, gradually getting it to about ⅛ inch. Take a straight strip of the material, enough longer and wider than the slash to turn in on the four edges and extend a little beyond, and baste this on the wrong side of the dress over the gathers. It is not a bad idea to hem it down all around by hand. Then from the right side take darning stitches back and forth over the cut edges. Do this to the four slashed places and then put the skirt seams together. The next step will be to cut two straight strips—one for each slashed side—and after turning the edges in, baste each one over a slashed place and stitch exactly on the edges.

After the shoulder seams are finished and the neck edge slashed at intervals and turned in, the neck band is seamed together in the back and the turned in edge of the dress set in place over the bottom edge. Directions are given with the pattern, telling exactly how to attach the panel to the front.

If the dress is embroidered, some part of the design should be used on the little bands over the gathers.

This design would make up prettily in satin, crêpe or light weight woolen.

Children's dresses follow the same general style as that of their elders, and pattern No. 1715 is cut on the same lines as older sister's or mother's would be. It is pretty with the unbroken front line and the surplice closing, and the belt or sash starts from one side, and fastens on the left side, not going across the front at all.

The front and back are slashed in from the under arm edges to give fullness to the skirt on the sides, the same as in the dress just described. Any of the wash materials, or wool serge, jersey or poplin, or taffeta would be suitable materials. A delicate blue chintz would be lovely, with the belt or sash of rose in grosgrain or moire. The edges of the collar and cuffs could be finished with a narrow bias binding of the dress material, and just inside this binding French knots, or a single line of cross stitching in white or rose, would be pretty.

Pattern No. 1765 is a one piece dress, with the front slashed, faced, and rolled back, forming revers. An inset vest is attached under the rever on the right side, and fastened with small snaps on the left.

The dress gores out towards the bottom, measuring there, for size 36, about two yards.

Instead of cutting the front and back in one piece, there are middle front and back sections, lapped over and stitched to side front and back sections; and right here is given a chance for trimming. These parts may be simply stitched together, or a piping of some contrasting color may be set in, or a narrow line of some cross stitch may be embroidered the length of the dress just inside, towards the front and back of the sections.

The one piece sleeves have one end of each cuff turned back and fastened with a fancy button—a little different finish from most sleeves. This design should be suitable for any of the heavier wash materials, or silk, woolen or crepe.

Summer Fatigue
THE nervous irritation caused by badly shaped shoes is a constant drain which will detract from your pleasure now and may result in a serious breakdown later. For health and efficiency, wear the Cantilever Shoe.
It is patterned on the lines of the foot. The arch of the shoe hugs the curve of the instep and provides restful support for the foot. Well-set heel and natural inner sole line distribute the weight properly, without strain.
And the shank is flexible! Instead of checking the circulation, it encourages good circulation, correcting burning and perspiring feet. In this comfortable and healthful way, Cantilevers help greatly to prevent hot weather fatigue.

VACATIONS for EVERYBODY

by Antoinet
Donnelly
HELEN SPRENGLER

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you have had your two weeks, days free to spend as you please, these words of mine in this story will not concern you much except as to what I shall have to say about keeping up the good work of rejuvenation with vacation glands.

For putting hope and youth and enthusiasm back into weary bones again, I maintain that a couple of weeks with hands and fancy free will beat the monkey rejuvenating plans forty ways.

A holiday is not as expensive an operation—nor does one subject himself to sly inuendos. It is the normal process of youthing it along year after year, based on the trite but true adage that all work and no play makes the dullard and the grumpy.

Dame Nature Disciplines.

Now, I claim when a person gets to believe she cannot be got along without a few weeks out of fifty-two, no matter what her environment or vocation—she is heading for the school Dame Nature runs on a disciplinary system that takes no account of one's own importance in one's own opinion.

One of the tonic medicines of life is the knowledge that no one is so important but our shoes are filled the moment Heaven decides to give us a fling at wings for an indeterminate spell.

Bad Personal Management.

I know there are numbers of men who boast they haven't taken a vacation in years. Fact is, they are boasting of bad personal management. No credit is due to them, and quite a deal of censure. They treat their automobiles better when they "lay them up" for a time to be overhauled, repainted, and oiled.

One of the early century philosophers said: "Take a rest; a field that has rested gives a beautiful crop.

There are few places of employment nowadays where provision is not made for vacation terms. Employers are no more magnanimous than the rest of us when it comes to dispensing with their money and time. Established vacation plans have become so because employers know the truth of the old philosopher's dictum. They reap more bountiful crops.

Mothers Often Err.

Now there is a class of workers, belonging to the most honorable profession in the world, who sometimes, through the fault of their husband employer and the young Simon Legrees of the household to whom they give more hours a day than any other union would stand for, labor on under the delusion that their presence the full number of weeks the year around is absolutely necessary and of foremost duty and consequence. I mean the hard working mothers. The kind of mothers answering the description of young Jimmy, who, when asked in school what would happen if there were five people at the table and only four pieces of pie, replied, "O, mother wouldn't care for any."

These mothers have the wrong slant on things. Their duty is not fifty-two weeks of cooking, sewing, laundressing, waitressing, nursing, housemanaging, and the thousand in-between calls. For the sake of efficiency as well as fair play, such a mother owes it to herself to pack up her own suitcase and let dad hunt up his fishing tackle and his old rubber boots, if she has not time to do both.

Minus Merry Disposition.

It is pathetic to see so many instances of the wife and mother being cheated and left behind, while father and the youngsters are packed off for what they believe is a vacation justly coming to them.

All work and no play are as bad for mother as for the other members of the household, and if she keeps it up year after year she is bound to become dull and minus the merrier disposition which a change of scene alone will give her.

It is not generous of a mother to assume this attitude. It is a mistake, and, while it may seem a cold blooded thing to say, she almost deserves what she gets by it. A burden carried for a long time without rest gets so heavy it has to be thrown off entirely. Sanitariums are filled with examples—and epitaphs are written with dates of birth and death, but no eulogies. Aye, and even the shoes of the too generous one are filled in due time.

Let Them Shuffle Along.

A mother who is fagged and worn, body and soul, is not an efficient or happy one, no matter what encomiums may be sung upon her other virtues.

Such a one should give the family the surprise of its life by calmly announcing this year: "I am going on a vacation. Now you will just have to shuffle for yourselves for awhile."

They will shuffle along somehow. You need not worry about that. And I would urge you to take your vacation some place away from them, so there will not be one single demand upon you. When you come back you will realize that instead of doing them any wrong you have done them an immeasurable favor.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

Harry's folks noticed he was content to play in his own yard and wondered why he didn't tease to go and play with the boys on the vacant lot.

When asked about it he said: "Well,

I'm a regular scrapper when with my own gang, but there's a boy visiting here and I don't know whether I can lick him or not; so I'm waiting till he's gone home. I like our yard best anyway."
H. L. H.

Johnny was presented with a pup a few days ago. He had him out one day on a leash.

While playing with other boys, the pup got away and ran pell-mell, with Johnny after him.

The pup ran into the house and Johnny yelled triumphantly:

"Mamma, he knew our number."
M. C.

Walter, looking at a neighbor's new baby, was asked if he wouldn't like a baby like that.

"O, yes," he replied, "only I want an old one!"

Wonderful New Orange-Tinted Bloom Gives a Surpassingly Natural Effect

POMPEIAN Orange Bloom shows an orange tint only before applying—as soon as it is on the cheek it becomes a delicate natural rosy flush, blending so perfectly with the flesh tones that it actually does "defy detection."

No change takes place in the rouge itself—it is wholly a matter of what artists call "complementary coloring." Like all Pompeian rouge, this Orange Bloom is pure and harmless. Non-crumbling, yet coming off easily on the puff.

Every woman who now uses a rouge should try this new Pompeian Orange Bloom, since it produces a more natural effect on the majority of complexions under both daylight and electric light.

The Proper Powder

POMPEIAN Bloom is formulated to blend perfectly with Pompeian Beauty Powder, the Rachel and Naturelle tints of powder harmonizing especially well with the Orange tint of Bloom. The best results are always obtained when creams, powder, and rouge from a single maker are used together.

Pompeian Beauty Powder is a soft, velvety powder with an unusual affinity for the skin. Its adhesiveness is most remarkable, and does away with the annoyance of frequent repowdering.

The Foundation Cream

IF you have been using your face powder without first applying a foundation cream, you will be surprised at the improved effect that comes with the use of Pompeian Day Cream (vanishing).

This cream, rubbed over the skin, quickly disappears, removing oiliness and giving the desired velvety surface. Powder applied over it will go on much more smoothly and evenly than upon the unprepared skin, and it will stay on even longer, because of the retaining influence of the cream.

The Lip Stick

WHEN you heighten the tint of your cheeks you need a touch of lip stick to bring your mouth to the same "key."

Pompeian Lip Stick is of an ideal consistency—neither too hard nor too soft. Its color is so natural that it is not to be distinguished when carefully used. The stick is chisel-pointed to make it easier to "spot" the color just where you want it. It comes in a dainty, telescoping gilt container, convenient for the hand-bag.

The Care of the Skin in Summer

By Mme. Jeannette

About this time of the year, women begin to realize that they look "different" in their dancing frocks and formal clothes. This is generally due to the damage done by sun and wind.

It is always harmful to suffer wind- or sun-burn; every such experience is an added hurt to the texture of the skin. When the skin is wind- or sun-burned, much of the natural oil is burned out and the skin becomes unhealthily dry. An intense contraction of the upper skin (epidermis) takes place and should be scientifically treated to stimulate the natural oils, and supply others till the condition is overcome.

Summer Precautions

Before going out and before powdering the face it is the part of wisdom to use Pompeian Day Cream. This delightful preparation is delicately fragrant and forms a protective foundation for the day-time toilette. It is a vanishing cream, and disappears almost entirely, leaving an invisible film that is healthful for the skin, and forms an excellent base for the application of the powder and rouge. After using, you will find that your powder goes on more smoothly, and stays on longer.

Don't Touch Water to a New Sunburn

If you acquire a wind- or sun-burn, be sure to use quantities of Pompeian Night Cream as soon as possible. It slightly relaxes the contracted skin, and has a very soothing effect as well. Let the cream stay on the burned parts a few minutes, then gently remove with a soft cloth. If it is night you should leave as much of the cream on as you can comfortably. If burned early in the day, you should use the same treatment and follow it with an application of Day Cream and Powder.

Correct Powder for Tanned Skin

Your usual white or flesh-toned powders will look ghastly over a browned skin. Rachel shade of Pompeian Beauty Powder is a rich cream tone of powder, excellent for tanned skin, and can be used as lavishly as you normally use any other shade without detection.

The Final Touch of Beauty

In summer, when all nature's coloring is richer, it is imperative that the lips have the appearance of health. The effective way is the use of Pompeian Lip Stick. It has healing quality, and adds just the right amount of healthy color.

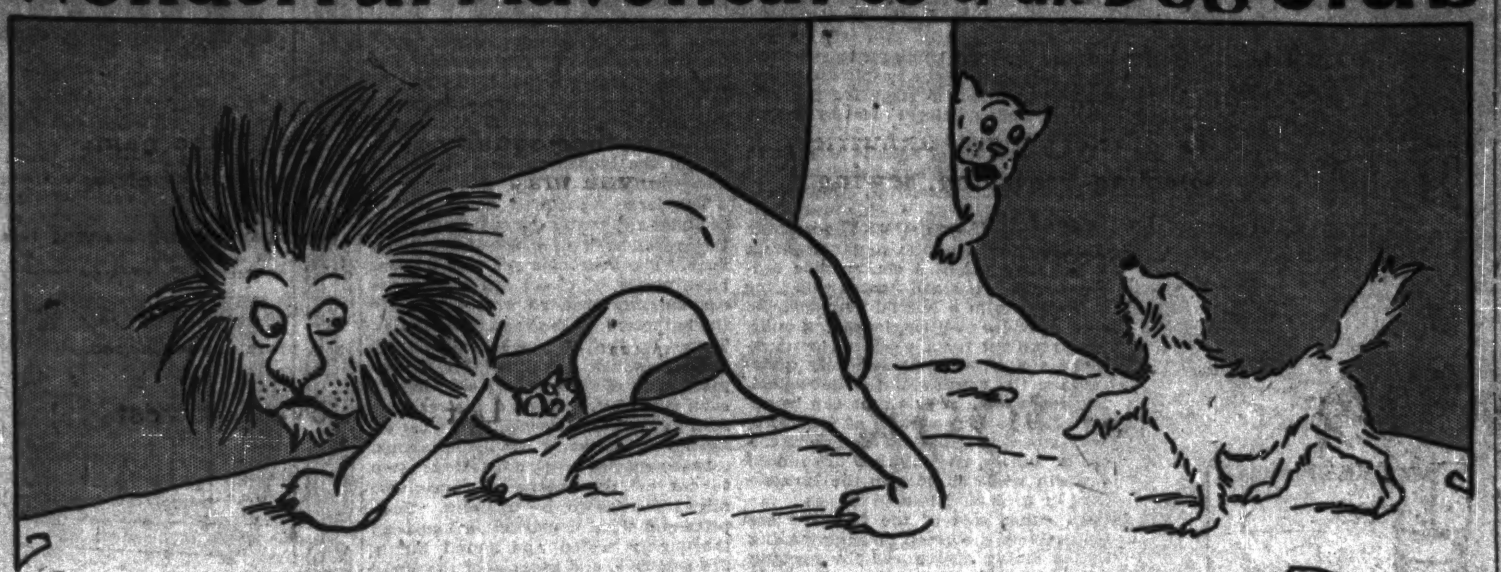
Wonderful Adventures of the Dog Club



TOODLES CAPTURES A LION.

By Raymond Kelly.

MOONLIGHT is very pleasant when it is shining in on your bed so that you can see to go to sleep. But daylight is ever so much nicer when you are alone in a swamp, especially at night. And if you have a lion on your hands, you can use just lots and lots of daylight.

Anyhow, that's what Toodles, the poodle, thought when he found Andy, the circus lion, asleep among the tall weeds at the edge of Cat-tail Hollow, which, as you know, is over nineteen blocks from the nearest candy store. Of course, he was glad to find Andy, and he hoped Andy would be glad to see him, but not too glad, because he'd much rather find a meal for Andy than be one. So Toodles scratched his ear and thought and thought and thought, trying to find some plan to wake Andy without making him angry.

"I have it," cried Toodles softly to himself. "There's a woodchuck's hole just beyond Andy, and it's big enough for me to run into."

Then he ran right over Andy's head much faster than you or I would have done it, and dived into the woodchuck's hole. Then that lion jumped to his feet and roared so loudly that he shook a plate off the pantry shelf clear over at grandmother's, and you know how far that is. You see, he was so frightened he had to make a great deal of noise to keep from being scared. Even lions do that sometimes, you know.

Toodles waited until Andy got through roaring. Then he put half of the tip of his nose out of the hole and said in a whisper, "Andy."

Well, sir, that lion was so puzzled he turned around three times and sat down again. So Toodles spoke to him once more.

"It's Toodles, Andy," said he. "Don't you remember me?"

My, but that lion was glad to find an old friend out there in that lonesome swamp, and he told Toodles all about the terrible time he had had that day.

"The little dogs all barked at me," said Andy, "and the big dogs chased me. A farmer threw a pitchfork at me, too. And when I went up to a lady to ask for a drink of milk, she threw the whole pail in my face. Then she ran away and the milk soaked into the ground before I could get any at all. Oh! How I wish I were back with my circus!"

"If you will mind me, I will take you back the first thing in the morning," said Toodles.

"But why can't we start now?" asked the lost lion.

"Because there's no use being a hero when no one is looking," said Toodles. "You must march ahead of me, and every time I growl you must lie down and cringe. I shall growl frequently, so that people may see I am protecting them from you."

"But I don't want to hurt anyone," objected Andy, "and cringing is so undignified."

"It's undignified to be lost, too," Toodles answered. "You will either promise to cringe, or you will stay lost for keeps."

"All right, then. If I must, I suppose I must," whined the lion, "but it's not polite of you to ask it."

So when daylight came they started, and Toodles marched that lion out of the swamp and across the fields and through the streets, making him cringe whenever they passed people or dogs. All the Gravel-pit pups were on hand, and they were so proud of Toodles that they made him club poet, and barked themselves hoarse at his first poem, which went like this:

"I'm not afraid of jungle beasts,
Of pussy-cats or bears,
Though lions roar along the shore,
This poodle never cares."

Lucky Hundred Boys and Girls Will Have Great Day at Riverview

By Sally Joy Brown.

WHAT do you like best in an amusement park?

Attention, boys and girls! Here's the big party I have planned for you this time and which I know every one of you will enjoy.

Just think—A. R. Hodge, general manager of Riverview, has given me 100 tickets for Friday, Aug. 14, and we're going to have the finest afternoon you could imagine—rides, shows, and everything. We'll go on the great Jack Rabbit and Derby coaster rides. We'll go through the Bug House, Shoot the Chutes, everything for one whole joyous afternoon! And you can be in on it all, just by writing me a winning letter on the easiest subject in the world. Do you see the question I've asked above, in black type—the question about what you like best in an amusement park? That's the question for you to answer in your letter. Could anything be easier?

Think of what joy it will be when you get out in the marvelous Riverview park—142 acres, chuck full of amusements of every kind. Think of the shows you will see, the rides, and how you'll enjoy them. Then put down how you feel about it in a letter, and if your letter shows that you'll have a wonderful time undoubtedly it will win.

And don't forget to get busy right now with your letters! I choose the winners next Thursday morning, so you only have until Wednesday to get your letters in the mail. Lots of boys and girls have missed out on my other parties because they put off writing their letters until too late—so start yours right now. Address it to me—"Sally Joy Brown, care of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE," and be sure to give your address. Then watch next Sunday's paper for the names of the boys and girls I've picked for my guests—and if you work hard with your letter I'm sure you'll be among the lucky hundred!

100 Winners for the Ravinia Party

HERE is the good news for the Ravinia winners—the list of the lucky hundred I'm inviting for my party on next Thursday. I will mail letters to each of you telling all about where to meet me and the time we'll start for Ravinia. If your name is in the list of winners, you'll get your letter by Wednesday morning, so you'll have all day Wednesday to telephone me if you don't understand everything clearly. I hope you'll be there to share in the wonderful time we're going to have.

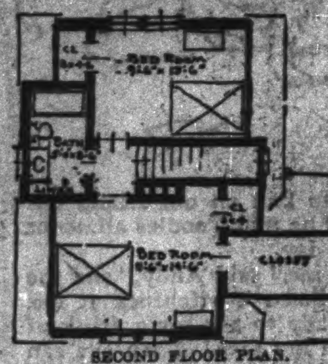
FIRST FLOOR PLAN



SECOND FLOOR PLAN.

DESIGNED with the simplicity of a country cottage in which there are as few angles, nooks, and corners as possible is the delightful little home illustrated today. Architects Ford, Butler & Oliver of New York have planned it to be a most cheerful four room house, with living room, kitchen, and two bedrooms. Of course, there are also a dining room alcove and a bathroom. These, though they are important factors, do not count in the designation of this as a "four room" brick house.

The layout is simple and effective. The walls of the building are of common brick. Because of its general manufacture and distribution throughout the country, and because of the relatively new developments in the laying up of common brick walls, the use of this substantial and decorative material permits great economy in construction.

For instance, there are endless varieties of bonds which are quite as effective in the laying up of common brick as with the more expensive face brick. These permit of wall patterns to suit the individual taste, and still greater variety is possible by the use of colored mortars. The use of coloring in the mortar in the exposed face of the wall adds but little to the cost and yields an abundance of life and color to the wall. Not only is it possible to secure good effects by the coloring but the type of joint used, whether a flush joint, raked-out, or an ordinary struck joint, also permits of individuality of expression.

The common brick manufacturers have done much pioneering in making the so-called "ideal" wall popular among builders. In this type of construction the bricks are laid on edge, instead of on their flat side, as is customary, and a hollow air space is thus obtained between the inner and outer layers of the brick, which is valuable in retaining the heat of the building in the winter time and also in preventing the uncomfortable heat of the summer from penetrating indoors. It thus promotes comfort the year 'round and saves fuel bills.

The little house illustrated has a walk of irregular shaped flag stones leading to a dormered side entry porch, which is floored similarly. Windows at each side of the main doorway add a touch of individuality to the exterior appearance of the home. The entrance door opens directly into the living room, a vestibule being dispensed with. This is typical of the hospitable home. The living room is large for the size of the building, being 13 feet by 19 feet 10 inches.

An abundance of light is brought in by means of four large, double hung windows, facing the street. Opposite is a cheery fireplace. A long unbroken wall, facing the entry door, composes the fourth wall of the room. Against it has been placed a comfortable bed-davenport. In small homes this type of furniture is a special convenience, as it provides additional sleeping quarters, required for a week-end or overnight visitor, without seriously disarranging the routine of the household. Bed-davenports of this type can be obtained in various periods of furniture, upholstered in countless kinds and colors of fabrics, so that they are indeed a worth while adjunct to the furnishings of a small home.

On either side of the fireplace are respectively the cased opening leading to the dining alcove and the opening which leads to the stairs. Cabinets running from floor to ceiling are built in at either side of the doorway which connects the living room with the dining alcove. In these may be stored the table ware and the more essential equipment which may be needed in the event that the living room is used to entertain a more formal gathering, for which separate table and chairs will have to be provided in furnishing the home.

The dining alcove, a relatively modern innovation brought about by the scarcity of household help, is a great time and labor saver, and is to be recommended for all homes, whether large or small.

The kitchen is modern in every respect. It has one feature which is not commonly seen in the average home in northern cities, and that is a pair of laundry tubs. They save a great deal of running downstairs to the basement, and are a convenience, even though the laundry is "sent out," for the washing of fine pieces. The kitchen, 9 feet 6 inches by 14 feet, is of ample size and provides space for the storing of household appliances, such as an electric washing machine, should the housewife elect to do her own washing.

The large windowed closet, which occupies the entire dormer space over the entrance, is a feature of the upper floor. The bedrooms are well lighted, have plenty of closet space, and are conveniently situated with respect to the bathroom, at the head of the stairs. These, by the way, are protected on the under side with metal lath and plaster, as are also the partitions on each side of it, making a fire resistive stairway, which is considered most essential in two story dwellings, should a basement fire break out and threaten to cut off the escape of those who might chance to be upstairs. Such protected wood construction has been thoroughly tested and found highly fire resistive, and because of the small expense involved is recommended for positions such as these, which are so vulnerable to fire.

Steel basement windows are a recent development, and have found much favor for the lighting of basements, as they permit considerably more light to enter than the commonly used wood sash and are said to compare favorably with the latter.

Architects Ford, Butler, and Oliver have so planned this compact little home that it may be built at a figure well within the reach of a family with an income of $3,000 a year.

My Most Embarrassing Moment

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscript returned.

Circumstantial Evidence.

I had but three minutes to get to school, and mother sent me to buy a bottle of milk. I took an apple to eat on the way. I was so busy running that I put the apple in my dress pocket. The storekeeper gave me the milk and attended to others. Unfortunately the apple dropped out of my pocket into his basket of apples. He didn't notice it, but he did notice me stretch my hand to the basket to get my apple. He gave me a suspicious look and said, "You'd better watch out, young lady."

Did I blush? He would not listen to any explanations. S. S.

Neat and Orderly.

I am considered a neat and orderly person, have been so since childhood. Recently, entering a street car, I seated myself behind a man whose collar was turned up. I leaned forward and turned it down, almost unconscious of what I was doing. A titter went around the car and I then realized what I had done. The man turned and thanked me and I spent the rest of the time looking out of the window. H. T.

Being So Sociable.

When I was a small girl living in Kansas we had a pig to consume the surplus milk and fruit around the place. Being a solitary pig, he was lonesome, and, having a sociable disposition, used to break out of every pen we constructed for him and linger around where we children were playing, and so became quite a family pet.

One morning my older sister and I were hurrying to school, when we heard a tremendous grunting and squealing behind us. Turning about, we saw the pig tearing along as fast as his size would permit. My sister, being older and able to run faster, volunteered to take him home, but he refused to follow her; so I turned about, but he then followed my sister; so we both had to go back home with him. When we came in late our teacher did not draw a sermon about "What makes the pig love Mary so?" We got a bad mark and had to stay in after school. L. A. M.

Imagine His Feelings.

I am a caddie. On hot days it isn't unusual for players to give a bottle of pop to caddies.

One hot day when my player was through I heard him say, "What kind of pop do you want?"

Thinking he was talking to me, I said, "Root beer, please."

Imagine my feeling when he said: "I was not talking to you, caddy." H. J.

Not So Good.

I am a bashful young girl, and seldom have anything to say when out with a beau.

The other night, after a long silence, my beau said to me, "A penny for your thoughts."

"O, they're not worth a penny," I answered.

After a pause he said, "Were you thinking of me?"

And I answered, "Yes." A. P.

What kind of sleep satisfies you?

Some sleep so soundly they do not hear even the crash and roll of a thunderstorm. Others start awake at the flapping of a curtain or the honk of a passing motor car.

The sound sleepers get the kind of rest that renews vigor and stores fresh energy for the coming day. They are the "men who do things"—the women and girls whose vitality is equal to every opportunity of social or business life.

The light sleepers seldom "let go" and dip down to the strength-restoring levels of deep, dreamless rest. As often as not, it is only a sagging spring or a lumpy, worn-out mattress that cheats them.

Why not give your bedding the careful study it deserves—tonight? Take time to examine your spring and mattress critically.

Look for the bumps and hollows you may not have noticed because your body is accustomed to them. The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in the Daily Tribune.

AUGUST FOODS AND WAYS.

THE cook in August is faced often with a diversity of tasks, the greatest diversity of the whole year, regular and irregular, set and informal. There is a great abundance of fruits and vegetables. There is also an abundance of other less agreeable things, molds and weevils, ferments to keep down, and sours to keep from developing. Food business is business in hot weather.

If once in twenty-four hours a cooked vegetable is heated up or a cereal or a soup, it may be kept safely for almost a week without losing quality. Milk scalded will keep longer for custards or cream soups but, like soups, it should be cooled as quickly as possible. In fact, to cool all foods containing protein, like soup stock, or a gelatin dessert, makes them safer eating. On a hot day these may remain tepid a long time and develop a quality that gives the "summer complaint" or worse troubles.

First Aid Is Cleanliness.

Cleanliness is one of the summer cook's first and greatest aids. The ice box must be kept religiously clean, the sink pipe needs boiling hot washing soda as well, and ammonia is cleansing. For the subtler dirt there is pasteurization, which is the beginning of several sorts of food wisdom. No woman can do truly successful and intelligent canning, especially of vegetables, unless she knows what the word bacteria means. The only exception to this rule is that she may learn the business by imitation, having watched the expert, but she cannot be as intelligent about it as when she understands why she blanches and cold dips, why she must test her seals, etc.

We have now had a decade of canning demonstrations and the distribution of tons of government and state and good commercial business bulletins on the subject of the one-period cold pack canning, surely enough to prove that this business is a system, not a recipe or a group of recipes. You can preserve by recipes, because there are other elements besides adequate heat and seals that are preservative, such as sugar and spice, but you cannot can with surety by a recipe or recipes. To be sure, there are special directions for practically each and every product, but unless these are fitted into the whole system, and "every step" of preparation and all the work of a general sort—applying to everything whatsoever canned—attended to, the final results will not be failure proof. If this fact were once thoroughly believed, thousands of cans of what should be good food would not be wasted every year. What was good but twenty-four hours back is bad now in too many cases.

War on Bacteria.

In canning, this general work all pertains to getting products perfectly sterilized, and completely sealed. It is all a warfare against bacteria, but if you do not know there are bacteria, how are you going to be intelligent about what you are doing? It gratifies the curiosity to know what you are doing, and so makes work more interesting. To do many of the summer tasks in cooking in the most intelligent and safest way, it is necessary to understand that heat and moisture are highly favorable to the development and growth of many forms of microscopic life that beset us on all sides, and may make human life as unlivable as swarms of flies or mosquitoes do if we do not know how to keep them away.

It amounted to a maxim with housewives of old, that August peaches were not good for canning—would not keep. With modern methods we know it is not the peach that will not keep, but that the conditions for anything not sterile and perfectly sealed are at their worst, so that the acid and sugar in the fruit and the sugar—all of which help to preserve the fruit—are not powerful enough to resist the ferments, which heat favors, and the bacteria, which an imperfect seal admits. Imperfectly prepared stuff might keep in cool weather, but not with such perfection as when put up with modern security. Chance enters, and chance is never a reliable agent. In modern canning nothing is left to it.

Too Destructive Agents.

Until the last decade housewives did not try to put up fresh vegetables which, except in a few cases such as the tomato, contain no self-helping things, like acids and sugars, as do fruits, while they are often covered with quite resistant bacteria which come from contact with compost and other soilings. Brining and pickling were the methods used formerly for these. Both salt and vinegar will destroy bacteria life and, unfortunately as well as fortunately, also life that is of a higher order than that of the single cell. Our own human energy tanks are often far from full, because we have sacrificed some of our millions and billions of single cells to some destructive agent taken as or with food, and the worst thing may not be the fact that these cells are destroyed. Dead, they become a menace to our tissues.

We owe a great deal dietetically to the commercial canners or to the fact that they employed learned chemists to discover ways of sterilizing per-

DIRECT from the Bal du Grand Prix—the leading fashion creating event of the Fall, presented at the opera in Paris, came these inspired millinery masterpieces. The Bal du Grand Prix has taken for its theme this year the art of Indo-China, blending Chinese, Hindu and Javanese elements and the art in the period of Louis XV. It is here that designer and milliner gather and procure ideas, creating the dominating note of the season.

Original costumes and headpieces worn at the Bal du Grand Prix, together with the modes of today which were inspired from them, are being shown in our State Street window. The display will interest every woman in Chicago.

MEN'S FASHIONS

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Any college function is unique from the angle of clothes, in that it brings together two generations of dressers. A big college regatta is especially interesting. Here the college youth sits side by side with elders. Business men have left their offices at midday to catch the special up in time for the first race, parties of youngsters have motored up or come up in boats, house parties have been transplanted to the scene of action en masse, sport clothes and business attire mingle; in fact, the observation train that crawls along the shore pacing the battling crews is well named.

One may observe a great deal more than six sets of super-athletes struggling for supremacy down a three mile course. One may bring away a pretty good idea of what will be worn at country clubs during the summer months, in downtown offices, by conservative dressers, and by the college youth as he stands in line at the register's to sign up for the fall term.

Not so long ago we sat in the observation train at the most important boat race of the season, and divided our attention between six spiderlike racing shells and the howling, cheering, shrieking male citizens about us.

Present there were undergraduates from five of the largest universities in the east and one from the west coast. With these undergraduates came their parents or their elder brothers, alumni, graduates of five years, ten years and twenty years ago. But it was really the young man's day. The boys there were representative of what the well dressed youngster is going to wear.

Naturally, such an event would bring out sport clothes more than business suits, since summer time is play-time for the college man. He knows that the days when he gets more than three months' vacation will soon be no more, and he means to make the most of them. This attitude is reflected in his clothes.

Knickers, worn either with sport coats or sweaters, were most in evidence and predominated over the sport suit worn with slacks, as the long trousers are sometimes known. Among the knickers, those of natural linen held highest honors. This is right in line with the forecasts that came from Palm Beach and other winter summer resorts last season. With these natural linen knickers, the camel's hair slipover sweater and sand colored golf hose were the favorite combinations.

Many of the boys wore coat sweaters with the knickers, and I noted that those with the fancy fronts were more in evidence than the plain. I saw these fancy front coat sweaters occasionally with white duck or white flannel long trousers as well. One pair of white ducks was topped off with a camel's hair coat sweater and harmonized at the feet with light tan sport shoes the same color as the sweater. The effect was pleasing.

Two piece knicker suits—that is, coat and knickers to match—were frequent in shades of green, in which case they were nearly always matched with green golf stockings. Tan or black shoes were worn with this combination. The knicker suits in light tans and grays were perhaps the ones seen the most, as is usually the case where men in sport clothes are gathered together.

Although the natural linen knickers were more popular than the white linen ones—doubtless because they do not soil as quickly—there were some white linen knickers used with an all white costume—that is, worn with a white slipover sweater, white golf stockings, white buckskin shoes trimmed with tan leather, and a bright hued tie.

I noted one neat, not to say smart, effect, created by a chap who wore a navy blue coat with white linen knickers, light gray stockings, and black shoes. His shirt was the white oxford with a collar attached, and he wore a bright college striped tie.

One youth, who was wearing the aforementioned natural linen knickers and camel's hair slipover sweater, completed it with a small blue and black checked four-in-hand and the white oxford sport shirt which was seen on almost every man there, one exception that I noted being a yellow sport shirt, which is in some measure popular today.

Another chap who found his way into my notebook matched up a two piece knicker suit in a small brown check, with light brown stockings, brown and tan foulard four-in-hand, white shirt, and tan shoes, belt and hat of about the same color.

Speaking of hats, they were mostly wanting, since the college man does not wear a hat on the campus and takes his campus habits abroad with him. The only hats seen were the conventional straws and occasional felts worn by business men come up from town.

What plain sack suits there were were the full trousered type with the ventless back, running to tans and grays. The sack suits on the more elderly men were all conservatively cut, many of them in dark blue serges or grays, with nothing at all in the fancy or showy line to catch the eye.

It may interest the youth who is contemplating a university career to know that about 90 per cent of the college men I saw wore their hair parted in the middle. This is hardly vital to a good education, but such is the nature of the college boy that he isn't really happy until he manages to look exactly like his neighbor fectly fruits and vegetables, and sealing them against bacterial invasion, and then to those enthusiastic men and women who taught to home canners methods so worked out.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

One by-product of this work deserves our definite recognition. We owe a great deal to this modern canning system because of the great emphasis it has always, and rightly, placed upon the necessity of having the right equipment and having all utensils clean and ready before starting to do the work. Tested cans and rubbers, clean and well filled boiler or canner, can holders or false bottom, facilities for having an abundance of boiling water, spoons and knives, and any special utensils required for a given product, steamers, colanders, or cheesecloth—all must be in readiness when a piece of work is to be done; otherwise expense, worry, and failure is almost assured.

Speaking of Equipment.

Housewives too often are, or have been, handicapped in their work—perhaps some that they had to do every day instead of in one season only—by imperfect equipment, unhandy arrangements, and unreadiness. To learn what adequate equipment means, even for one sort of work only, ought to be to learn a general lesson of vast benefit. Half the women, or perhaps three-quarters, who dislike cooking dislike it because they have never rightly learned how to do it, nor do they have efficient equipment.

The commonest and first failing is that they do not learn how to use a stove. I study every direction that goes with my stove, besides studying the general business of using heat. It is worth while. When a woman says to me she does not like to cook, I want to ask: "Do you play the piano?" If she says she does not know how, then I want to say: "Do you talk about disliking to play the piano?" It is just as sensible to say you do not like cooking when you do not know how as to say you dislike to play, actually perform, on the piano when you can barely read the notes. Your fingers are stiff; your mind cannot grasp or see.

What Do You Know?

And, speaking of equipment, there is another matter that comes up at this season. Many people repeatedly want to know what foods to take and what utensils for out of door life. Here a great deal depends upon what you know or, more often, upon what you do not know. What do you know how to do? If you know all the services you can get out of a frying pan or a single kettle you will hardly have to ask anybody what to take. If you know how to bake potatoes in the ashes, or how to pack fish in clay or in heavy paper and bake it in the same way, if you know how to fry eggs on a hot rock, or roast an ear of corn or toast bread over red coals, or spit-roast a piece of meat on a stick you will not have to depend upon "cold victuals," like raisins and nuts, crackers and things from cans for your camp meals.

If you know how to fry, bake, boil, and stew in one and the same sort of a kettle you can save carrying half a dozen different utensils along with you, since you can have meat, potatoes, and bread cooked at one and the same time. And this is true whether you want to bake beans in the ground in your utensil or to use an electric grill on the porch.

This cult of camping grows every year, and I am sure it is making people more intelligent about food and eating. One of the charming and gay books out last summer, a book sprightly enough to entertain you on a railroad journey, as I proved, was "The Dingbat of Arcady," by the poet Marguerite Wilkinson, a most practical person in the camp cooking business. It is published by the Macmillan company.

After telling about an experience in the rain, Mrs. Wilkinson says: "Since those days we have learned to carry calcium carbide, which, when dropped into water, makes a gas that burns well and will dry twigs for a fire in no time."

This poet and her husband lost their kitchen equipment, and so learned to make "lucky stew," for which she gives the recipe in verse. This lacks definiteness as a recipe, since you use "anything you like," but she adds: "That is a good recipe of the conventional kind, for it leaves out the most important information. Good recipes never tell the whole story. If they did, cooking would lack romance. As it is, cooking is adventurous work."

Wise Cook Substitutes.

There is more truth in this gay talk than most people realize, but Mrs. Wilkinson's cooking was genuine, if unique. They had "lucky stew" nearly every day, and used marvelous flavors and substitutes. She says: "When good recipes call for something that cannot be had, the wise cook simply substitutes something that can be had." That is certainly a good rule for all stew making. Once learn to make a good stew and you can make a good one out of the most unusual ingredients—"anything you please," or "anything you like."

For these two people it meant vegetables when in the farm country and game and fish in the wilds. "In Oregon it meant carrots most of the time—large, vivid carrots—for they were plentiful. In the east it sometimes means scraggly rutabagas, bursting cabbages, pithy radishes, jaundiced cucumbers, bumptious kohlrabis, ancient beets—the more the merrier. It may mean sweet corn, succulent tomatoes, delicate peas. The vegetables, of course, must be cut into pieces that will be thoroughly cooked at the same moment. Hard and antique vegetables must be cut small. Young and tender ones should be added after the others have cooked a while. The pail or pot in which they are to boil should be filled with water to a point just below the top of the vegetables just so they do not float. When they have cooked thoroughly a small tin of evaporated milk may be added to the liquid in the pail and thickened. Butter may be used, or olive oil. Then you have a dish for the great of the earth, mingling many aromas, rich, warm, and filling."

The surprises Mrs. Wilkinson added to this stew were clams added to onions and potatoes, mussels, chubs, suckers—insipid things alone—a scrap of ham, a lopsided strip of bacon, and even a porcupine, she could add, because she knew how to prepare them all, to skin and bone the fish and, perhaps, parboil it, and so forth. The skin was removed from the porcupine, and then she says: "His hind legs were the best and biggest part of him, and tasted very good, like young spring lamb."

Such Pretty Rugs
and amazingly inexpensive*

Ask to look at Kimlark Rugs in any of the stores. The moment you see them, you begin to picture them on your floors—bright, cheery designs for breakfast or sun room; quiet, soft-toned patterns for living room or dining room; gay, sprightly colorings for bedrooms; neutral designs or solid colors for hallways.

Run your hand over their smooth, pliant surface. Think how soft and thick and pleasant they will be underfoot. See how smoothly they lie.

Get the salesperson to tell you about their special features. How sturdily they resist the scuff of feet and scrape of chairs, the action of grit and sun and rain. How easily they are cleaned with soap and water.

REVERSIBLE

How free they are from harsh slivers or wiry barbs. How they can be bent or folded without breaking.

And then look at the price mark—and look again, to make sure that it is really true that they cost so little.

PLIABLE

Then ask yourself if it isn't almost like a fairy tale come true to find such really lovely rugs at prices so amazingly low. Even in the biggest sizes, you can get two rugs for about what you expected to pay for one. And every rug, being reversible, gives double wear.

Where can you see them? In almost any store. Dealers like to show them. They know they are unusually beautiful, unusually durable rugs for the money.

Can They Come Back? What Do YOU Think?

By Mae Tinee.

GOOD morning!

I've been thinking a little for a change.

Have you noticed how they're coming back—the old stars and the old pictures? Names and films that have been kept under cover for many a long day are beginning to pop up. Stars who used to be famous are directing or appearing in the films they once made, which are issued as "new editions" of old pictures.

MAE MARSH.
[Photoplayers' Studio Photo.]

It sort of sets you thinking. They received less money in ye olden days and they did a lot more work. NOW $2,000 a week is a mere bagatelle, and from what I hear, my dears, many of our lovely ladies and men are always having their feelings hurt by being told they must really do something to earn what is put in their pay envelope.

Remember the loads of Chaplin comedies? They're being reissued. Mr. Chaplin wasn't running a race with Rockefeller then. NOW how many new pictures does he make—and ARE they as good as the old ones? Don't ask me [I'm not supposed to appreciate Mr. Chaplin or know anything about him]—I ask YOU! Your letters show that you think. Well, think on and tell a lady why?

One by One They Return.

"The saddest face in films" has come back—Mae Marsh. Creighton Hale is again seen on the silver sheet. Carlyle Blackwell is directing in England. Theda Bara is right on the job in Hollywood biding her chance to show 'em that she may have gone but she's NOT forgotten.

Mary Pickford—"Little Mary"? How often do we see her? We hear about her house and her husband, and her money and her "head for business," but how often is there a new Mary Pickford film? In other days HOW she worked! I won't say she was the artist then she is now—but still, you made a fuss over her, didn't you?

One could mention a lot more names, but you have the idea and there's no use loading you up with a lot of stuff to read when it's hot.

HAS too much money drugged the cinema for the time being? WILL the stage regain its hold [O, yes, for a while there the "legitimate" WAS a back number!]; and if it does, has the screen the brains to "come back"? You know—come back BIG!

Do you think we have the sentiment toward the movies we had once upon a time?

Were we really more intrigued when the old films flickered and the projection machines took an hour's rest for repairs right in the most exciting part of a photoplay than we are now when a picture moves smoothly from start to finish?

Were we thrilled by the awful "sets" and the terrible manufactured scenery more than we are by the films that now sometimes run into thousands of dollars and give the real thing, be it hill, dale, farm, or world war battlefield?

'Way down in our hearts did we revel in the atrocious

Putting an End to One of Hollywood's Worries

By Mildred Spain.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—Lila Lee and James Kirkwood are married.

You can't begin to imagine what this means to Hollywood. It was one of our pet worries for nearly a year.

"Lila will not marry any one," Mrs. Charles Appel, the mamma of the film star said repeatedly.

LILA LEE.

"I—I don't think so," said Lila, a docile movie star.

And then there was one awful moment when Mrs. Kirkwood II., known as Gertrude Robinson in the old Biograph films, withdrew her suit of divorce.

But it's all over now, and the blessings of Mamma Appel are showered on the bride and the groom alike.

Wednesday afternoon the couple was married at the Wilshire Presbyterian church by Dr. John Albert Eby. They were attended by the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kaufman, and Mrs. Alice Knowland.

Lila, who is called the "sweetest girl in Hollywood," just as Lois Wilson is known as the "nicest girl in Hollywood," was a charming bride in white organdy, made with panels of hand embroidery and edged with Valenciennes lace. She wore a mushroom hat of satin, and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms and sweet peas.

His Third Trip; Her First.

Miss Lee is one of the real beauties of filmland. She was once known as Gus Edwards' "Cuddles Kid" in vaudeville.

It is said her final decision to become engaged to Kirkwood was reached when she and her mother watched his intensely religious interpretation of the hero in "The Fool."

This is Mr. Kirkwood's third trip to the altar. He gave his age as 40. The bride said her real name was Augusta Appel and that she was just 18.

Their future home is being built in Benedict cañon, but will not be completed until Christmas.

The night after their marriage they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Al Kaufman in the Cocoanut grove. Miss Lee wore a stunning model of hand painted silk, studded with red beads.

Just an Olive Stone's Throw Apart.

Also at the grove were Pola Negri and Charley Chaplin—but not together. And now that we have the Kirkwoods so happy and everything, we can give our complete attention to the tragedienne and the comedian.

Pola sat in a box with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eyton (Kathlyn Williams). She was surrounded by Tommy Meighan, Manuel Alonso, the Spanish tennis champion, and—William Tilden II., the American champion.

Pola was every inch the Countess Dombska in lemon colored velvet and a glitter of diamonds.

An olive stone's throw away sat Charley Chaplin with

Sometimes They Leap to Fame All at Once

By Edward Moore.

IT TAKES years to make an opera singer ready for his profession to the satisfaction of himself and his directors. And it takes just about one performance, when the conditions are right, for him or her—usually her—to make a solid position in the affections of the audiences.

There is excitement when an unexpected electric spark leaps the gap, the more exciting because it is unexpected. No one who was present at the Auditorium on that Saturday afternoon a half dozen years ago will ever forget how Amelita Galli-Curci made her first appearance as Gilda in "Rigoletto."

FLORENCE EASTON.

She had been years in the making. She had sung hither and yon about Europe; she was well known in South America. She came to New York and beat upon managerial doors in vain, and finally was given a trial performance in Chicago. No one had heard about her. "Just another coloratura soprano," said many, and wagged wise heads in the saying.

Then she sang, and at once passed into history. People stood up and shouted; the telegraph wires were heavily laden that night with news about Chicago's discovery.

Maria Jeritza did much the same thing in New York. She had a big European reputation, but she was by no means an international figure until she came to the Metropolitan to sing some of Geraldine Farrar's former rôles. She made her first appearance there in "Tosca," and the thrill of the occasion still is talked about.

Tastes Weighing More Than Reputation.

Mr. Eckstein contends, and with considerable justification, that phenomena of the same sort take place ever and anon at Ravinia. He points out that Chicago audiences make their own discoveries and stick to them and that their own tastes weigh far more strongly with them than reputations in other cities or the most brilliant efforts of expert press agency.

He adds that Claudia Muzio was unknown in these parts when she came to the north shore center five years ago, that she leaped into fame with a single performance of "Aida," and confirmed it with "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci." Miss Muzio is known everywhere now, for, as Mr. Eckstein says, the entire music world keeps its eyes on Ravinia.

Leaving out past history, there is the case of Elisabeth Rethberg, whose reputation was European, and she did not come to this country until last season. She was an instant success, and is now acknowledged as one of the great among singers, magnetic and versatile.

Graziella Pareto came to the north shore a year ago from her native Spain, unknown in this country, except for a single casual appearance in New York. She was another item of sudden and enduring popularity. Thalia Sabanieva came here this year for a few special performances, and did so well she has remained far beyond her originally contemplated term. Ina Bourskaya had toured the country in the refugee Russian opera company. Her Carmen at Ravinia,

Reply to a Brief Defense of Professional Playgoers

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—A gentleman attempting to achieve a new hill descending record between Belvedere and Delaware, N. J., requiring both his own and our side of the road, accepted us as an unreasonable obstruction. As he passed he took with him our running board and our back fender, spread our baggage over the roadside and landed himself and his car across our right of way, a foot and a half in a bank of sand.

Keeping Channing Stirred Up.

Following the resulting conference and exchange of cards, we gathered the underwear, souvenirs, toothbrushes, and assorted shoes together, bought a carton at the village store in which to carry them, taxied fourteen miles to Easton, Pa., caught a through train home. Touring is a lot of fun. Sometimes.

And what do you suppose we found smiling up at us from the pile of mail? A letter from that dear Channing Pollock. To keep Channing stirred up is one of the minor ambitions with which we are afflicted. His type of sincere nonconformist is as useful and as needful to the world of the theater as the radical rector is to the church. And whether we agree or disagree with him, it is always a satisfaction to give him audience.

This letter is in reply to a short defense of the professional playgoer, commonly called critic, which we attached to Channing's recent attack upon our generously berated profession:

Verdict Is Taken as Criticism.

"Shoreham, L. I., July 28, 1923.

"Dear Burns: Women and newspapers usually get the last word, but, in the case of my letter about critics, which you printed July 8, with a short rebuttal, may I attempt to take over that prérogative with a short anecdote?

"You say 'critics are no more than reporters of the theater, acquainting their readers as best they can,' etc. I say that no man, critic or reporter, can acquaint anybody with that with which he is not acquainted, and that, since a very large number of people accept anything as gospel the moment it appears in a newspaper, a bad reporter can do quite as much harm as a bad critic. Especially when he assumes to criticize—as he usually does—and his emanation is taken as criticism.

"Herbert Waterous, personally a stranger to me, is commonly accepted here and in England as the greatest Pooh-Bah of our time. Within my own experience, vocally and histrionically, his is the best performance of this difficult rôle in 'The Mikado.' The umbrella bearer, of so little importance that Gilbert does not mention him in the cast, almost invariably is played by a chorus man. This is the arrangement with the present De Wolf Hopper Opera company, but when Mr. Hopper played 'The Mikado' recently in Louisville the principal newspaper devoted a long paragraph to the umbrella bearer and included Pooh-Bah and Mr. Waterous 'among the others who made good.'

"Similar ignorance of police conditions would result in the dismissal of a police reporter. But, under the present system, a man who knows so little of acting, singing, and

The Theater, Too, Has Lost a Friend

By Sheppard Butler.

OUR land of makebelieve seems a little cheap and tawdry this morning. Writing of the mummers and their playacting is curiously difficult. Pictures persist of bigger drama—a man whom the world watched, dying so suddenly that not a doctor was near; at the other end of the continent, a man whom the world hardly knew, called from his bed in a little lonely farmhouse, facing his father across a lamplighted table in the sitting room before daybreak, taking the oath that made him President of the United States.

VERA MYERS,
a newcomer in the cast of "The Dancing Girl," at the Colonial.

What has the stage to offer as moving as that? A feeble and hollow business, this ancient art of the footlights, invariably crumbling away before the simplest reality. One wonders what it all amounts to. Why a column about the theaters when the nation is in mourning?

Yet, there are other pictures. The summer of 1920 in Marion. A kindly, human gentleman greeting a hundred jubilant actors, full of songs and speechmaking. Jovial doings under the trees on a spacious lawn; Al Jolson, Blanche Ring, George Beban, and the rest bandying pleasantries with a senator from Ohio who expected to be President—and none having a better time than the senator. Campaign propaganda, to be sure, but with something hearty and genuine about it.

Later, in the White House, a man who became a familiar figure in every theater in Washington. A man who liked the players, welcomed them at the executive mansion, never withheld an expression of admiration when it was due.

Once a comedian at whose antics some folks look askance sought in embarrassed fashion for something to say. He spoke of his four children.

"I'd like to meet them," said the President quickly. "Bring them up."

A special appointment was made, and the clown who had been a gamin in the New York Ghetto took his family and spent a gorgeous half hour with the busiest man in America.

Things like that happened often, but were seldom told. The theater lost one of its best friends when Warren G. Harding died.

Another Season Gets Under Way.

Summer still holds the calendar; but there is a premonitory tang of autumn in the playhouses—which, of course, is a fancy way of saying that the theaters are making ready to reopen. Tonight brings the first of the new season's entertainments; a few more will come in August, and within a month activities on the Rialto will again be in full swing.

If the prophets in the east are to be believed, a year of retrenchment and uncertainty is in prospect. The gloomy gentlemen find the world at sixes and sevens. The Producing Managers' association is split over the issue of a central ticket office in New York, and far-reaching consequences are expected to develop. Mr. Ziegfeld is recalcitrant, defying alike his fellow managers and the actors who belong to Equity. Mr. Erlanger is at outs with Mr. Shubert, and the Erlanger-Shubert booking agreement which was to have solved many of the theater's problems is at the verge of dissolution, or seems to be.

Another Season Gets Under Way; Stage Brevities

With the managerial ranks falling apart, the Actors' Equity is tightening up for the strike which it threatens in 1924 if it doesn't get a unionized stage. Producers continue to insist that there will be few new plays. It is a pretty spectacle of impending disaster.

The perplexing thing about it all is that everybody apparently is going right ahead with business as usual. For Chicago thirteen entertainments (listed in a nearby column) are promised already for the opening of as many theaters; more, one is assured, will be along soon. And of the thirteen three are entirely new ventures—an unusual circumstance at the beginning of the season, when we usually get nothing but tried and true New York successes. The Selwyns are tempting fate here with "The Dancing Honeymoon," Mr. Cohan will send "So This Is Broadway!" for experimental showing, and Mr. Woods seeks our judgment first on Frederick Lonsdale's "But for the Grace of God." The managers do not usually send new plays 900 miles inland when they are retrenching.

Nor is a play famine particularly in evidence in New York. The Times, enumerating in detail the productions announced for the near future, manages to find 206 of them. Which isn't so bad.

Perhaps the show business isn't going so completely to the dogs, after all.

Barrie and Barrymore.

An opinion:

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[To the Dramatic Editor.]—I never thought that I would do this, but I'm just indignant, so I naturally turn to you, although you do not run a "Kick Korner."

We so seldom get a chance to see the better things, living as we do "west of Broadway," that I was delighted at the thought of Barrie's delightful "Twelve Pound [Ye gods, $60!] Look" being presented here, and while it was to be given in a vaudeville theater I thought that Miss Barrymore would bring Barrie's charm with her. True, her act was sandwiched in between two impossible colored comedians and something with a big hat that they called Oklahoma Bob, but that was no excuse for such a performance. Oklahoma Bob followed Miss Barrymore's act, and started in by saying that she was very democratic and told him she would try to do a song and dance by Saturday night if she thought that she could get away with it.

Miss Barrymore looked and acted anything but the poor stenographer; she still seemed "swaddled in luxury" and fit to sit at the head of Sir Harry's fat dinners. And what a sad caricature was made of Sir Harry's wife! Miss Barrymore looked and acted as though she enjoyed it all immensely, which I confess was more than I did. And what of Barrie? I suppose he is not fit for the vaudeville circuit.

While no doubt Miss Barrymore gets a great deal of money for her appearances, is it just fair to the Barrymore reputation or to the public who love Barrie and Barrymore?

Gossip of Plays and Players.

Miss Margaret Anglin and Miss Marjorie Rambeau gave San Francisco two "first performances on any stage" last week, each experimenting with a new play which she will, perhaps, bring across the Rockies later in the season. Miss Anglin's piece—her third production of the summer in California—is a light comedy by Orrick Johns called "A Charming Conscience," and is reported to have been bought by the actress fifteen minutes after she finished reading it. Evidently she proposes to add it to a repertoire which already includes her revival of "A Woman of No Importance" and Paul Kester's Dickens play, "The Great Lady Dedlock." Miss Rambeau is acting a dramatization of Blanche Upright's novel, "The Valley of Content," wherein the heroine, Marjorie Benton, is in many respects a reflection of Miss Rambeau's own characteristics and career. Novelist and player are old friends, and when the book was written Miss Rambeau was its inspiration.

Aug. 19 is definitely announced as the date when the Studebaker will reopen with "Up She Goes!" Although appearances are, in its title, against it, this is not another aviation play on the order of "Going Up!" That it might be one is easily a thought for the average theatergoer, for Frank Craven was the star of "Going Up!" while his name appears in the advertisements and "billing" of "Up She Goes!" The former was a musical comedy version of a farce called "The Aviator," by James Montgomery, in which Wallace Eddinger acted in 1910 in the Olympic. "Up She Goes!"—as has been previously explained—is a musical comedy version of "Too Many Cooks," written by Mr. Craven and acted by him in 1915 in the Princess. The incoming piece ran through some hundreds of nights last season in the Playhouse, which is one of William A. Brady's New York City theaters; and out of the run emerged a new somebody of tunes and trills and trippings named Gloria Foy, who will head the cast for the Studebaker engagement.

"Chains" and "Steve" departed last night, the former leaving a pair of broken-hearted producers to mourn its passing. The play was doing well, but the actors, some of them, demanded vacations and were not to be denied. There was talk of finding another actress to take Miss Helen Gahagan's place and make a continuance of the run possible, but this—wisely, no doubt—came to naught. . . . "Steve," with Mr. O'Brien and the rest, starts this week a journey which will take it to the Pacific coast; "Chains" will reemerge in New York in about a month.

John D. O'Hara, who filled Frank Bacon's rôle in "Lightnin'" after the latter's death, is to have the part designed for the late Louis Calvert in Myron Fagan's "Children of the Moon." This is the play in which Miss Henrietta Crosman is returning to the stage.

* * *

Eddie Cantor has left the "Ziegfeld Follies" in New York and will be replaced tomorrow night by Jimmy Hussey, who, in honor of the occasion, will change his name to James. Hussey was part of "Fashions of 1924" until he went to the theater the other night to find the show closed and his trunk being moved out. On the sidewalk he met Mr. Ziegfeld.

"Well," he said dolefully, "I'm one of the unemployed."

"You're wrong," Ziegfeld replied. "You're employed now. Come in tomorrow and get your contract."

It sometimes happens that way.

Henry Leverage, who as co-author of "Whispering Wires," his first play, has stacked up a fortune, has decided to give his bank account an airing by entering the producing field. He is preparing to project "The White Cipher," which, originally done by him as a magazine story, has been shaped to the stage with the help of Kate McLaurin. It was she who collaborated with Leverage in the stage writing of "Whispering Wires," which enters the Princess tonight.

MISS KAY LAURELL.

Once a "Follies" beauty and an artist's model of note, she has turned her mind to graver matters. She comes tonight to the Princess to act a troubled heroine or something in "Whispering Wires," the first of the new season's plays.

Reply to a Brief Defense of the Dramatic Critics

Gilbert and Sullivan continues to be 'a critic.' For, of course, appraisal of plays or playing is criticism, whatever you choose to call it, and the reviewer who thought the umbrella bearer more important than Pooh-Bah probably has considerable influence with a goodly following as ignorant as himself.

"And, if criticism does not do that and is not 'put forward as authoritative comment,' what is it, why is it, and what good is it?

"Personally I have rarely read a criticism that didn't sound as though its author felt it to be ipse dixit.

"CHANNING POLLOCK."

Our Perpetual State of Protest.

Which, again, is a good criticism of so-called critics. But the fact remains that however good Mr. Waterous may have been and however insignificant the part of the umbrella bearer, it was the latter (granting there was not a confusion of names in the writer's mind) who entertained the reviewer most, and he would not have been an honest reviewer if he had not said so. He may be the most incompetent judge of acting, art, and entertainment in the world, but so long as the editor who employs him is satisfied and the people who read and follow him either agree with him or have not the intelligence or courage to disagree with him are content, who is to say he is not honestly employed?

We are, most of us, in a perpetual state of protest against the employment of thousands of persons, from incompetent elevator pilots to the President of the republic. And we insist upon our right to protest, however much we may irritate the neighbors.

But, being sensible, we swing around gradually to the knowledge that the world is not run for or by a population of Pollocks or Mantles or Smiths or Cohens. And we cease to irritate ourselves with the indefensible contention that it should be.

Dramatic criticism, so-called, is included in that department of a newspaper designed to keep that portion of the paper's readers interested in the theater informed as to what is going on in the theater, and to include among its helpful hints the opinion of an experienced playgoer as to the character and quality of the entertainment shown.

Mean Intellectual Average.

Comparatively there are just as many incompetent judges of plays as there are incompetent writers of plays and actors in plays. And if it were possible to remove and replace them overnight, there would be as many more employed tomorrow. For of such is the mean intellectual average in an imperfect world.

And who knows? The Louisville reviewer, liking the umbrella bearers who represent the beaten and spiritually humbled citizens of the world, may love "The Fool."

Will that, we wonder, elevate him to the ranks of the competent critics? Even with the generally fair minded author of the play.

It has happened.

"The best critic in this country," a famed star once told us quite seriously, "is a chap down here in Springfield. He gave me the best, most intelligent, most sympathetic, most understanding notice I got anywhere on tour."

STILL HERE

MISS LEONA HOGARTH.

[Raymor Photo.]

Plays may come and plays may go, but "Up the Ladder" continues its astonishing run at the Central, where it has held forth since March. Miss Hogarth has its chief feminine rôle, as she has had from the beginning.

And we recall times without number hearing producers of popular failures vent their backstage vocabularies on all the ignorant reviewers who had spoken disparagingly of their unsuccessful production, and a season later have listened to their sugared and extravagant praise of the same writers for the discerning knowledge displayed in their reviews of a hit.

And so it goes. And will go. Forever. And ever.

Last Roses of Summer.

We find, returning to town this final week of the summer period, counting the new theater season as beginning the first of August, twenty attractions still playing Broadway, and apparently liking it.

And it is only a few years ago that if five held out through July it was something of a record. Probably the tourist and buying public is increasing amazingly year by year, even though we are unconscious of it.

Incidentally, "Abie's Irish Rose," which many of the reviewers who liked Mr. Pollock's "Fool" would have none of, has passed its 500th performance, and is still going.

The Pollock piece has reached the 350 performance class, and John Golden's "Seventh Heaven" is just behind. Jeanne Eagels and "Rain" are still the solid dramatic hit of the year. "Merton of the Movies" now leads all the comedies produced last season, and Shaw's "Devil's Disciple" has surprised everybody by weathering the summer at the Garrick.

In the musical field Mr. Ziegfeld's "Follies" is still at the head of the list and within sight of a 500th performance celebration. The "Follies'" closest rival, Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue," is to quit this week and take its diamond horse shoe on tour. "Wildflower" is still playing at the Casino, with Edith Day Somerset happily tripping through the "Bambalina." And all the recent summer music shows are apparently prosperous.

Thus does the amusement capital of the universe flourish, in season and out of season.

The New Plays

First Aid for First Nighters on Attractions Scheduled for the Coming Weeks in the Theaters.

MOST of the theaters now have their bookings made, either definitely or tentatively, for the opening of the new season. The ceremonies for 1923-'24 begin tonight, with the coming of "Whispering Wires" to the Princess. Three, or perhaps four, more entertainments will arrive in August, and the first week in September will bring enough diversions to repopulate virtually all the playhouses.

Here are the things in prospect:

OPENING TONIGHT.

"Whispering Wires" (Princess)—A mystery melodrama by Kate L. McLaurin, based on Henry Leverage's story of the same name and having to do with various dark deeds, including murder. Miss Jane Houston will play here the rôle acted elsewhere by Miss Bertha Mann, and other parts will be taken by Miss Kay Laurell, Miss Lys Doree, Ben Johnson, Malcolm Duncan, and Reynolds Denniston.

IMPENDING JOYS.

"Up She Goes" (Studebaker, Aug. 19)—A musical version of Frank Craven's farce, "Too Many Cooks," with tunes by Harry Tierney. Miss Gloria Foy will head a cast of impressive proportions.

"The Gingham Girl" (Garrick, Aug. 26)—A musical comedy by Daniel Kusell, Albert Von Tilzer, and others, with Joe Laurie Jr. in the chief comedian's part, played in the east by Eddie Buzzell.

"Polly Preferred" (La Salle)—Guy Bolton's comedy of the movie folk, tentatively scheduled for arrival late in August. Miss Genevieve Tobin has been playing the principal rôle.

"The Fool" (Selwyn, Aug. 31)—Channing Pollock's widely discussed preachment on right living, to be acted here in its principal rôles by Charles Waldron and Miss Alexandra Carlisle.

"You and I" (Playhouse, Sept. 2)—H. B. Warner in the latest of the Harvard prize plays, a comedy by Philip Barry. The company, which includes Miss Lucille Watson, is reported to be uncommonly good.

"The Dancing Honeymoon" (Apollo, Sept. 2)—A musical comedy from London, originally known as "Battling Butler." Charles Ruggles, William Kent, the comedian, and various others will be in the cast.

"The Clinging Vine" (Illinois, Sept. 2)—A comedy by Zelda Sears, with music by Harold Levey. Miss Peggy Wood is the chief performer and James C. Marlowe, the comedian, will be among those present.

"Zander the Great" (Powers', Sept. 3)—Miss Alice Brady in an Arizona comedy by Salisbury Field, accounted one of the great successes of the last season in New York.

"Abie's Irish Rose" (Cort)—Something by Anne Nichols which holds the current record for longevity in New York. An indifferent play, they say, but enormously popular. Coming on Labor day or soon thereafter.

"So This Is Broadway!" (Cohan's Grand, Sept. 2 or 9)—Lynne Overman in a new comedy by George M. Cohan.

"But for the Grace of God" (Adelphi, Sept. 10)—Miss Violet Heming, Norman Trevor, and Miss Estelle Winwood in a new comedy by Frederick Lonsdale of London. This will be the inaugural attraction at Mr. Woods' new theater in Clark street, known, before it was remodeled, as the Columbia.

"The Music Box Revue" (Colonial, Oct. 29)—The second edition of this sumptuous series of didoes, with Clark and McCullough, the comedians, and many others in it. Something else will come to the Colonial earlier in the season, but what this will be has not been determined. It may be the "Follies."

Notice How They Are Coming Back—the Old Stars?

makeup used by most stars and especially Theda Bara? Did we like to go out of a theater crowing:

"O, THAT only happens in the movies!" instead of moving thoughtfully away as we do now, chewing a mental cud and reflecting how true to life the picture we just saw was—or might be?

We're Blasé, Perhaps.

In other words, have we become blasé? We have airships and submarines and radio—and movies. Are we about to demand more than the movies can give us, no matter how hard they try, or will be return to a sort of second childhood and cry for "The Railroad Girl" and "Broncho Billy?"

Or will we go back to our old love, the theater, whispering:

"Darling, you are and really HAVE ALWAYS been the ONE WOMAN! I should never have left you!"

I'm as curious to hear your versions as a police puppy is to know what the chow across the street will do if a game of hide and seek is suggested.

VAMP VS. VAMP

What is your idea of a "vamp"? Dark and slinky or blonde and cuddly? We ask you! Ask you! Whom would you rather see "knock 'em cold"—in the movies?

VOICE OF THE FAN

Dear Mae Tinee: I have been a reader of your column for some time—not, I must admit, a steady reader, as I travel considerably, but as nearly so as possible. Recently I saw your criticism of Lasky's "Hollywood," which brought to my mind the following item, which may interest you and the fans if you care to pass it on to them.

While in California last spring I noticed that the Writers' club was putting on a show in Los Angeles, so on the evening of the 27th of April I went in to L. A. and saw the largest collection of film stars I ever had. The show was this picture, "Hollywood," presented as "an original musical extravaganza satirizing Hollywood." Here is a part of the cast:

Lemuel Lefferts	Charles Ray
Angela Whitaker	Mrs. Bryant Washburn
Jane Lefferts	Fritzi Ridgeway
Joel Whitaker	Luke Cosgrave
George McNab, a director	Wallace Beery
Angus Whiteside, a near-author	T. Roy Barnes
A vamp	Carmel Myers
A "stew"	Neely Edwards
A cigaret girl	Mrs. Reginald Denny
Butterfly Mike	Bull Montana
A telephone girl	Virginia Brown Faire
Nicolas Blanco	Herbert Rawlinson
Don José	Reginald Denny
A producer	Adolphe Menjou

Incidental attractions to a song, "A Dream of Fair Women," sung by Charles Ray: Clara Kimball Young, Priscilla Dean, Anita Stewart, and Enid Bennett.

Members of the chorus: Guy Oliver, Clarence Geldert, Lewis Sargent, Lionel Belmore, Arthur Hull, Reginald Denny, Niles Welch, Malcolm McGregor, Carmelita Geraghty, Mrs. Mitchell Lewis, Billie Bennett, Kathleen Key, Clara Horton, Ora Carew, Laura La Plante, Mary Philbin, Anna May Wong, Virginia Valli, Bessie Love, and enough less prominent others to make a company of eighty-six. Charles Mack—starred in "Driven," you know—was property man.

The show was well put on. I must say, though, that some of the stars are not wonderful singers. W. G.

[Editor's note: But O, sometimes how one wishes they at least could sing!]

Voice in Accord.

Dear Miss Tineé: Allow me to take this opportunity to compliment you on your review of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." The picture is one which requires a frank opinion of disgust. As times goes on Gloria seems to become more and more decorative and less useful. I have found that most of your reviews state the picture as it appears. However, a little more credit could be given to "The Spoilers." And "Hollywood" wasn't all that the cast would have made it, was it?

I shall continue to follow your advice and to remain

A FAITHFUL READER.

A Pat on the Back.

Dear Miss Tineé: I am not writing this letter to have it printed. I merely want to pat you on the back for your writeup in the paper about grand opera, vaudeville, news, etc.

I think you are absolutely correct in your opinion. Opera is opera, vaudeville is vaudeville, pictures are movies, and when you try to mix them you have a mess.

When people spend the best part of a dollar they are not paying to see how fish are cleaned, Harding starting on another trip, and jokes that were stale B. C.

After the orchestra has played its overture twice, to make the selection last fifteen minutes, the everlasting news weekly, around the world with the camera man, fun from the press, organist solo with more pictures, and the dry comedy, you are either asleep or half insane. CLARENCE.

Many good wishes to your department.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

H. H. H.—Well, if it would "tickle you pink" to go through the plant, who not do it? We have handsome guides, rocking chairs for the ladies, cradles for the babies, etc. Every once in a while. I did. Write again.

BOSO—Think not. Why? The ladies do not give their ages. Sorry.

JACOB W.—I'd love to oblige you, but we don't send out such things as "advance sheets" on the movies. For the further information you require, please repeat your request, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Awfully glad you wrote.

STEPHEN—"One hundred dollars" to see you in a picture! Ye gods, Adonis, take the first train for Hollywood!

E. H.—Too hot. Besides, you have the name wrong. NOW I reckon you'll be guessing for a while!

MISS M. F.—Suppose you send me the envelope (stamped and self-addressed). Then I'll send what you ask for. Repeat your request with the next communication—please.

BROADWAY ROSE—So you "seen them and liked them," did you? That's nice! Sorry, but we have no photographs to send out.

Singers Take the Leap to Fame in One Performance

the first time that she had sung it in French, resulted in a glorious reception for her and she is now singing some of the greatest rôles that fall to the range of the mezzo-soprano voice.

In fact, one can go through the entire list of principals and find few operatic organizations to compare with it in the matter of well liked artists. Ravinia audiences are loyal to their favorites, and the singers respond by giving performances of the first class.

"Secret of Suzanne" Tonight.

Three additions to the north shore répertoire will be made this week. Wolf-Ferrari's "The Secret of Suzanne," light-hearted farce set to music, is billed for tonight, with Vicente Ballester and Graziella Pareto as the count and countess and Giordano Paltrinieri as the pantomimic butler. It will be coupled with Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," as sung by Florence Easton, Morgan Kingston, Marion Telva, Desiré Defrère, and Anna Correnti.

Donizetti's "L'Elisir d'Amore," also classifying as light opera, is up for Wednesday night's hearing, with Miss Pareto and Mr. Ballester likewise in the cast and Tito Schipa, Margery Maxwell, and Paolo Ananian filling the other important rôles. Giordano's "Fedora" is on the announcements for Saturday night, with Ina Bourskaya in the name part, the first time hereabouts that a Russian singer has appeared as the supposedly Russian heroine. Mr. Kingston, Mr. Danise, Mr. Rothier, Miss Maxwell, and a number of others will lend expert assistance.

The concert tomorrow night will be not only symphonic but operatic. There will be numbers by the Chicago Symphony orchestra under Mr. Hasselmanns' baton, also the quartet from "Rigoletto" sung by Josephine Lucchese, Miss Telva, Armand Tokatyan, and Louis D'Angelo, and the sextet from "Lucia" by these four, plus Mr. Ballester and Mr. Paltrinieri. Jacques Gordon, concertmaster of the orchestra, will play a violin solo. Elsewhere in the week there will be repetitions of "Madame Butterfly" with Miss Easton on Tuesday night, "Tosca" with Miss Rethberg on Thursday night, and "Manon" with Miss Sabanieva and Mr. Schipa on Friday night. Orchestra concerts will be given as usual on Saturday and Sunday afternoons, and the children's program on Thursday afternoon.

Mostly About Music.

A musical program and other exercises befitting the occasion will be given for the benefit of the David Bispham Memorial Fund, Inc., at the Moraine hotel, Highland Park, on Tuesday noon. Mrs. Archibald Freer, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Albert Ochsner, and Mrs. Louis E. Yager are the national officers. Two "Opera in English" selections will be sung—the duet from "Shanewis" by Lillian Knowles, contralto, and Fred Wise, tenor, and the flower duet from "Madame Butterfly" by Hazel Eden, soprano, and Florence Lucas, contralto.

Announcement is made of the second contest for young artists' appearances at the popular concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. It is open to young artists in piano, singing, violin, cello, and flute who are native born or of naturalized American parents, and who are studying with a member of the Society of American Musicians. Entrance to the contest will close on Nov. 15, and elimination contests will take place shortly thereafter. Howard Wells, president of the Society of American Musicians, 907-908 Lyon & Healy building, has the affair in charge.

The Society of the Friends of Music, New York, sends word of a large amount of hitherto unheard music to be presented under its auspices this season. Twenty-six works are announced, and twenty-one of them "first times." The society will lead off on Oct. 15 with Hans Pfitzner's Romantic Cantata, to be sung by Elizabeth Rethberg, soprano; Mrs. Charles Cahier, contralto; Orville Harold, tenor; and Paul Bender, bass; a chorus of 200, and an orchestra of 113 directed by Artur Bodanzky. Other and later novelties will be by Ravel, Korngold, Purcell, and Zemlinsky, and among the soloists will be Carl Friedberg, Harold Bauer, and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, pianists; Bronislaw Huberman, violinist; and Vera Janacopulos, soprano. The season will close with Bach's "St. John's Passion."

The Chicago band will play this afternoon at the Municipal pier and on Thursday night at Palmer park. William Weil directs.

New York music reviewers are already emitting anticipatory groans over how busy they are going to be next January when the Wagnerian Opera company and the Metropolitan are running simultaneously. The German organization will not come into conflict with the Chicago Civic opera, but will play here for two weeks at the Studebaker and close just before the Auditorium is ready to turn up its lights. Josef Stransky will make his American debut as an operatic conductor here, indicating tempos and cues in Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" and Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." The other conductors will be Eduard Moericke and Ernest Knoch.

A recent communication from the Chicago Civic Opera narrates the short and simple annals of Alexander Kipnis, newly engaged German basso. He was born in Poland in 1891, the son of a manufacturing shopkeeper. At the age of 10 he sang soprano in a choir; at 16 he departed with a touring company that went on the rocks; at 17 he went to Warsaw to study; at 20 to Berlin. He was interned during the war, released, sang his first engagement at Hamburg and his second at Wiesbaden. In 1921 he sang guest performances with the opera company at Berlin, and the next year was a regular member of the organization and one of those to come to this country with the Wagnerian company. Giorgio Polacco is given the credit for his engagement here.

Virginia Adrienne Mitchell will play a group of piano pieces during Jesse Crawford's organ recital at the Chicago theater this noon. Mr. Crawford will play works by Von Blon, Schubert, Gessel, Dvorak, and Offenbach.

News from the opera season at the Buenos Aires Colon theater includes the names of several who at one time and another helped to make history for the Chicago opera. One reads of Carlo Galeffi in "Rigoletto," of Armand Crabbé and Marcel Journet in "Marouf," and of John O'Sullivan and Claudia Muzio in "Les Huguenots." Gino Marinuzzi's conducting is spoken of with as much enthusiasm as it used to receive here, and Mario Sammarco, who was a great baritone in certain rôles, is the stage director.

SHE IS SPANISH

DORIA FERNANDA.

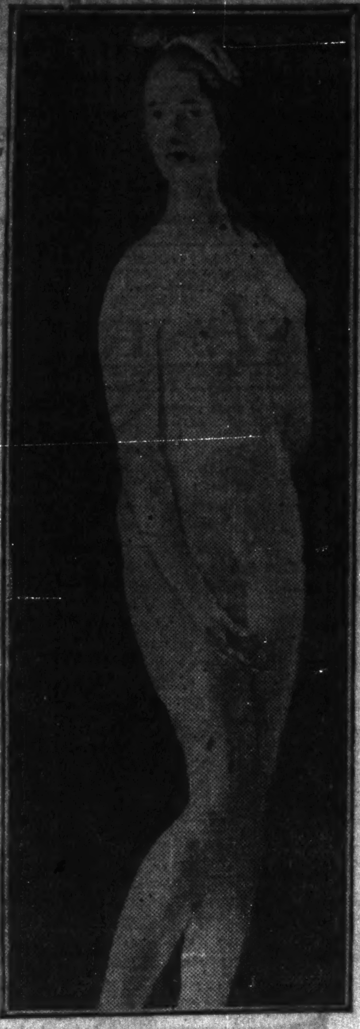
It may be that she will not be seen on the Auditorium stage next winter in precisely this guise, but she claims Spanish forbears, and she possesses Spanish finery. She comes here from San Francisco, and she classifies in the contralto category of the Chicago Civic Opera company.

ART AND ARTISTS

Cautious Critic Lets Whistler Speak for Himself

By Inez Cunningham



One of the paintings in the loan collection being exhibited for the summer at the Art institute.

ONE of my co-workers at THE TRIBUNE greets me, when we chance to meet, with "Hello, cricket." When asked by another why he did so, he said he couldn't say the word "critic," never could. Then he smiled at me, knowing full well, I surmise, that aside from trying to tease he had created a charming analogy. For how like they are, the critic and the cricket—busy atoms chirping loudly about the works of men; scurrying over surfaces beneath which lay buried centuries of life, centuries of progress, centuries of decay; popping in and out, articulate in a language sometimes beautiful but always meaningless.

How Mr. Whistler, who scorned the race, would have loved the analogy. Strange, indeed, that he never used it for purposes of annihilation at which he was so swift and sure.

Some of his etchings are hanging for the summer season in the new print department of the Art institute and I should like to bring them to your attention. Some of the set which was hauled into court in the Whistler-Ruskin fracas are there. Not the one of Battersea, which caused the rumpus and about which Ruskin had the effrontery to say, "I have seen and heard much of cockney impudence before now but never expected to hear a coxcomb ask two hundred guineas for flinging a pot of paint in the public's face," but many of the examples that were the instruments of revealing the amazing stupidity which the British public brought to the viewing of his works.

The attorney general of England immortalized it when he said in a speech delivered at Westminster, "I do not know when so much amusement has been afforded the British public as by Mr. Whistler's pictures." No wonder Whistler hated art critics; no wonder he slew them with his rapier pointed pen; no wonder he annihilated them with language as brilliant, with argument as logically illogical as any Shaw has ever used.

But he slew alike those who were significant and those who were crickets, those who praised and those who blamed, and those who merely misunderstood! I want to bring his etchings to you—or, rather, bring you to his etchings, which we all possess for the nonce at the Art institute—and make you as happy in the possession as I.

But I am afraid to speak for fear the wrothy wraith of Mr. Whistler will visit me and spoil my peace. Even his etchings have done that—how much more his wraith, should he haunt me o' nights! So I will let him be his own cricket; then if the visitation should come it will be a benign one. I will let him tell you himself how it is that the whole visible world went through the mill of his disturbing personality and came out such fine grist, such nourishing intellectual food.

I quote him: "As music is the poetry of sound, so is painting the poetry of sight, and the subject matter has nothing to do with harmony of sound or of color.

"The great musicians know this. Beethoven and the rest wrote music—simply music; symphony in this key, sonata or concerto in that.

"On F or G they constructed celestial harmonies—as harmonies—as combinations, evolved from the chord of F or G and their minor corelatives.

"This is pure music as distinguished from airs—commonplace and vulgar in themselves, but interesting from their association; as, for instance, 'Yankee Doodle' or 'Partant pour La Syrie.'

"Art should be independent of all claptrap, should stand alone, without confounding with this emotions entirely foreign to it, as devotion, piety, love, patriotism, and the like. All these have no concern with it, and that is why I insist on calling my works 'arrangements' and 'harmonies.'

"Take the picture of my mother exhibited at the Royal academy as 'An arrangement in gray and black.' Now that is what it is. To me is is interesting as a picture of my mother, but what can, or ought the public to care about the identity of the portrait?

"The imitator is a poor kind of creature. If the man who paints only the tree or flower or other surface he sees before him were an artist, the king of artists would be the photographer. It is for the artist to do something beyond this: In portraiture to put on canvas something more than the face the model wears for that one day; to paint the man, in short, as well as his features; in arrangement of color to treat a flower as his key not as his model."

Art Notes.

Our Art institute, as well as the Field museum, has come in for favorable comment by the critic of the New York Times. Merci mille fois, we are grateful for any prophecy not uttered at home.

The models of Miss Violet Oakley's murals for the Pennsylvania state capitol are being shown in London, and are causing much enthusiasm for that American artist.

A kind correspondent, commending me for stating the prices of Mr. Hennings' lovely paintings, has a most pertinent paragraph in her letter which I take the liberty of quoting, thanking her at once for her kindness. She says:

"A great majority of people think artists paint for pleasure and for exhibitions so that the public can see how they have improved. You would be surprised to know how little people know of picture values. They read of the big sums for which old masters are sold, and place a similar value on all paintings."

It is true a great many who want pictures think they can not afford them and would be glad to know they are mistaken.

Removing One of Hollywood's Pet Worries

Lenore Ulric, who looked as regal and as eye-taking as Pola in scarlet chiffon.

The next day Pola told an interviewer she was much interested in William Tilden. No, she would never marry Charley.

And it was only six months ago that Pola was blushing and admitting at the Delmonte home of Gouverneur Morris that she would be Mrs. Sharley Shaplins!

Who will be Mrs. Sharley Shaplins? Hollywood asks you.

After all, Sharley still has his art.

Morris and Secretary Engaged.

Gouverneur Morris and his secretary have announced their engagement. She is Miss Ruth Wightman of San Francisco. When Pola and Charley went golfing at Pebble beach Miss Wightman and Morris made the foursome.

Hollywood also has time to mull over the Neilan reports. It is said that Marshall Neilan, the husband of Blanche Sweet, is interested in New York and a star who is helping to light the city with her odd jewelry and bizarre gowns.

But on the eve of Miss Sweet's engagement to enact "Anna Christie" there was a long distance telephone call from New York, and Neilan's voice could be heard through an amplifier by all the dinner guests.

All of our good little movie stars acted like school children when it was learned that Thomas Ince had bought the play that starred Pauline Lord on Broadway. It is even rumored at the studios that Pauline Frederick and Anna Q. Nilsson offered to screen "Anna Christie" without pay.

Says Next Will Be Permanent.

A divorce about which there is no doubt is that of Helene Chadwick, who asked the court to free her from one William Wellman, director.

"Our marriage was the typical war romance, with the usual ending," said Miss Chadwick. "Glamour isn't the stuff real marriages are made of. I don't expect to remain single all my life, but my next marriage will be of the permanent variety."

Mr. Wellman was a member of the French air corps during the war.

Stars Like Catalina.

Catalina island—the St. Catherine hotel, to be exact—is the vacation spot of many film stars lately. During the week I saw the Frank Mayos taking one of their many honeymoons. Dagmar Godowsky (Mrs. Mayo) was in sports clothes of black and white and carried a Chinese parasol of jade silk.

June Elvidge, Cyril Chadwick, Mayo, and Mrs. Mayo are ardent mahjongg fans and leave the boating and swimming for a game on the hotel veranda.

June Elvidge has had her hair shingled as closely as a boy's, and it is particularly attractive.

There was a host of other film-famous there—Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McGregor, Priscilla Dean, Betty Bouton, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Santchi, and George Archinbaud.

Styles are rather startling this season. They have to be. There is so much competition from the eastern stars of Broadway who are invading Hollywood.

Leave it to Phyllis Haver. She appeared at a dinner party recently with a little bear and a deer painted on her shoulder.

Now, no punning! Phyllis wouldn't like that.

THE KICK KORNER

Its Object—Objection.

Dear Miss Tinée: Is there no way to eliminate you and your slangy, vulgar, "trying to be smart," "I bet you," "you bet" articles from The Tribune? "Good morning," "see you tomorrow," and "wo'k'm" are getting to be so disagreeable and disgusting that my family and I read movie picture news in other papers, where the reporters are ladylike and dignified. Can't we have Mrs. Cunningham? Won't you please take a vacation soon again?

D. W.

[Editor's Note: Well—I'd like another vacation. There must be SOME way of eliminating one so objectionable.]

Dear Miss Tinée: Let me ask you one thing—could not something be done to lower the cost of producing one's films? I own a camera, but I find it is too costly to use much. I must pay $8 for the film for one load —200 feet—and some $15 more to have this developed and printed. Such a scale of prices is all right for the big producer, who uses millions of feet of film in a single month; but for the small user this cost makes the finest sport in the world—making his own movies—too expensive. However, I believe that if every fan had his own standard sized camera and projector the cost would go down and the quality of the photography in the feature pictures would improve. It would have to, for the fan, knowing how to make good movies, would no longer tolerate the mediocre photography and poorly finished films so common nowadays. If you through your paper would try to give this idea publicity I feel sure this condition would be brought one step nearer.

W. S.

[Editor's Note: Everybody please ans.]

Dear Miss Tinée: I believe it was Miss Betty Compson I saw in a sort of moving picture called "The Rustle of Silk," and for five days I have been fighting down an uncivilized desire to register my impressions of it. It has been a good battle well lost.

I am not so angry with the producers for allowing the picture to appear. I have met a number of producers and I realize they are not mentally capable of forming an opinion previous to a glimpse at the box office sheets. I am not moved to these words by the fact that this Miss Betty Compson person in attempting to register lofty devotion looked like a sick cow. I am not peeved because her leading man seemed to be exactly what a half baked scenario writer wanted him to be. I am not thusly excited because the director's sense of humor cannot be distinguished from his sense of the dramatic. What I'm sore about is the fact that the audience soaked it up, and wanted more.

How tender and touching the scene where Miss Compson takes the shoes from the lovely feet of Mr. Tearle, or whatever his name is, fondles the feet, and puts his slippers on. I couldn't figure out here whether the director wanted the audience to laugh or cry, so I did both. I laughed because I used to laugh at tent shows, and I cried because the audience liked it.

But I am sure the director meant one scene to be both dramatic and touching—the scene, if you remember, wherein the lofty leading male meets the starring female for the first time and, after a confession on the part of the female that she is practically nuts about him, says, "I have always loved you and I always shall," and slowly, tenderly, dramatically takes her into his manly arms. Honestly, I thought Miss Compson was going to die. To her, it seems, expression of love and indigestion should be registered as one and the same thing. To me it seemed that she must have picked a mushroom without a scientific knowledge of the kind to pick.

Perhaps I am unkind to Miss Compson. Of all the people I have seen in the movies there are only three women who have ever done any acting worthy of the name. They are not Gloria Swanson, Mary Pickford or Clara Kimball Young.

Alaric.

[Editor's Note—But THINK of the lovely laidies who would give their hats to be permitted to remove from or put shoes on "the lovely feet of Mr. Tearle."]

Dear Miss Tinée: I think your article in regard to large movie houses is ridiculous. What are you sore about? Any change or illusion is well liked by a movie audience. If you could see the crowds waiting in front of the theaters in Los Angeles, especially to see the prologue and hear the symphony orchestra program, you would change your mind. You write exactly like a girl who has never traveled.

Alex S.

Dear Miss Tinée—Since Just Me has doubtless started something with her scathing remarks about Rodolf Valentino, I decided to join the ranks of the many who admire him, and give him a good word.

I have seen Mr. Valentino in person, heard him speak—and he has a good command of the English language; his diction is perfect, and the tone of his voice is all that could be desired and expected of such a charming man with his personality and rare good looks. He has just a slight accent that reminds me, as well as others, of Leo Ditrichstein.

I shall never forget him as he appeared in "The Four Horsemen." He has been classed as one of, even as the finest, artist on the screen.

Mr. Valentino cannot help it because so many thousands of women have found his personality and love making so appealing. There are many men who like him, too. Those who do not are just plain jealous, and we all know it. He has all that they have not, and they get riled up because they can never be like him in looks, love making, and polish.

Where you enter Windermere-East

Hotels WINDERMERE
give real homes to travelers as well as to Chicagoans

Let us state the full possibilities of Windermere-East and its companion hotel, Windermere-West.

It is true that Windermere-East contains many apartments of two rooms, three rooms, four rooms and five rooms with kitchenettes or kitchens. These are homes in the truest sense of the word, with privacy, beautiful appointments, and all the homely virtues of abundant closet space, large dressing rooms as well as all modern conveniences, such as running ice water, artificial refrigeration and automatic ventilation.

But this is not all. You may secure hotel accommodations for a single day, a week or a season at Windermere-East—and thus, though a traveller, find an environment comparable to an exclusive home.

Windermere-East has a restaurant, where club breakfasts are served, and where the dinners are of such delicious quality that the cuisine has rapidly established a reputation commanding an unusual and individual appreciation.

Hotel rooms and suites are available by the day or for any period. Apartments with kitchens or kitchenettes are leased by the year. Windermere-West has accommodations on the American plan.

Whether you live in Chicago permanently or occasionally—whether you wish to live and prepare your meals in an apartment as you would in your home, or dine in the quiet dining rooms of these two hotels—the two Windermeres will appeal to you if you prefer an atmosphere of character, refinement, dignity and distinction.

The number of available apartments is limited. It is wise to make an early visit and selection.

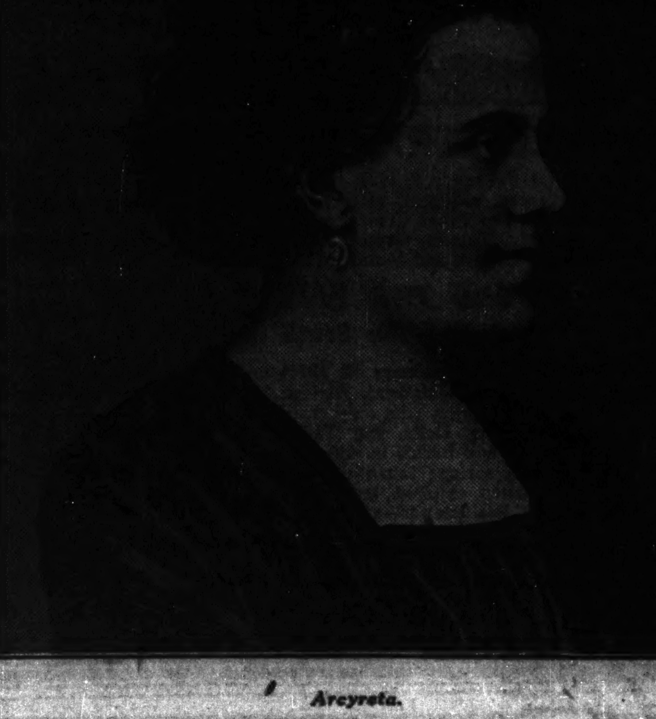
WHAT MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN?

By Selby Maxwell.



Arcyreta.

CALMNESS BRINGS BEAUTY.

Arcyreta knows what it is to be both contented and happy. She combines rare traits in one body. Some women have every ground to be contented, but still they are not happy. Others are happy in their blindness, never seeing the pitfalls ahead that are merely piling up for some distant day when unhappiness will surely come. But a few women can analyze accurately, and so escape both evils. Arcyreta is happy, and she knows why. Therein she possesses an admirable beauty.

No woman who is secretly discontented or unsatisfied can ever be truly beautiful. No matter how hidden the yearning may be, or how little she realizes its portent herself, her subconscious mind will record it, and her face will be wrinkled accordingly. Look at women, if you do not believe this. Watch for the mouth that turns down at the corners when its owner is vexed, the nostrils that rise when she is crossed, the upper eyelid that droops and folds as she schemes, or the brows that start to gather, and make the faintest little wrinkles, ere she realize it and checks them.

There are scores of telltale marks on a human face that reveal how the mind is going inside. There is no more use in trying to hide them than there is to attempt to veil the sky, to hide its storms. The place to cure ugliness is in the mind, not on the flesh.

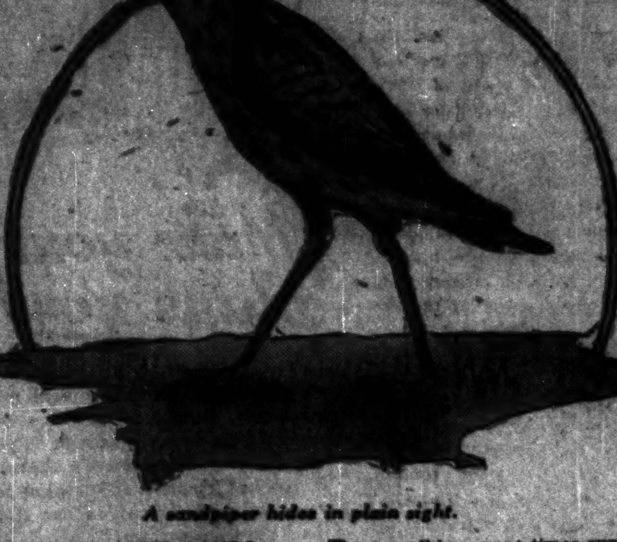
Arcyreta knows this. She is tranquil. She is patient. She is composed. She is analytical. She is humane.

In part, her blood is responsible for her outlook on life. She is the product of Celt and Cromagnon. The first furnishes her with an unfailing store of human sympathy, wit and good fellowship. The second makes her keen and shrewd, a good judge of motives and of results. Intentions count with her as much as the deeds themselves. For this reason she can be truly charitable toward others, and can explain their injuries to her so that they do not rankle.

Her mind is philosophical. Her eyes are wide open, but dreamy. There is no guile in her, no schemes, and no venom. By avoiding these three she misses much of what makes women unhappy, and consequently ugly.

Arcyreta has a mouth that is relaxed and whose corners turn up. There will be few wrinkles on her face when she is an old lady, for the thoughts that make wrinkles are not in her. Look at her face. Is it not true that all the women who are like her are also beautiful like her?

Birds



A sandpiper hides in plain sight.

ALONE UPON THE SANDS.

The rushing waters from the breakers surge and roar. At every roll a tongue of white foam licks up the gray beach, pauses, and courses swiftly back for another try. Beyond, the white caps are tossing, and a clear, cold wind bites steadily from the northeast. The waves are raw in the sunshine, even though it is the middle of summer.

There, walking, or at times running, fairly under the spray of the breaking waves, is a little sandpiper. He sees the waters retreat, he rushes after them, to snatch up some sand crawler or water flea; he sees the gray green crest curling upward for another lunge, and races landward just in time.

A sandpiper's plumage is white, gray and brown. It is protective coloring. It conceals him, even when he is exposed upon a naked beach.

Varied Activities of Women.

Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British premier, runs a school for servant girls.

Mrs. Margaret C. Goodman is said to be the only woman in the business of salvaging sunken ships. She dons a deep sea diving suit and directs the work of raising ships.

It is estimated that more than 50 per cent of the deposits in uptown banks in New York City are in women's accounts.

Careful Motorists

Are you one of the growing army of Careful Motorists who carry their care in motoring to other matters quite apart from driving?

For instance; do you protect the power that really "makes the wheels go round?"—not your gas, but your MONEY.

The habit of carrying ordinary cash on their motor trips leads many, otherwise careful motorists, to overlook a very real danger in traveling roads far from home—the danger of losing your money or having it stolen and being left away from home, among strangers—helpless.

Careful Motorists avoid this ever-present danger by carrying

American Express Travelers Cheques

Ready for instant use, acceptable everywhere, spendable anywhere, these cheques not only carry in themselves a protection against money loss or theft, but they assure their users the most human and helpful service of the American Express chain of international offices abroad and more than 30,000 Express Offices in United States and Canada. They are a necessity to the careful motorist and a protecting comfort.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

MRS. GILBERT E. PORTER III. and MRS. WELLESLEY HILL STILLWELL. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

No golfers could look as smiling and pleased as do these Lake Forest young matrons unless they played a good game, so they must all be "near champions." Mrs. Frederick C. Letts [Marjorie Dodd] is the only real champion in the lot, however, having recently won the tournament sanctioned by the Western Woman's Golf association here. This is the second time she has captured this title.

Mrs. Wellesley Hill Stillwell, the former Courtney Letts, is missing from the golf links of the Onwentsia and the Shoreacres, where these pictures were taken, this month, as she and Mr. Stillwell are visiting friends in the east. Mrs. Letts, Miss Margaret Thompson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Slason Thompson; Mrs. Vaughan C. Spalding [Florence Cudahy], Mrs. William H. Mitchell II. [Ginevra King], and Mrs. Gilbert E. Porter III. [Anne Kilby], are still pursuing the little white ball over the rolling courses in Lake Forest and Lake Bluff almost every fair day.

Mrs. Stillwell and Mrs. Mitchell were chosen by Antoinette Donnelly, The Tribune's beauty expert, as among the twelve most beautiful women in America.

Tide of Travel Bears Away Our Social Lights

By Mme. X.

THIS is not the local social season's most active or interesting moment. The only movement this pillar of polite piffle sees that merits chronicling is a tendency on the part of those with health and wealth to seek change and possible excitement in other territories than those they have been exploiting since the summer began.

Looking over my back fence I note the John T. McCutcheons have abandoned their two children and their [illegible] tasted, baffling Chinese chow, [illegible], to their nearby relatives, the Charles T. Atkinsons, and have betaken themselves for a week's visit with the young Cyrus McCormicks at the camp of the latter up north somewhere in the jungles that abut on that popular resort, the Huron Mountain club.

According to reports the chief sport in that region is walking marathons. The contestants strive to outdo records in speed, distance, and cross country hikes, and usually succeed if you take the records as handed in.

Other enterprising local celebrities are wandering farther afield. As I, in my rôle of advance agent, notified my readers last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock and Miss Muriel McCormick are on their way to visit the Scandinavian peninsula. They sailed yesterday, if they kept their program, on the Drottningholm of the Swedish-American line and will spend four or five weeks touring in the kingdom of the erstwhile vikings. It is much improved since the vikings used it as a base for their raids on the nearby British isles and the "low countries," as Holland and Belgium were then called.

It is today a thrifty, clean, up to date nation. Nothing on the continent or in England can compare with the immaculateness of the Swedish railway restaurants or with the delicious quality of the food to be had there.

One Meets Unfailing Courtesy.

If they still keep the customs of a quarter of a century ago when this writer traveled there, the wayfarer merely takes a plate and helps himself from a bountifully spread table to anything from caviar to fragrant strawberries, after which he retires to a little table spread with a spotless table cloth where he eats his appetizing plateful. He tells the cashier what he has had, and pays for it on his own recognizance, which is merely one of the many evidences of the unfailing courtesy one encounters in that country.

The railways are comfortable and the cars are clean, though the average speed is not dazzling. The hotels are among the best to be found in foreign travel. The highroads are good for motoring and the waterways, of which there are many, are delightful. The landscape is always pleasing, though not overpowering like the fjords of Norway.

There is much of the past left in Sweden. The art of hand weaving is still practiced there, and many beautiful pieces of hand woven carpets and hangings come from there. The peasants are industrious in this craft, each province having its own set of designs easily recognizable by the connoisseur. These designs have been handed down since long before written history makes record for the Swedish people.

In one house I visited, a handsome place at Gefle [pronounced Yevlen] up on the Baltic coast, the central stairway that came in a sweeping curve from the upper story to the large main hall was hung on one balustrade with Spanish weavings and on the other with some from oriental hand looms, and the same patterns could be easily traced in the two sets of draperies. The tribes that wandered from central Asia and finally landed on this westernmost land of Europe in those unrecorded ages when civilization was emerging undoubtedly brought with them this art and these patterns, which have been handed down through uncounted generations of winter toilers. The long, dark, semi-arctic season that is a Swedish winter leaves much time for indoor occupation.

Independent of the Rest of the World.

There is not so much of the patriarchal nowadays in Swedish country life as there was a quarter of a century ago, but still most of the prominent families live on great country estates where almost everything used is a product of the land. The beds I slept on were all decked in finest linen that had been grown, spun, and woven on the estates. They were deliciously cold and slippery. The carpets and curtains were for the most part made from wool clipped from sheep on the place and right there dyed, spun, and woven into ancient patterns. The meats, fish, poultry, and vegetables came from the farms, as did the dairy products and flour. In short, except for the spices and wines, those great households were entirely independent of the rest of the world.

One did not recognise there the migratory species of domestic labor with which we associate the Swedish folk. The butler in one family where I visited had been in the family service sixty years, but hobbled briskly about, declining to be pensioned so long as he could pour his employer's wine without spilling a drop. The rest of the domestic corps had the same record of long and faithful service, and was as much a part of the family as the parents and children.

The one drawback to a long summer sojourn there, from the writer's point of view, is the fact that it never grows dark at night and it is not easy to learn to sleep in the soft, pervasive glare of a Swedish night. Of course, by this time in the summer there is a short space of comparative darkness. But earlier in the season one can read at any hour between sunset and sunrise without artificial light.

Bound for Williamstown.

Others in the nearby territory, over which this column watches so sleeplessly, who are departing for new surroundings are the group of earnest seekers after light who are gathering at Williamstown, Mass., to follow the lectures to be given there by authorities on foreign affairs and political science. Among those joining this band are Mrs. Emmons Blaine Jr. and Mrs. William G. Hibbard of Winnetka, Miss Mabel Linn of Chicago, and Mrs. Arthur Ryerson of Ringwood, her country place near Cooperstown. Still more departing citizens are Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale, who are going to Europe this month; Mrs. William McCormick Blair and her children, who are going for the month to visit her mother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, in Bar Harbor, Me. They have been spending the summer in Lake Forest, where they have been occupying Dr. Samuel J. Walker's summer home on Telegraph road. Dr. Walker is leaving here about the middle of the month to spend a fortnight with his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Moncrieffe, on their ranch at Big Horn, near Sheridan, Wyo. Later this week Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson are going to visit their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Frost, who with their three children are spending the summer on the north shore of Boston.

Runnells Family Reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Clive Runnells are soon joining the former's father, John S. Runnells, at his summer home in the White Mountains at Chocorua, N. H. Every year the entire Runnells family gathers there at some time during this month for a family reunion. This includes Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irving Jenks of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Atlee Jackson of Philadelphia, and Mr. and Mrs. William James and their children from Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. William Burry have joined the vast throng which is always to be found speeding in automobiles through the Green Mountains of Vermont and the White ones of New Hampshire. The Lester Armours have gone on a fishing expedition to the remote regions of upper New Brunswick.

Camps and life in the open usually claim many at this season of the year. Mrs. Morris L. Johnston and Miss Angela Johnston have gone to their camp in Wisconsin, where Mr. Johnston will later join them. On the other band, Alfred Granger departed yesterday for the wilds of New Mexico where, starting from the ancient territory of the cliff dwellers, called the "Mesa Verde," he is going on a camping expedition up into the almost unexplored regions of the high Rockies.

Those pathfinders and explorers, the Charles Barney Goodspeeds, who recently returned from traversing Africa from Cape Town and Table Bay to Cairo, have again departed to visit the former's mother, Mrs. Wilbur F. Goodspeed, at her seashore place at Osterville, Mass., on Cape Cod. Mrs. Goodspeed's house there is almost on the seashore and has one remarkable feature. An ancient and sturdy tree grows up through the verandah and completely shades the house.

The tide of travel does not run entirely away from Chicago and its environs, however. Mrs. Samuel Insull, who went to New York a week ago to meet Samuel Insull Jr. (better known as "Junior"), returned with him on Friday, and both joined Mr. Insull senior at their country place, Hawthorne Farms, at Libertyville. Young Mr. Insull has been touring Europe since the late spring, studying electrical plants and their workings.

It is the first time in several years that the Insull family has been gathered in its entirety in the charming house on the Milwaukee road. The place is now in its most attractive aspect. The extensive gardens are all abloom; the family of haughty and stately swans that inhabits the lovely miniature lakes now floats with especial pride because of an attendant train of little swanlets. The herd of Shorthorn cattle, for which Hawthorne Farms is famous, and the big horses (are they "Suffolk Punches"?) are all in prime condition.

One Wonders Why.

The Insulls and their neighbors have for the last few weeks been shut off from the rest of the world by the deliberate building of that part of the Milwaukee road that passes the front of their land. To reach the houses on the west side of the road the visitor has to make a long detour and drive through fields and around many a bosky barrier before arriving at the back entrances. But when it is finished that stretch of this important highway will be a fine piece of concrete pavement.

One wonders, however, in looking at its present dimensions, why it was decided to make it so narrow. It looks as if it would take skillful driving to permit two cars to pass each other, especially on a dark and rainy night. Up in Wisconsin they originally built wider roads than we are doing in Illinois, and now they are widening them still more. The unfortunate results of narrow driveways are illustrated in Roosevelt road where the edges, especially in that stretch that lies near the Speedway hospital, are already broken and destroyed by the heavy traffic. It seems only last week that the motoring world was rejoicing in the opening of this smooth highway, and today it is lamenting the already crumbling surface and the ragged, jagged edges.

Among other wandering Chicagoites reported to be on the way home again is Mrs. Samuel T. Chase. She leased her delightful Lake Forest house in June to the T. Philip Swifts and departed by motor with her two daughters, the Misses Elizabeth and Janet Chase, for Hyannisport, where the trio was booked to spend the rest of the season. Mrs. Chase's mother, Mrs. F. F. Ayer, joined her there.

And now comes the news that the young ladies are going. "Miss Libby" out west to a ranch in Wyoming, and Miss Janet to Desbarats, in the upper reaches of the lake region. So Mrs. Chase is returning to Lake Forest, and may later go with her husband to Yellowstone park. Until they start for the west the Chases will be at the Onwentsia club.

Sounds Like Comic Opera.

Have you forgotten the plight of that small group of our fellow countrymen who were kidnaped by Chinese bandits a few months ago and seemed in such dire peril for several weeks? A recent letter from Mrs. William J. Calhoun, formerly of Chicago, throws quite a new light on this adventure. In a letter dated June 8 she writes she had seen some of the captives, among them Maj. and Mrs. Allen and Miss Aldrich and her companions. Miss Aldrich is a daughter of the late Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island.

"Their testimony," she says, "is rather droll, for they liked the bandits and they say they were well treated, after the first night's march, which must have been horrible. Maj. Allen says all the captives are in better health than when they were taken, the out of door life was so good for them. One just out of hospital has made a quick convalescence. Miss Aldrich was very funny about the whole thing. She would not take it seriously, and was so enthusiastic about her captors. She showed me a photograph of the bandit who escorted her back to Tsinan, and said she would like to take him to America. Also she said the village people were very kind."

Doesn't this read like a Gilbert and Sullivan opera? And wouldn't it make a capital plot for a musical comedy? Mrs. Calhoun finds life so interesting in China that she has taken a house in Peking for two years. It belongs to Admiral Tsai-Aun, who made it over to suit the more intricate requirements of an American occupant, in spite of which Mrs. Calhoun says it is "absolutely Chinese" in its decoration and adornment. It is, she writes, "beautifully built and finished." The pillars, which are of rare and costly wood and were part of the Chein Tung temple, were coated with fibers of hemp, over which eight coats of paint were placed.

Mrs. Calhoun moved into this Americo-Chinese abode early in July. She saw much of Miss Jane Addams and Miss Mary Rozet-Smith during their stay in Peking. Miss Smith gave a flying party while in Peking. Mrs. Calhoun writes that, owing to a strong wind, they were not able to fly to and over the Chinese wall, as had been their plan, but the pilot, Capt. Dolan, did take the party over the Chinese capital, when they saw the Forbidden City and the Temple of Heaven from above. She says, "It gave me a thrill, but no sensation of fear."

The two Misses Hinde, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hinde, are on their way home now from visiting Mrs. Calhoun in Peking. They are reported as being most enthusiastic about their tour in China.

Have We Forgotten.

There is nothing that so warms the cockles of the heart of the architect of this column as a communication from some reader which indicates a more than passing interest in some of the variegated material we here present for consumption. A recent letter from Mrs. E. C. Shattuc of Glen Ellyn gave more than the usual heart throb. It was evoked by something written about the occupational therapy work going on at the Great Lakes hospital almost unheeded by the rest of the world. A plea for sympathetic coöperation from the public at large was made in the article. The description of the work and the workers brought forth the letter from Mrs. Shattuc which so touched and interested me I must quote from it here.

She says of the soldiers who were maimed and crippled in the great war: "So many people have forgotten them and when reminded are impatient and indifferent."

This is a terrible arraignment of you and me and the next man. If it be true, it is to our everlasting shame. It is not applicable to all, however. In Glen Ellyn, according to Mrs. Shattuc, largely through the activities of Mrs. J. C. Knapp, the local woman's club has undertaken to befriend and help the "sick boys" at the Speedway hospital. She writes:

"We adopted a four floor ward of tuberculosis men, gave each—there were forty—a Christmas present and money, supplied overcoats for some, raised money, bought six phonographs for individual wards, and last year had eighty men on our list for Christmas. The boxes of gifts took four autos for transportation, and we decorated their dining tables with poinsettias, fancy tablecloths, favors, etc."

This summer these same devoted women have organized a motor corps which furnishes from three to five cars a week for outings for the cripples. The hostesses give their guests ice cream, cakes, and cigarets on these excursions. Mrs. Shattuc thinks the Glen Ellyn women are the only ones doing this sort of motor corps work. If this be so, the luster shed by this faithful band throws the rest of us into an ugly shadow.

Do you remember, when our soldiers went off overseas five years ago, the promises of everlasting gratitude and devotion we made to them as they passed through the various cities on their way to embark for the long, long trail? Mrs. Shattuc's letter is too long to quote entire, and an article she inclosed, written by her and published in the Glen Ellyn News of July 20, is also too long for insertion here, but it is, as a piece of dramatic and emotional writing, as appealing as anything I have read in a long time. It describes the personalities and remarks of a car full of crippled ex-service men whom she took for a drive. One final paragraph I must quote, however. After her account of the cheerful heroism of her guests it struck like a mournful funeral knell:

"Of the forty-three men the Glen Ellyn Woman's club took charge of in its first year's work at Speedway hospital, all but three have died."

It is not necessary to wish God's blessing on this small band of those who have not forgotten; they have it.

Speakers for Y. W. C. A.

Tomorrow morning there is to be a meeting of those interested in the World Service council of the national board of the Young Women's Christian association at the Lake Forest residence of Mrs. Louis E. Laflin at 11 o'clock. The two speakers of the occasion will be Miss Harriet Taylor, who will talk on "Girls Around the World," and Miss Anne Caldwell, whose subject will be "An Aftermath of the War." As both these women are capital speakers and as no funds will be solicited (a ceremony that sometimes casts a damper on such gatherings) it is hoped and expected there will be a numerous company.

The Y. W. C. A. is short $200,000 and will soon inaugurate a drive to collect this. If it should not be forthcoming, some of their most important work in foreign lands would have to be given up, which would be a great misfortune to thousands of young women and girls in oriental countries, in South America, in eastern Europe, and central Asia. Those who attend this meeting at Mrs. Laflin's will be sure to hear interesting and illuminating speeches. If you are invited, be sure to go.

It was at a small and cheerful gathering that one of the guests, brother of a doctor whose specialty is the cure of dope fiends, quoted his medical relative as saying that the victims of this terrible habit neither sneezed nor yawned. Did you know this peculiarity of these unfortunates? We did not. But we did notice that within a few minutes every one in that company had either sneezed or yawned. Some did both. It had not seemed necessary, knowing the personnel, for any such direct alibi to be established, but evidently "safety first" was the motto of those present.

CHEMISTRY

THE ACTION OF SOAP.

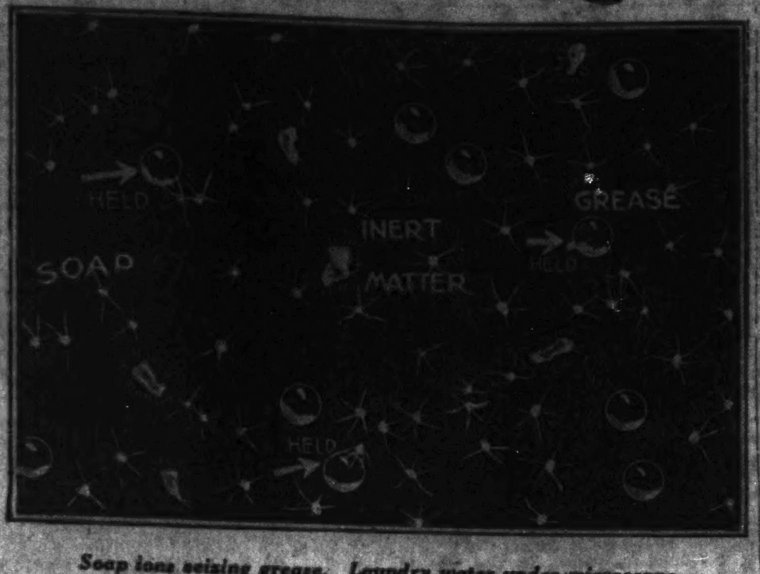
THE washing machine is grinding out the family washing. First it runs one way for half a dozen revolutions, and then it runs the other. Inside there is a mass of frothy bubbles in the hot suds, to wash the clothes clean and white.

Laundering is not a woman's work, at least not today. A party of chemists are coming to take charge, to see by what process the clothes come clean.

The substance that actually cleans the cloth is soap, they explain. The machinery is only an incidental which enables the soap to do its work in the best fashion.

Dirt for the most part consists of oils and greases, with lesser portions of grit and inert substances, such as sand, soot, and clay. Occasionally there are salts present, and once in a while unusual chemicals, such as ink and iron rust, that will not come out by ordinary means.

Plain water suffices to take out salts. These are easily soluble and go into solution at the first drop of water. Greases are more difficult. Pure water will not touch them. The black grime so often found on soiled cloth is made of inert substances held on tight by a smear of grease. Once the grease is dissolved the inert parts fall down and are carried out into the waste water.



Soap ions seizing grease. Laundry water under microscope.

Soap will dissolve grease. This substance is most complex chemically, but in the main consists of a salt of an alkali and a fatty acid. It owes its cleansing action to two properties. When it enters into a watery solution it cuts the value of the latter's surface tension in half. It also forms a milky cloud of almost infinitely small particles which act as so many centers of condensation for the dirt.

Water will not touch a grease because the molecules of the two substances repel each other. If you put a drop of water on a greasy plate you notice that the water remains in a round ball and will not wet the grease. But now, if you put in a little soap solution, the drop at once flattens out, indicating that the grease has been wet.

Hot water is used in washing to melt the grease present on the clothes and make it liquid instead of solid, so that it will be in tiny drops instead of flakes. The churning of the machinery serves to break up the melted grease so that the soap can wet it. As soon as the grease has been reduced very finely, each particle of soap in the milky cloud lays hold of a grease droplet and holds it fast. Thus the soap seems to go out of solution as the clothes grow clean, while the water becomes dirtier. The inert matter, now having nothing to hold it, is washed away by the agitation of the water.

Sometimes cheap soaps contain free alkali. These have a powerful cleansing action, for the alkali, in its zeal to get at the grease, does not stop even for the dye or fabric that may stand in its way. Such soaps quickly rot cloth.

When water is hard, or, in chemical terms, when it contains salts of lime in solution, it forms a nasty, slimy scum on everything instead of cleaning it. This is because the lime salts are themselves minute points of condensation in the water, like the oil drops are that we are trying to have taken up. But the lime is there first, and gets its fill of soap before the oil can act. Such water lathers poorly, and things washed in it require much more rinsing to be freed of the sticky lime compounds.

That Settled That.

Two women in a train argued concerning the window and at last one of them called the conductor.

"If this window is open," she declared. "I shall catch cold and will probably die."

"If the window is shut," the other announced. "I shall suffocate."

The two glared at each other.

The conductor was at a loss, but he welcomed the words of a man who sat near. These were: "First open the window. That will kill one. Next, shut it. That will kill the other. Then we can have peace."

E. L.

Far, Far Away.

A party of strangers was visiting our high school. It was in late fall, and the air was cold.

Two men of the track team dressed for their sport, passed.

"It's dreadfully cold," said a woman in the party, she gazed after the runners, to be without stockings."

A professor who's mind was deep in algebra heard her say that and said, "Then why did you leave them off?"

E. L.

Agreed!

Pat—Mike, when would you call a person absent minded?

Mike—When a fellow thought he left his watch home and he took it out of his pocket to see if he had time to go home and get it.

J. H.

Just a Minute.

The current was shut off on a street car, and it was left standing on the track in front of an elderly woman's house.

She came to the door and said, "What's the matter, mister?"

"The lights are out," replied the conductor.

"Wait a minute," said she, "and I'll bring you a match."

POLITICAL STORIES

Chicago's history is crammed with unwritten political stories, of humorous or pathetic vein, that would be well worth the reading—stories of incidents associated with old-time coups, with groups or political characters or personages. Many such, especially those of humorous trend, never have found their way into print, although often they form the subjects of reminiscent gatherings. Perhaps you are familiar with one of these political stories. If so, write it as briefly as possible and send it in to The Tribune. For each story that is printed The Tribune will pay $5. Address Political Contest Editor, The Tribune, Chicago.

Crepe for the Crepe Hanger.

THE first time Sweitzer ran for mayor I rooted for him simply because everybody else at the office was strong for Thompson. I went in for the skirmish with vigor, read all the news of the political campaign, and was always ready for an argument. My orations were so good the building carpenter contributed a little stool and during lunch hour the employés enjoyed staying in and joining in the hot debates.

Confident that Sweitzer would win, I secured a box of heavily bordered mourning paper and envelopes, and cutting out coffin illustrations from every possible advertisement, I worked up and wrote a sorrowful burial verse. There were eighty-two copies, and coffin illustrations to paste at the top of each, and I sure worked hard to get them done. With no time to address the envelopes, I brought them to the office, hoping to send them out the day after election.

The day after election I arrived at the office to find my desk heavily decorated with black crepe paper, and Sweitzer's picture, black bordered, was propped up against my ink well. The manager came over, offered his sympathy, and sorrowfully shook my hand. I forgot all about the condolence letters until the afternoon mail brought me the first one. In the next three days the remaining eighty-one came through the mail, every employé signing and sending me one—and I had furnished the postage and work.

I paid my many box of candy debts and dropped out of politics. T. T.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

More Members, Object of Holy Name Sunday

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

TODAY has been designated as Holy Name Sunday throughout the Roman Catholic archdioceses of Chicago, and will be observed by the 212 branches of the Holy Name society. The object of the day, as expressed by Bishop E. F. Hoban, spiritual director of the society, with the approval of Archbishop G. W. Mundelein, is to increase the membership of every branch of the Holy Name society of Chicago and to facilitate the establishment of branches in parishes where none now exist. There will be talks given at all masses in every church, and in churches where branches are already established cards will be distributed for new members.

The Holy Name society promotes attendance at mass. One of its special features is the big brother work by which it seeks to give religious care to dependent boys and especially to those who have been before the Juvenile court.

The general officers of the archdiocesan union are the Rt. Rev. E. F. Hoban, general spiritual director; assistants, the Rt. Rev. Thomas P. Bona, director of big brothers' work; the Rev. Daniel Byrnes, director of organization; John J. Hayes, president; F. J. Tomczak, T. F. Donovan, J. A. Schmidt, vice presidents; T. J. Garrity, treasurer; James C. O'Brien, recording secretary; D. J. Normoyle, financial secretary; J. A. Murray, corresponding secretary; A. Fashingbauer, marshal; Cornelius G. Craine, superintendent.

THE RT. REV. E. F. HOBAN.
[Lavecchia Photo.]

The Rt. Rev. Edward F. Hoban, D. D., assistant bishop of the Chicago archdiocese of the Catholic church, is spiritual director of the Archdiocesan union of the Holy Name society, which is celebrating today as a special Holy Name society day.

Bishop Hoban wrote to all parishes asking coöperation in making this a memorable day in the history of the society. It is said that at the present time 100,000 men receive holy communion monthly as members of the organization. A desire to increase greatly the number is expressed by Bishop Hoban in his appeal.

Bishop Hoban was born in Chicago forty-five years ago. He was ordained to the priesthood, after studies in various schools, including one in Rome, Italy, in 1903. He was made assistant chancellor of the diocese in 1906, chancellor in 1910, and consecrated bishop in December, 1921.

There will be a memorial service for the late President Harding this morning at 10:45 o'clock at the New England Congregational church, Dearborn street and Delaware place, the Rev. Thornton A. Mills, pastor.

The Moody Bible institute will conduct a Bible conference beginning today and continuing over next Sunday at Lake Mendota, Madison, Wis., the seat of the Wisconsin state university. The first session will be at 2 p. m., Dr. James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible institute, will speak today, tomorrow, and Tuesday, his topics being "Why We Believe the Bible Will Stand," "Why We Believe in the Virgin Birth of Christ," and "Why We Should Contend for the Faith."

Other speakers for the week will be the Rev. George S. McCune, D. D., president of Huron college, South Dakota, formerly a missionary in Corea, who will give three lectures on Corea; the Rev. C. H. Benson, "The Earth, the Theater of the Universe"; the Rev. R. H. Glover, F. R. G. S., "High Spots of Today's Missionary Horizon"; the Rev. S. B. Rohold, "The Jewish Situation"; the Rev. John Thomas, five Bible addresses, and the Rev. J. A. O. Stub.

Guy C. Latchaw of the Moody institute musical faculty will lead the singing and Mrs. Latchaw will be the soloist.

The Rev. William Chalmers Covert, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, and the Rev. L. F. W. Lesemann, president of the Chicago Training School for City, Home and Foreign Missions [Methodist Episcopal] are two of several Chicago ministers spending the summer in Europe. Dr. Lesemann expects also to visit Palestine.

Early next month two new Episcopal parishes will be formed. At River Forest services will begin in the woman's club. The finance committee, who will make arrangements for the support of the parish work, consists of W. F. Simms, W. C. Rattray, E. S. Inglis, Mrs. Donaldson, and R. I. Worthington. There are 160 communicants of Grace Episcopal church, Oak Park, living within the bounds of the proposed parish, and the rector of Grace church, the Rev. F. R. Godolphin, has expressed his willingness to coöperate in establishing the River Forest parish by the transfer of the Oak Park members to River Forest.

The other new parish will be established in North Austin. The first services will be held on Sept. 9, in Laurel Masonic hall, 1210 North Waller avenue.

Protestant churches having the largest number of daily vacation Bible schools in Chicago are the Baptists with seventy-five, said to be not only the largest number in Chicago but the largest number of any denomination in any city, and the next largest are the Presbyterians, seventy. The Rev. A. H. Gage, D. D., devotes his time to the promotion of the Baptist schools and the Rev. W. Clyde Smith to the Presbyterian schools.

Dr. John M. Coulter, professor in the University of Chicago, will go to China and Japan for a six months' lecture tour on the relation of science and religion as well as lectures in his special field of botany. Prof. Coulter was born in China, the son of missionaries. Mrs. Coulter, who has been for years the correspondent for China of the northwest district committee of the woman's foreign board of the Presbyterian church of the United States of America, will accompany her husband. They will go at the invitation of a committee of educators in China and Japan.

The Rev. John Thwing will succeed the Rev. Peter Fischer as pastor of the Clement Presbyterian church, Cicero.

The religious drama committee of the Federal council of the Churches of Christ in America will conduct a school of drama Sept. 4-15 at Madison, Wis. The school will be limited to fifty religious workers. The school will aim to show the methods by which the drama may advance religious knowledge and impressions.

Among the courses will be developmental dramatic method, the selection and adapatation of Biblical material for dramatic presentation, production in church and parish house, music in religious drama, and a graded program of dramatics for the church school.

The faculty will include Miss Helen L. Willcox, Chicago, author and producer of many religious plays and pageants; Prof. Edgar B. Gordon of the University of Wisconsin; Mrs. Charlotte B. Chorpenning, director of the dramatic department of the Recreational Training school, Chicago, and Miss Louise E. Guernsey, instructor in costume and stage design, Recreational Training school.

The enrollment is limited so that each student may receive the individual attention of members of the faculty. Miss Elizabeth Baker of the research department of the Federal council of churches, 105 East 22d street, New York, is in charge of enrollment.

The cornerstone for the new Garden Homes Methodist Episcopal church, Michigan avenue, near 87th street, will be laid with appropriate ceremonies this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Music will be furnished by the Salvation Army Englewood corps band. There will be vocal selections by a male quartet. The Rev. A. A. McCracken, pastor of the Gresham Methodist Episcopal church, will speak. The public is cordially invited to attend this service.

The fourth general convention of Catholic students' mission crusade will be held at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind., beginning on Thursday and continuing over next Sunday. Missionary representatives from Europe and the orient will be present. The Rev. Dr. Schmidlin, professor of mission science in the University of Munster, will speak. He is described in the announcements sent out by the organization as the foremost mission expert in the Catholic church. Representatives of Switzerland and Belgium universities and of the mission stations of Africa, Japan, and China will be on the program. The home mission fields will also be represented by the Rev. Eugene J. McGuinness and others. Missionary leaders who have lately visited the orient, the Rev. Michael Mathis, Washington, D. C., the Rt. Rev. Joseph F. McGlinchey, Boston, and the Rev. Bruno Hagspiel, Chicago, will tell what they saw and heard. It is hoped the Rev. Clifford J. King, founder of the Catholic students' crusade, now of Shantung, China, will be at the convention.

The international convention of the Disciples of Christ will be held in Colorado Springs, Colo., Sept. 3-10. The meeting place will be the Municipal auditorium, which seats 4,000, supplemented by the city hall, which is adjacent to the auditorium. Certain meetings will also be held in the First Baptist and the First Christian churches. The convention motto will be, "The Fields Are White—Pray."

W. E. M. Hackleman will be director of music for the convention. Vesper services with sermons will be held in Acacia park. Gov. William E. Sweet of Colorado will speak on Sept. 6 on the subject, "A Valid Christianity for Today." Dr. Herbert L. Willett of Chicago will represent the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America in an address on "Christian Unity" on Sept. 8. The Rev. H. H. Halley of Chicago, who has memorized the most important sections of the entire Bible, will give Bible readings. The convention sermon will be preached on Sunday morning, Sept. 9, by the Rev. J. H. MacNeill.

Home and foreign missions, education, the ministry, woman's work, work for the Sunday school and young people, temperance, and social welfare will all be considered by ministers, laymen, and women delegates from the United States, Mexico, South America, Porto Rico, the Philippines, China, Japan, India, Africa, and Tibet.

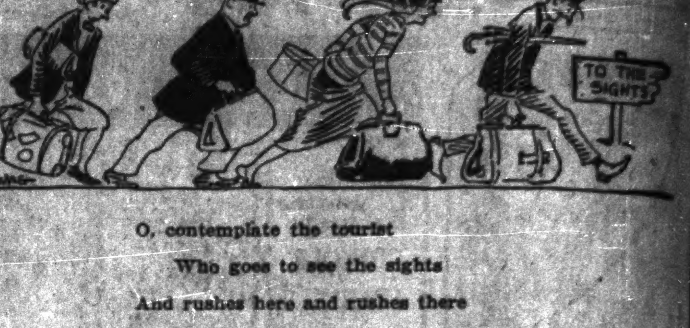
Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

THE PATIENT TOURIST.

Observe the patient tourist
Who trots around the sphere
And buys wherever he may go
The silly souvenir;
He's loaded down with maps and guides
To cram a hundred brains
And all his joints and crevices
Are full of aches and pains.



O, contemplate the tourist
Who goes to see the sights
And rushes here and rushes there
Through endless days and nights:
England—Holland—Belgium—France—
London—Paris—Rome—
And half the time he earnestly
Is wishing he were home.

Ah, pity then the tourist
Whose aching brain is dumb,
Whose joints and hinges moan and creak,
Whose weary dogs are numb—
His tired eyes no longer see,
His ears have ceased to hear,
But bravely with his dying strength
He buys the souvenir.

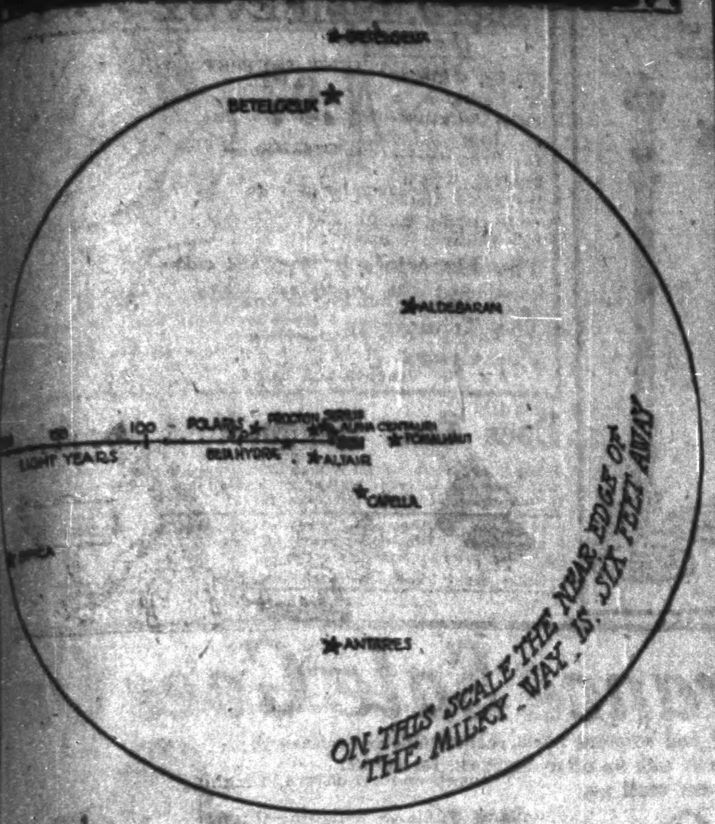
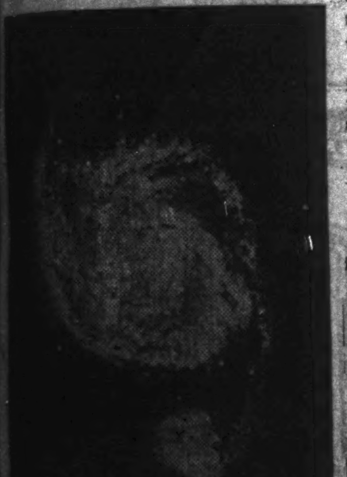
ASTRONOMY



Distances to some of the nearer stars.

SPACE AND TIME.

THE train we are riding on is going a mile a minute. It races along the tracks with a rush of air and smoke and a roar as its wheels grip the steel rails. Wind whips in our faces as we look out of the window. In the distance a curl of smoke rolls up lazily from the [illegible] of a high stack. We see it [illegible] flash and are gone. We pass a town and see the hands of the court-house clock apparently standing still. They are not still, for their time coincides with our watches. They only seem still because we are traveling by them so rapidly. We see an automobile speeding on the road. There is a cloud of dust behind. Yet both cloud and car seem a part of the landscape, a companion for the fences and trees.



The great nebula of Canes Venatici is millions of light years away.

When we ride on a train our time is in effect magnified. Or, as it seems to us, the time of every one else is greatly lengthened. A train is not an essential part of the equipment needed to see this phenomenon. All we need to do to behold it is to live.

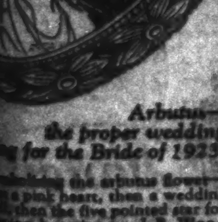
Human standards and human ideas are often woefully small criteria by which to judge time and space in the universe. A man can walk twenty-five miles in a day, if he is in good trim. But what is a day's walk compared with 25,000 miles, the distance around the circumference of the earth? And what is the earth except an almost imperceptible pinpoint in space, compared with the vastness of the solar system.

Light comes from the sun to the earth in eight minutes and eight seconds. In this time it travels 93,000,000 miles. The distance from here to the sun is almost unbelievably big as judged by earthly standards, but small if gauged by light's standards.

The stars are all so far away that light requires not days but years to come from them to us. The nearest stars are from four to twenty-eight light years off, and the farthest ones hundreds of light years away. Still, this system is diminutive as viewed from the universe as a whole, for the stellar system is so vast that light requires [illegible] years to cross from side to side. In our imaginations we see it moving with imperceptible slowness past one star after another, so that in our hundred years of lifetime it barely seems to move.

The earth has not changed appreciably for the last two billion years, at least. If two billion years, or three (for both are so small in relation to the whole that it does not matter), represent yesterday on the earth, what time must our whole period of evolution have consumed? And the earth is only a speck, whose evolution certainly cannot be more than a little fraction of that of the sun.

The stars are suns, each living its life like our sun. When we try to fathom the numbers of the years consumed in the molding of this universe, we are appalled. The light waves plying between star and star no longer seem to creep, they race. They fly like shafts of lightning. Their speeds are so fast compared with the slow unfolding of suns and worlds that it is the latter who seem to stand.



Arbutus—the proper wedding ring for the Bride of 1923!

Symbolizing the arbutus flower—first a pink heart, then a wedding bell, then the five pointed star for lasting happiness. J. R. Wood & Sons' wedding rings have been standard since 1850. The bride wants her wedding ring to last a life time. When you see the mark [illegible] in the ring, you know it will outwear any other wedding ring made. MAN

NORDICS STILL THE SAME.

PERHAPS you have heard your grandmother tell how they went to California in the days gone by. There were no railroads then, but only trails, and often not even these. There were no towns, but only miserable Mexican villages of adobe here and there, sprawling in unloveliness at the crossing of the ways. Places where now there are cities were a wilderness when she was a young woman, with few signs of white men between the eastern side of Texas and the Colorado river.

She tells of the covered wagons, pulled by oxen or horses, and how she sat on the hard seat with the baby, your mother, while grandfather went on ahead with his rifle ready. There were Apaches and Piutes in those days, untamed by the power of the United States. She tells how the train of immigrants wound along through the mountains and across the plains, with some dying by the way, and some being born, until at last they came to California.

Grandmother's auburn hair is almost snow white now, but her blue eyes shine as brightly as ever. Grandfather has been dead these twenty years past, but you still remember his long flowing beard, and how he loved his guns.

Look back in memory, and let your thoughts go racing. The covered wagon grows clumsier, with huge solid wheels, while the white oxen strain at their yokes. Grandfather no longer carries a rifle, but a bronze battle ax, while grandmother, still with her red hair and her blue eyes, cuddles her baby to keep it from the jolty road. It is not the third generation that we see projected in the years, but the thirtieth. But they are our ancestors still, yours and mine, the Nordics in migration.

Nordic nature has changed not a bit the same spirit to dare new places and in the last 2,000 years. The same fierce love of freedom burns in them, the same restless love of change, and new things.

A Nordic face.

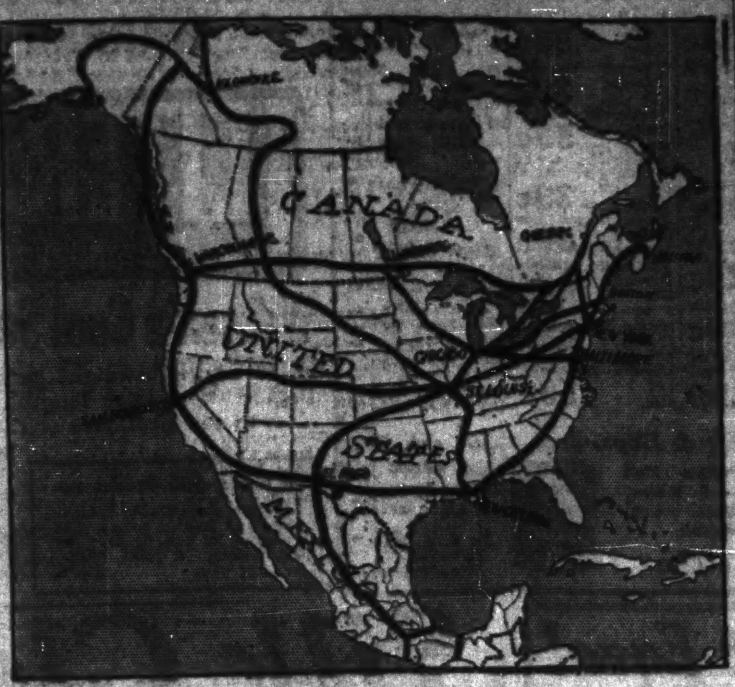
Contemporary historians record with what terror ancient peoples looked on the coming of the northmen. No doubt if an American Indian of the immediate past could have written a history, he would also have recorded his side of the oft-repeated Nordic maxim, "A good Indian is a dead Indian," which, as we know, our fathers did practice to rid the land of the aborigines, and he would have spoken of the horror with which white men were regarded.

But if no Indian has left his version, we have plenty of others from other countries. The "furor normanorum" was no idle word in times past, for our ancestors had a habit of swooping down and seizing the best of everything that there was in sight, precisely as the rest of this country was settled.

Nordics first appear in history about 2000 B. C. They came trekking with their wagons or, if by water, in fleet ships. The pharaohs of Egypt had to fight them, and never were able to conquer them. Assyria, Chaldea, Babylon, Phoenicia, and the Philistines were all basically Nordic.



Nordic migration routes in America. Wars in the past were fought, and wars in the future will be fought along these lines.

It would hardly be going too far to say that all civilization is a Nordic product. There is not a land on the face of the earth where these blonde people have not gone, nor a race that has not felt contact with them. In general, it is true that the more Nordics there are in a country the higher its civilization. Even in places where there are few of them now, as in Egypt, India, and China, there is abundant evidence that they were more numerous in the past, and that the present civilizations there are but sorry remnants of the states that they created.

It is a fact beyond dispute that no other race of man can build or rule as Nordics can. Take them away and no hands remain that are strong enough to hold their scepters.

Wherever the Nordic goes, he carries his civilization with him. This is true today in the orient, and we have an excellent example of it closer home. Mexico, which is not peopled by Nordics to any extent, is four or five hundred years behind Texas, which is mostly Nordic. Yet Texas and Mexico were one less than a century ago.

CLOAKS AND SUITS.

The two men we want are not regular readers of this page. They are now so busy selling for some other fellow that only a justifiable dissatisfaction with their present work or their attention being called to it by some friend, will cause them to read this ad.

A client of ours, located in Cleveland and nationally known as a manufacturer of real cloak and suit values, has requested us to secure the services of two live wire salesmen—one for Illinois and the other for Iowa and Nebraska. We prefer men under 40 who have proven their sales ability in the wearing apparel industry, with followings among the better class of dealers in these territories.

Regardless, however, of what lines you have handled or where you have traveled, the big essential is SALESMANSHIP and all that it implies.

The house is well known—the line is right and the earning possibilities are limited only to the man's ability.

If you think you are the man, write us, giving age, experience, past earnings, and information necessary to get a good mental picture of you.

Your communication will be treated confidentially.

R. G. B. F. COMPANY,
808 Leader-News Bldg.,

Where and How TO LIVE

Have you ever considered this question in a serious way? Or do you continue to keep house because you haven't thought of the advantages of a residential apartment hotel, as exemplified by

THE PLAISANCE?

If you live in a modern housekeeping apt. The Plaisance resembles the home you now occupy, except that you do not have to worry about the housekeeping. Plaisance employes do that under the supervision of critical management.

The Plaisance is the right answer to the How and Where to Live question. It eliminates the servant problem and the search for quarters for a small family or individual. It supplies longed-for luxuries and conveniences without extravagance.

We should like to show you the building any day between 9 in the morning and 10 in the evening. One or more rooms. Leases should be signed now for immediate or future possession.

PLEASE REMEMBER THESE TWO SALIENT POINTS: THERE IS A BEAUTIFUL CAFE AND A SPLENDID GARAGE ON THE PREMISES.

HOW TO GET THERE.

Drive out on the Midway to Jackson Park, or take Illinois Central to 60th-st. Station. Theaters, stores, and downtown banks are only 12 minutes away by the excellent suburban transportation. There is no better.

We will rent you these apartments at a fair market value and keep the landlord's profit, or will let you be your own landlord by accepting from you a modest cash deposit and monthly payments a little larger than the present rental value, which will be applied toward the net cost of operating these apartments and paying the interest and principal of the present mortgage. SELECTED APARTMENTS.

We are offering to responsible gentiles who can furnish satisfactory references, 4 and 5 room apts. in the high grade building at the S. E. cor. of Ashland-av. and Juneway-ter. These apts. all have exceptionally large sun parlors, large living rooms, extra closet space, and private rear porches and are convenient to transportation and beaches. We will rent you these apts. at a fair market value and keep the landlord's profit, or will let you be your own landlord by accepting from you a modest cash deposit and monthly payments a little larger than the present rental value, which will be applied toward the net cost of operating these apts. and paying the interest and principal of the present mortgage. The balance will be credited to your account until you have entirely paid in your proportionate equity in this building; thereafter your rent will be about one-third of the present rental value. Agent on premises today.

WINNETKA HOME

The home of the late Judge Thomas G. Windes is now offered for sale in order to close his estate. The location has no superior in all Winnetka, being the southeast corner of Cherry and Poplar-sts., just 1 block west of Sheridan-rd. The house contains 12 rooms and has an air and charm about it that will captivate a family that want a real homestead. The construction is of the most substantial kind and in the pink of condition. The land—155x187 ft.—is beautifully landscaped. This delightful place can be bought for $39,500. It would cost all of that to reproduce the house alone today. The land should bring $25,000. An opportunity seldom offered. Inspection of the premises can only be made by appointment arranged through us. Our Winnetka office telephone—Winnetka 672—open Sundays,2 to 6 p. m.

OAK BEACH

Summer Colony

THE SPOT THAT'S IDEAL IN EVERY WAY.

Suppose that you had the chance to buy a beautiful location for a permanent summer home restricted to gentiles, on a clear deep spring fed lake, within three hours drive, or two hours by rail, of Chicago, where there will be allowed no dance halls or resort places. Suppose some one had had a landscape architect transform a naturally pretty lake into a heavily wooded, parklike homesite, building private roads and setting out shade trees where not already covered.

Suppose it were shown you to your satisfaction that the fishing was excellent, the bathing superb, and that you had only to cross the road to be in a perfect hunters' paradise of unnumbered quail, rabbits, squirrel, with unequaled duck hunting in the fall.

Suppose there were nothing you could ask in the way of natural advantages, nor in the matter of transportation both by rail and highway, nor still further in the preparation by the owner of your summer home location, would you spend a pleasant day as his guest on the property and see for yourself how ideal it is?

If so, clip the coupon below and let the owner either call you over the phone or write you, at your option.

Tear off here.
Please mail to my address....................
....................or call me over the phone at .... and give me some particulars about your summer colony. I am to understand that if I care to see this property I will be your guest for a day without obligation.
Just address this coupon to K F 511, Tribune.

Switzerland.

Switzerland has an area of 15,976 square miles and a population (1920) of 3,880,320, or 243 to the square mile. Its national wealth in recent years has been estimated at from $6,000,000,000 to $8,000,000,000. Its wealth per capita is equal to that of any country in Europe. Prior to the war at least $1,250,000,000 of foreign investments were owned by the Swiss, and during the war period further foreign investments were made. Little liquidation of such holdings has since occurred.

Switzerland is the oldest republic and has long enjoyed high financial credit. The stability of its currency during and since the war indicates the high credit standing and moral respect in which the republic stands in the eyes of the world. Another indication of the confidence placed in her integrity is shown in the market price of her external loan of 1920. These twenty year 8 per cent bonds have been selling around 116 during the last week—at a time when the bond market in general is low—and this despite the fact that they are callable on or after July 1, 1930, at 105 and interest.

The republic is now issuing $20,000,000 three year 5 per cent external loan gold notes maturing Aug. 1, 1926. These are payable, principal and interest, in United States gold coin. They are the direct external obligations of the government of Switzerland. The total debt of the government on June 30, 1923, was approximately $873,000,000, of which about $463,000,000 represents indebtedness incurred in connection with the purchase and improvement of the federal railways. Operation of the federal railways had always resulted in a surplus over interest charges for many years before the war and indications are that a surplus will be shown for the current year. Switzerland is gradually electrifying her railroads, utilizing her large resources of water power, estimated at 2,700,000 horse power, for that purpose and thereby reducing the quantity of coal she has had to buy.

The general debt of the republic (exclusive of railroad debt) amounted to about $410,000,000 on June 30, 1923. Of the two loans previously issued in the United States, aggregating $55,000,000, and, with the present issue of notes, constituting the entire external debt of the Swiss government, about $15,000,000 has been retired by the government. As a partial offset to its general debt, the government owns the telegraph and telephone systems and has other property, securities, and special funds, all aggregating approximately $170,000,000 in value. (All figures we have used are based on par of exchange.)

The present issue of notes is redeemable as a whole, but not in part, at 100 and accrued interest on Aug 1, 1925, or Feb. 1, 1926, on three months' notice. These notes are a high grade, conservative short term investment suitable for savings.

With week-end hog receipts slightly above general expectations, values slumped unevenly 15@40c, with about a third of the number on sale remaining in the pens at the close. Light weights reflected most discount, selling largely 45@40c under early Friday, with extreme top price off 40c at $7.90. Very few sales ranged above $7.75. The day's average figured at $7.05, standing 35c below previous day, [illegible] initial day of the week and 10c [illegible] a week ago. Packers neglected commoner grades, which comprised a large part of the holdover. Pigs slumped 25@50c, but sold freely at the decline.

Last week's hog receipts dropped below the 200,000 mark, with offerings after Monday showing large decreases in comparison with the same days a week previous. The week's offerings at 193,100 stand 16,200 smaller than previous week, 67,700 larger than a year ago and 78,000 above the ten year average. While arrivals during the last few days have decreased heavily, shipments from Chicago last week at 53,000 totaled [illegible] largest since early in March. Estimated average weight of hogs at 240 lbs stands within 1 lb of the heaviest since October, but shows a drop of 15 lbs as compared with a year ago and 2 lbs as compared with the ten year average. Average price at $6.95 compares with $7.05 previous week and stands $2.25 under a year ago and $5.55 below the ten year average.

Better grades of beef cattle advanced 10@50c during the last week, with [illegible] kinds showing least gain. Best reached $11.80, within 5c of year's top, last [illegible]uary. General average price of [illegible] beef steers for the week, $9.80, was [illegible] above previous week and 15c higher than a year ago. Better grades of butcher stock advanced some during the week.

Lamb Supply Smaller.

Although receipts have steadily decreased during the last month, with last week's offerings more than 10,000 fewer than a month ago, prices slumped practically $1.00 each week during that time. After a slight reaction late in the week another sharp drop was experienced and new low levels for the year were reached in all classes, barring aged stock. The latter were too scarce to fairly test prices, with country buyers absorbing [illegible] breeding stock. The week's average lamb price lowered to $12.40, being 30c below previous week, $3.25 lower than week ending July 7, and $1.50 below opening [illegible] this year.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 22,000 cattle, 65,000 hogs and 17,000 sheep, against 21,905 cattle, 77,081 hogs and 18,469 sheep a week ago and 19,091 cattle, 39,939 hogs and 20,929 sheep a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 55,000 cattle, 180,000 hogs and 70,000 sheep, against 56,950 cattle, 111,073 hogs and 70,469 sheep a year ago.

Probable receipts of hogs for Monday range from 45,000 to 73,000. J. M. W[illegible] marked 45,000, F. R. Burrows [illegible], H. Moore 50,000, W. S. Nicholson [illegible], F. W. Waddell and W. H. The Bad Egg

He Had Killed a Man and White Men Had Ostracized Him; Then Came the Uprising of the Borneo Natives, and Mona's Life Was in Peril.

AS the vessel drew alongside the white jetty a tall, weedy youth, with a head that was too small and a solar topee that appeared to be several sizes too large, tucked a yellow malacca under one arm and stepped on to the gangway almost before it was put down. He pushed his way past the native seamen, who worked barefooted on a steel deck blistered with the sun's rays and walked straight up to where Mona Lanchester stood like a lone islet amid an ocean of miscellaneous baggage.

"Good morning, Miss Lanchester. You are Miss Lanchester, aren't you?"

The girl started and shaded her eyes with her hand.

"Yes, that's right. Are you from ——?"

"I'm Tuson—Eric Tuson—first assistant on Mr. Poindevin's Estate, you know. We saw the boat from the Sports Club, half an hour ago. Your uncle sent me on to apologise for not meeting you. He's busy for a moment with his agent. Is this all your stuff?"

Mona smiled. She had a slight, girlish figure and hazel eyes that just now were wide open, as if to take in the kaleidoscopic coloring of the unaccustomed landscape at a single glance. To the impressionable Tuson, as she came to meet him, radiant in all the glory of budding womanhood, she seemed like a fairy thing just stepped out of a cherry orchard in blossom time, to which some of its pristine fragrance still clung. But Mona, with whom first impressions went a long way, had not formed such a favorable idea of her uncle's right hand man. She felt that there lay, beneath his jaunty air of self-confidence, something that she could not clearly define, but that, nevertheless, instinctively repelled her.

Out of the corner of her eye she caught a passing glimpse of a tall, broad man in a suit of white duck who was making for the shore, followed by an overladen coolie who wore nothing in particular. She reached out and touched the only other traveler in the first class saloon with her crimson parasol.

He stopped dead in his tracks—the servant almost colliding with him—and brought a broad, humorous face slowly round.

"I'm just off," he informed her cheerily—and then he saw Tuson. For some unaccountable reason, at sight of a fellow white, the lines on his handsome face hardened perceptibly. His hand stole mechanically to his planter's helmet with its grotesque shovel back. "Hope you have a good time. Er—Good-by."

A second later and he had reached the gangway. He passed through a double line of Englishmen of varied callings, without either giving or receiving the customary salutation, and the girl remarked—because she could not possibly help noticing—that the men of his own kind whom he encountered went out of their way to give him a wide berth.

It was Tuson who broke the silence.

"D'you know Mr. Boyne?" he demanded in a tone which struck her as being almost offensive.

"O, dear, no! He was my only traveling companion from Singapore. You don't expect me to go five days without speaking to anybody, do you?"

Tuson crimsoned.

"I only asked," he explained, evidently relieved, "because Desmond Boyne's rather a dark horse."

She was still gazing through the shimmering heat haze towards the broad white back of a man she knew she was sorry to lose sight of.

"O!" she commented a trifle coldly. "What's he done?"

Tuson looked at the toe of his canvas shoe.

"I'm not sure I ought to tell you."

She waited until the retreating figure had disappeared behind a row of ramshackle buildings, then fixed her eyes on her companion's.

"Is it so very bad then?"

"Pretty rotten. As a matter of fact, he killed a man in Ipoh. He cleared out shortly afterwards and came to Borneo, where his firm has a plantation."

Mona's forehead wrinkled. She had rather a disconcerting knack of sifting quite ordinary statements of fact to their utmost bottom.

"D'you mean to say he killed a man—and then ran away?"

The assistant passed a moist finger between his tunic collar and his neck.

"It comes to much the same thing," he said.

"Whom did he kill?" persisted the girl, with amazing calmness for one who had never seen anything killed in her life.

"I never heard his name," admitted the other. "But it's a fact, all right. Any of 'em will tell you that. It was a white man, of course."

"I see. He killed a white man and everybody who heard about it refused to have anything to do with him."

"One has to be careful."

"I suppose so. Does anybody know the circumstances? I always feel so sorry for the poor wretches who do such dreadful things, don't you?—I always wonder what sort of provocation there was. His firm has an estate over here, you said, didn't you?"

Tuson nodded.

"Then they must have arranged things for him," declared Mona with sudden conviction. "I don't know anything about planting, you know, but I suppose a man must go where he's sent?"

"In most cases, of course."

"That settles it, then! Mr. Boyne might kill a man, but he's not the sort that'd run away."

"He's a bad egg," declared Tuson doggedly. "You can take it from me."

A SHORT, stout man, with an inordinately red face, appeared at the head of the gangway and the girl waved her hand. The started forward impulsively, pausing only to shout something back over her shoulder.

"If Mr. Boyne really did do what you say I'm certain the other fellow deserved it!"

She caught her uncle by both hands and kissed him before a motley circle of envious Europeans.

"How are you, uncle?"

"Fit as a fiddle, my dear, thank you. Hullo! There's young Tuson! He found you all right? Hasn't he attempted to get that barang off yet?"

"I'm so sorry. I'm afraid I kept him talking. You see, I had so many questions to ask. I think this is a perfectly topping place. Isn't it a wonderful trip along the coast? We saw some islands, near Labuan, I think it was. Mr. Boyne said they were like a jade in a sea of aquamarine."

John Poindevin jerked up his chin.

"Mr. who ——?" he demanded.

"O, I was forgetting. I suppose I've committed an unpardonable crime! You see, there weren't any other people to talk to, so I insisted on luring him into conversation."

Her uncle glanced across at Tuson.

"I'm extremely sorry—this happened."

"D'you know," said Mona thoughtfully, "I don't think I am. It won't matter very much, will it? To tell you the truth, I was sorry for him. He seemed so utterly gloomy and depressed. It was a long time before I could get anything but monosyllables out of him. He did his best to discourage me, only, of course, I didn't understand; besides, I didn't want to be discouraged. He told me he was a leper——"

The planter beckoned to a half nude Chinaman who loitered in the background, and, pointing to the baggage, delivered an oration of which the girl did not understand a word. Presently he slipped his arm through hers and began walking towards the jetty, Tuson bringing up the rear.

"Desmond Boyne is a leper, my dear," he said he. "He's a social leper, guilty of a crime that has put him right outside the pale of decent humanity."

There was such an air of absolute finality behind his statement that Mona felt compelled to swallow the vigorous counter attack she had been on the point of launching.

In the space of twenty yards old John Poindevin touched his hat a dozen times.

"That you, Devereux? How are you? Just run down to meet my niece. Hullo, Johnson! Got over that touch of fever? Splendid! Anderton, you old rascal! What are you hanging about here for? You ought to be looking after that railway of yours! There are three cases of Scotch addressed to me lying in one of your shacks!"

And somehow Mona felt herself contrasting this boisterous, triumphant procession with the chill silence that had greeted the arrival of Desmond Boyne.

They turned presently into a dusty road of scattered, squat buildings that served, for the most part, as offices. Poindevin walked slowly, pausing every now and then to point out some place of interest, while Tuson, his hands in his pockets, strolled airily along on her left, a freshly lighted cigaret hanging from his lips.

A tropic sun—almost at its zenith—shone relentlessly down on them from a cloudless sky. A cluster of dark skinned children played in the dust. A pair of short, sturdy Dusun women, in highly colored sarongs, laughed back over their shoulders at a tall Sikh who swaggered towards the harbor. A Chinaman—in spotless duck—flashed by on a bicycle that looked as if it had just emerged from its packing case. High on the hillside above them, gleaming white bungalows rose one above the other, while, straight ahead, stretched a double row of Chinese shops.

Whenever there came a break between the buildings the girl caught glimpses of an ocean of infinite blue, bordered with palm trees, where quaint native hovels stood high on long, slender poles, a straggling line of inanimate quadrupeds with crazy ladders that gave access to the necessarily restricted living quarters.

Mona Lanchester, her lips slightly parted, her eyes sparkling with the excitement of her first encounter with this seemingly enchanted world in which she hoped to make her home, found herself momentarily deprived of the powers of speech. After the long journey from Southampton—broken only by a few hours in Singapore—she was aware of a sense of relief at feeling something indisputably solid beneath her feet in place of the gently heaving deck. The narrow, taff-rail boundaries were gone, and the glorious landscape, the green slopes, the carefree laughter of children, the glittering dust particles—gleaming like diamond chips—brought to her keenly receptive mind a suggestion of boundless freedom.

It was at Donaldson's bungalow, where they lunched, that her youthful enthusiasm received its first serious check.

Mrs. Donaldson was a tall, angular woman in the early forties, with a bloodless complexion and an air of being perpetually tired. They found her reclining in a long chair on the veranda, warding off the flies with a Japanese fan. She sat up as Poindevin's broad shadow fell across the threshold.

"You see we've arrived," said the planter. "This is my niece. Mona, this is our hostess, Mrs. Donaldson. She's kindly consented to put up with us until the train leaves tomorrow."

"How d'you do," said Mona. "Please don't get up. You look so comfortable."

"I wish I felt it!"

She dropped her feet to the wooden floor.

"What do I do with my parasol?" asked the girl, taking the white hand that hovered listlessly over the arm of the chair.

"O, put it on the table—anywhere. Well, my dear, what sort of a trip have you had? Pull yourself up a chair. Isn't it disgustingly hot? How delightfully fresh you look! You make me feel quite envious. I'm afraid you won't keep your color long out here."

The men had disappeared and Mona heard the sound of their voices coming from an inner room.

"I've had a most wonderful journey," she said. "It was the first time I'd been on a liner and it was different from anything I'd ever imagined. A married friend of my mother's chaperoned me as far as Singapore."

Mrs. Donaldson yawned.

"Were there any nice men on board?"

Mona started. To the eyes of nineteen this pale, washed out woman looked old, so old, in fact, that this was about the last question she would have expected her to ask.

"O, yes—lots. We had dancing almost every night." She clasped her hands in front of her and gazed dreamily between the sun blinds toward the sea. "Mrs. Lavery—the lady I came out with—had her hands full, I can tell you! I think, though, on the whole, I'm glad to be on shore again. After all, there's nothing like terra firma, is there? And I've made up my mind I'm going to enjoy every minute of my life out here."

Mrs. Donaldson's features wore a strange smile.

"You won't. I remember just how I felt three years ago. I was obsessed with a vague longing to go everywhere, see everything. I had wild dreams of exploring the interior, of climbing Kinabalu—that's our mountain, you know. My world was wide—then!" The corners of her thin mouth turned down. "It's reduced itself to this—four walls and a fan! There are two other white women in Jesselton, and none are on speaking terms at the moment! We can't go out in the day, because it's too hot, and we rarely go out at night, because there's nothing for us to do!"

—slipped his arm through hers and began walking towards the jetty.

Mona sat aghast.

"But don't you ride?" she demanded. "Don't you play tennis?"

Mrs. Donaldson waved a weary hand before her face.

"I'm talking generally, my dear," she explained. "I never ride, but most of us play tennis when we feel inclined. For the rest, we're just hothouse plants, and any color we happen to have is mostly artificial. Perhaps I shouldn't have told you all this, but I've grown too lazy even to choose my words. And after Singapore?" she branched off suddenly. "You came by the Haufah, didn't you? Such a ridiculous little boat, with a handful of tiny cabins and one common dining table under a patched awning! Did you go ashore at Labuan?"

Mona shook her head.

"I did venture a little way, but my appearance caused such a sensation that I went back."

Mrs. Donaldson raised her brows.

"Wasn't there any one to take you?" she inquired.

The girl hesitated.

"There was—one man," she said presently. "As a matter of fact, I asked him to take me—but he declined."

"Good heavens! What was the matter with him?"

"Nothing that I could see. But it turns out now that he was perfectly right in refusing." Her eyes sparkled. "I consider it was frightfully sportsmanlike of him, under the circumstances. I could see he wanted to come dreadfully——"

Mrs. Donaldson adjusted her cushions and regarded Mona with a perplexed air.

"Who was the man?"

"Mr. Boyne," declared the girl, the faintest suspicion of defiance in her voice.

Mrs. Donaldson's jaw dropped. Before she could make any comment on this extraordinary revelation Poindevin and Tuson came suddenly into view, accompanied by a thin, stooping man with a slightly underhung jaw and a faint black mustache.

"Henry, this is Miss Lanchester."

Donaldson's pronounced stoop so exaggerated the bow he made that the girl, prepared for anything, wondered if he were going to kiss her hand!

JOHN POINDEVIN'S house was something in the nature of a surprise to casual visitors who had rather hardened themselves to the acute discomforts of eastern dwellings that attempted to introduce innovations that might tend to make their enforced exile more endurable. It stood on a gentle rise in the midst of a well planned garden of exotic blooms. There were glass paned windows and countless contrivances of gauze to exclude the greater part of insect creation. The bungalow possessed, moreover, a shingled roof in place of the almost invariable sago thatch, and the planter had created a precedent by importing a bath instead of performing his ablutions by means of water ladled over himself from an earthenware jar. Native matting covered the floors and a modern electric lighting plant had rendered the hitherto indispensable oil lamps an emergency system, to be employed on the rare occasions when a breakdown occurred.

Poindevin was proud of his house, proud of his garden, proud of his table. He was never tired of showing newcomers the bathroom, the rare collection of trophies that adorned his walls, or insisting on them sampling coffee made in a strange combination of glass bulbs that appeared at first sight to be positively dangerous! It now remained for him to be absurdly proud of his latest acquisition—his niece. And if the lonely dwellers of the east had grown to be a trifle wearied at the old man's ceaseless eulogies of his lares and penates and had, for that reason, been persuaded to curtail their visits, it was equally true that they were inclined to agree with his views with regard to Mona Lanchester, for, from the date of her arrival at the Ayer-Panus estate, there commenced a never ending stream of planters, district officers, visiting agents, government officials, all of whom, it appeared, had "just dropped in" to discuss some business point or other with the veteran pioneer and were only too easily persuaded to stop on for a game of tennis with Poindevin's niece.

Mona was enjoying herself immensely. In spite of Mrs. Donaldson's gloomy predictions, neither the heat of the sun nor the pitiless tropical deluges that followed later succeeded in either drying up or dampening her youthful ardor. Mrs. Donaldson had complained of monotony. There was no monotony in those first few blissful months of Mona's tropical experiences. Except during the fiercest heat of the day she lived in the saddle, accompanying Poindevin on his daily round of inspection or riding alone through avenues of rubber trees, her cheeks flushed, a wealth of pity in her heart for the coolie who toiled like the brute beast of the field, weeding, hewing, burning, carrying—and gambling away every cent he had earned, by the sweat of his brow, during the few hours of leisure that fell to his lot. After ten there was tennis, and then, in that brief interval of twilight before the fall of darkness, when bottles and glasses appeared and men's tongues were loosened, she would curl up in a chair in a far corner of the verandah—and listen.

She heard—mixed with the usual shop talk of the planters—tales of wild adventure in the far interior, rumors of native risings, stories of head hunting Dyaks apprehended by the police. . . . Sometimes—and then her heart would quicken its beat—men spoke of Boyne; Desmond Boyne, who by his own hand had put himself beyond the pale, and who, in spite of the persistent silence of his fellow creatures, seemed—as far as Mona could gather—to be bearing up pretty well. If he had bowed to the inevitable, disappeared from the haunts of men and gradually submerged—his name would have been quickly forgotten, for the human memory is apt to be short. But Boyne, it appeared, had left the social side of affairs entirely outside his scheme of things, cutting it off as a snake sheds its slough—because it is of no further use to it; he had speculated in copra and, still more largely, in oil, and his name was on the lips of every settler. "Boyne's luck"—mentioned a score of times in one evening—would bring a flush to Mona's fair cheeks and set her gazing across tree clad slopes towards the west where she knew his bungalow lay.

She had arrived at no very definite conclusion as to the cause of this phenomenon, but, above all that motley hum-drum crowd of persistent callers, two figures only stood out clearly in her mind. The one because he hung round her chair until she began to detest him cordially—Eric Tuson—the other because he was so absolutely ins cessible, a handsome, irrepressible outlaw, more attractive perhaps because, in Poindevin's household, to think of Boyne was tantamount to displaying a desire for the taste of forbidden fruit.

The new vanishing cream deodorant

She was walking her pony along the broad stretch of yellow sand that lay between her uncle's estate and the sea when her attention was attracted by the sound of a child crying. It was a hoarse, discordant noise, eloquent of pain, and she urged her mount towards the clump of trees from which the sound appeared to come. The pony's hoofs, muffled in the soft sand, gave no warning of her approach, and she skirted the extreme fringe of trees, pulling up abruptly on the brink of a deep cutting, half filled with brackish water.

Poised on a rock, his back towards her, a diminutive, sobbing Chinese child on his knees, was Boyne. As Mona sat there—erect in her saddle—she saw that the outcast was employing his own handkerchief to bind an ugly wound just below the child's knee. A lump rose in her throat. Nine men out of ten she knew wouldn't have bothered about a dirty native girl! And Desmond Boyne had killed a man! It seemed incredible. For a matter of seconds she struggled with herself, remembering her uncle's opinion of this man, and the fact that she was his guest. Suddenly, before she could muster up the energy to turn her pony's head in the direction of home and steal away unobserved, the man rose to his feet, settled the child comfortably on his saddle, and looked back over his shoulder. Their eyes met and Mona, acting on impulse, slipped to the ground and walked deliberately towards him.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Boyne! I'm afraid I've been spying on you. I couldn't help it, you know. I want to tell you how splendid I think it was—for you to do that."

She held out her hand, but Boyne made no effort to take it. He stared from the hand to her face—and then back to his own broad paw.

"You want to shake hands with me?" he demanded incredulously.

She tossed her curls defiantly.

"Why not?"

"It's still—red, you know," he reminded her, a mocking light in his blue eyes. "Haven't they told you?"

She felt the warm blood mounting to her cheeks and a mist swam before her eyes.

"Please take it," she implored him. "I believe—O, I don't know what to believe." The mist cleared suddenly as his big, warm fingers came into contact with hers.

DESMOND BOYNE, his heart beating a devil's tattoo beneath his singlet, stared hungrily before him, sorely tempted all the while to inflict still another crime against the world that condemned him so bitterly.

"Ye gods!" he laughed mirthlessly, and then checked himself. "I'm sorry, Miss Lanchester," he said brokenly. "You see, I haven't spoken to a human soul for ages. Spoken! I've given orders to my assistants, of course; but that's about all. I suppose, in my position as their manager, I could exert my influence to compel them to associate with me after hours——"

"Most men would," said Mona almost inaudibly.

"I don't." He shifted his position. "I don't know quite what to say to you, Miss Lanchester. I'd grown to think that nobody believed in me. D'you realise that you've thrown out all my calculations?" He came a step closer. "I killed a man in Ipoh—and ran away, because I was afraid to face the consequences! That's their story, isn't it?"

Mona nodded.

"Ten minutes ago," continued Boyne, "I was prepared to let them carry on with it. It didn't seem to me to matter much what they chose to believe."

The girl broke in impetuously.

"Then there is an explanation. I knew there must be——"

He caught both her hands in his.

"And if there is an explanation, if I do manage to clear myself, shall I be as welcome—up there"—he nodded toward Poindevin's house—"as the rest of 'em that scarcely troubled to cultivate John Poindevin till you appeared on the scene?"

"I can't answer for my uncle," said Mona, hedging.

The hard lines softened.

"Answer for yourself, Miss Lanchester," he told her.

"I think," she said slowly, a sudden huskiness creeping into her voice, "that you will be—more than welcome."

He let her go and looked straight up at the blue dome of heaven, his brows contracted.

"Say it again," he jerked out suddenly.

"I can't," she whispered.

A shadow crossed his face.

"But you meant it? You mean it now?"

She nodded.

With a wild cry of triumph, he vaulted into the saddle and rode madly through the trees, swerving to avoid obstacles in his path, and the Chinese girl—who ought to have been frightened—laughed aloud. There were only two living creatures on the whole of the island that had pinned their faith on Boyne—a girl in her teens, and a child who had cut her knee.

Mona Lanchester, who had watched him out of sight, looked up to see Eric Tuson leaning against a tree, the inevitable cigaret between his lips.

"Afternoon, Miss Lanchester," he drawled, coming forward to meet her. "Mr. Poindevin sent me down to look for you. He was beginning to feel anxious, I fancy."

The girl, painfully conscious of her flushed cheeks, stopped to tighten the girths.

"Anxious?" she echoed, without looking up. "What on earth is there to be anxious about?"

"I thought it rather funny, myself, at the time."

Mona's head came up from the saddle, and she fixed Tuson with a withering stare.

"And—since then—you have altered your opinion, Mr. Tuson?"

"I rather fancy I have."

She placed the toe of her shoe in the stirrup and swung herself up.

"How long have you been—hiding in the trees?" she demanded.

Tuson tapped the side of his leg with his cane.

"I haven't been hiding at all. Any one could have seen me—if they'd wanted to."

"And you saw something that made you think I was in danger? You saw Mr. Boyne and the poor little Chinese girl who fell into the gully! You came in time to catch the man you've placed beyond the pale—performing an act of common charity that none of the rest of you would stoop to do. I'm glad you saw, Mr. Tuson."

The assistant bridled.

"I'll admit it was beautifully staged," he sneered. "A man of Boyne's caliber is quite capable of pushing the kid in—so that you might come up in time to see him pull her out!"

Mona's hand tightened over her riding-stock. She felt a strange desire to hit out at that ridiculously small head with its bright, beady eyes.

"You still persist in thinking I was in danger when you saw me speaking to Mr. Boyne?"

"I certainly do," he retorted hotly.

"Then why in the name of goodness did you stop there in the trees? Why didn't you rush forward and rescue me from that terrible man? Shall I tell you why? You were mortally afraid. You fancied it would be easier to tackle me after he'd gone. He's killed one man already. Supposing he were to kill you, too! What a terrible loss to humanity that would be!"

An ugly look came into Tuson's eyes.

"Don't you think, under the circumstances it would be wiser if we remained friends?" he asked meaningly.

She rode off suddenly, leaving him standing there, open-mouthed.

He saw her heading for the surf, swinging round abruptly as soon as her mount was knee deep in the water. She splashed her way gaily through the gentle wavelets of the incoming tide, and never, for one single instant, did she trouble her head to look back at him.

AND then the rising came.

The smouldering fires of native hate, fanned by fanatical orators, beginning at first with tiny points of flame that grew more and more difficult to suppress, developed with astonishing swiftness, until the poisonous fumes of disaffection swept through the open windows of the barracks themselves. The initial phase of the first serious outbreak the island had known culminated in a daring raid on the barracks station, where a truck of rifles was being unloaded.

Without a moment's warning a posse of lithe, swarthy Muruts, stark naked and greased from head to foot, rode suddenly from the trees, surrounded the truck with a swift circling movement, cut down the officer in charge, and, before any serious attempt could be made to cope with the situation, had fled, scattering, for the jungle, each armed with as many rifles as he could carry.

Tuson brought the news to Poindevin. He had come up from the coast town by the morning train and had witnessed the tail-end of the affray.

"It was a pretty rotten business, sir," he reported. "The unloading party stood by and let them do it, and the men who were sent after the raiders—fired wide. Lorrimer of Tembakut was on the train. He thinks we ought to organize. He's running across to see you tonight."

"What's he propose doing?" demanded Poindevin, looking up from his desk.

"Oh, getting together a volunteer squadron and a system of reliable runners, so that we can concentrate on any area that happens to be threatened."

The planter shook his head slowly from side to side.

"We're terribly scattered," he objected. "I don't propose to throw cold water on the scheme, of course, but it seems to me that an isolated estate would be powerless against a sudden attack such as was made this morning." He rose to his feet and, clasping his hands behind his back, strode to the rail. "We must hang together," he added presently, "but it'll be a deucedly poor look-out for some of us."

Mona Lanchester, attired in a gorgeous silk kimono, appeared at the living room door. She did not look in Tuson's direction, but poised herself on the edge of her uncle's desk.

"There's a boat leaving for Singapore in a couple of days," said Poindevin. "I'm going to cable Mrs. Lavery to look after you for a few weeks."

The girl's face fell. For a fraction of a second the light of rebellion shone in her hazel eyes and the look she shot at the assistant spoke volumes.

"But, why——? You don't want to get rid of me—already?"

The planter left the rail and rested a hand lightly on her shoulder.

"I'm afraid I must," he said sadly. "It won't be for very long, but they'd never forgive me at home if anything happened to you. There are rumors of serious trouble with the natives. It may come to nothing, of course, but I fancy I could face it with an easier mind once I knew you were in safe hands."

She slipped to the floor and threw her arms around his neck.

"I don't want to go, uncle dear," she protested, pointing down the rubber-clad slope. "It seems so absurd. Everything looks so ridiculously peaceful. Don't send me away, please."

Poindevin wavered.

It was Tuson who threw in the weight of his argument just as the balance had swung to Mona's side.

"It would be utter folly to keep Miss Lanchester in Borneo with all this trouble about."

Poindevin, always weak where his niece was concerned, chimed in gratefully.

"There you are, my dear. You hear what he says. Pack up all the pretty things you want to dazzle the eyes of the young men in Singapore, and I'll get Tuson to take you down to Jesselton in the morning."

In deference to her uncle, the girl swallowed down the sudden wrath that threatened to consume her. Neither in the warmth of the kiss that she gave him nor in the resigned expression that accompanied her exit from the veranda did she betray her inward feelings to the relative who, she fully appreciated, was doing the best he knew for her under the circumstances.

It was shortly after nightfall that a man, hatless, the sleeve of his tunic saturated with blood, rode headlong up the slope and dropped from his saddle at the foot of the veranda steps.

Poindevin was sitting by the table with Lorrimer of Tembakut, while Eric Tuson leant over the rail, gazing thoughtfully towards the sea.

The newcomer crawled painfully into the light and collapsed on to the first chair that offered. The two planters sprang to their feet and the assistant wheeled round, dropping the cigarette he was in the act of lighting from the butt-end of another.

Lorrimer, accustomed to quick action in an emergency, produced a pocket knife and ripped off the man's sleeve.

"Give him some brandy, Poindevin," he said. "He's lost a lot of blood."

Neither noticed that Tuson had gone deathly white, nor that Mona Lanchester had crept from an inner room and stood, framed in the doorway, looking on.

Presently the stranger's eyelids flickered and he looked up.

"I was looking for Boyne," he said in a low voice. "Desmond Boyne, you know. I came in from the F. M. S. this morning. Donaldson lent me the pony, because I was in a hurry. Can I get Boyne tonight?"

Poindevin and Lorrimer exchanged glances.

"He's—a neighbor of mine," said the former a trifle coldly. "I'll get some one to run you across when you're fit enough to move. How did you get like this?"

"A flat nosed bullet, I should imagine," put in Lorrimer.

"It's not exactly a health resort, your island," remarked the newcomer. "I dropped into a score of tribesmen, armed to the teeth, roughly half an hour back. I had my revolver handy. Donaldson put me up to it or I shouldn't have bothered. I emptied the chamber into them and got clear. They followed me clean up to your wire, and, somehow or other, I got this packet." He glanced at the wound that Lorrimer had bound and smiled.

Mona

"Rough luck!" commented Poindevin.

The manager of Tembakut looked out into the night.

"Followed you to the wire? Then they may be here at any minute. Poindevin, what have we got here—how many of us are there?"

He cast a hurried glance round the veranda—and saw Mona.

"There are four of us," said Poindevin; "a watchman on duty outside—and two Chinese servants. I've got a pistol—I don't know if Tuson has—and there are two rifles in my office."

"Any ammunition?"

The planter patted the back of his head.

"What is there, Tuson?"

"Fifty rounds of the big stuff," he said, swallowing a lump in his throat, "and something short of forty-eight of revolver ammunition. It was all I could scrape together this afternoon. I believe you have a few odd cartridges in your drawer besides."

"I see," returned Lorrimer, screwing up his face. "It's precious little." He bent forward and whispered something in his host's ear.

Poindevin nodded.

"I was going to send her away in the morning," he said.

"Look here," pursued Lorrimer. "We must have that watchman in here and have a look at the guns. Better pile up some of the bedding, too. And tuck Miss Lanchester away in the background. What about a runner? I take it the watchman's the best shot here. They usually are! May I send Tuson, on this feller's pony, for reinforcements?"

Tuson started.

"Can't we send one of the boys?" he demurred.

"I want somebody reliable, some one we can count on to get there as quickly as possible—and to hurry back immediately."

"I should send the watchman and tell him to go to Mr. Boyne's."

It was the girl who spoke, and her words rang out fearlessly in the night air.

Poindevin swung round.

"Mona!"

"I've been here all the while," she said. "Aren't we all in a rotten hole? And aren't you anxious chiefly because of me? Mr. Boyne's our nearest neighbor, and he's a man in a thousand. If you're ashamed to go to him in an emergency, after the way you've all treated him, send a black man——"

Poindevin gazed at his niece in speechless amazement.

"I believe she's right," declared Lorrimer. "He's the only man who could get here in time if anything happens." He listened for a moment, as if his attention had been attracted by some unusual sound from the night shrouded plantation. "But will he come, Miss Lanchester?"

"Yes," she replied with firm conviction.

The wounded man sat up.

"Will Desmond Boyne come!" he echoed incredulously. "Why, man alive, you couldn't send for a better man!" He stared from one to the other in search of enlightenment.

Poindevin found his tongue.

"Perhaps you don't know—this Boyne very well," he suggested.

The other laughed weakly.

"Don't know Boyne?" I should just say I do! I come from Ipoh!"

"You've—come—from—Ipoh?"

"I've come to relieve Boyne out here. He's got to go back. They can't do without him. He's had a bit of trouble, you know but they've cleared him all right——"

Poindevin frowned.

"I understand he killed a man," he said coldly.

"He didn't mean to. He's a big feller, you know and he hit just a trifle too hard. It's hardly the thing, I know, to run down a man when he's dead, but Boyne rid our place of the biggest pest in eastern waters. He caught him molesting a white woman, and he saw red."

Mona uttered a little gasping cry.

"Good Lord!" said Lorrimer.

Something sang, whining, through the air, searing its way through the wooden partition behind them.

"Mr. Lorrimer," said Mona, "please don't waste any time. Send the watchman for Mr. Boyne. I don't think Mr. Tuson's very well."

The assistant pulled himself up with a jerk and glared savagely across at the girl. He poured himself out a drink and swallowed it at a gulp.

"I'm all right, Lorrimer," he told him. "Just a slight touch of ague, that's all. I'll go, if you like."

But Lorrimer was shouting for the watchman and did not appear to have heard what Tuson said.

Two minutes later, as a volley rang out from the trees, the tall Pathan, bending low in the saddle, rode in hot haste for Boyne's bungalow, while Poindevin's house seethed in a turmoil of hurried preparation.

SHE lay flat on the wooden floor in an inner room, while at the window, protected by the bath that Lorrimer had wrenched from its place, her uncle fired at intervals, husbanding his ammunition. Helpless and trembling, she heard the fearful gibbering of the Chinese cook boys, the guttural cries that punctuated the turmoil without, the quiet, measured tones of the man from Ipoh, who directed the fire on the other side.

Half an hour at least had passed since the watchman's departure, and three successive attempts to rush the building had been beaten off.

A sudden flame illuminated the room and then died down.

"They're setting light to the bushes," muttered Poindevin, then a report jarred on her ears. "Got you, you swine!"

The light blazed up again, followed by rifle shot and somebody groaned. She caught the sharp crackling as the flames licked the branches, a warning shout, and then a series of chaotic noises from the veranda, from the narrow passageway, from the adjoining rooms.

There came a persistent bumping against the partition, a babel of hoarse voices, groans, curses, the hollow thundering of many feet. The door burst open suddenly, and she screamed in terror. In the flickering, eerie light that came from the conflagration outside she saw an immense savage, clutching by the barrel a rifle the butt end of which was moist and red.

Poindevin shot him where he stood, sending him sprawling in an awkward heap, and a second form loomed behind. The planter dropped his revolver into a pocket and, seizing the weapon that had fallen, whirled it aloft.

The girl crept back into a far corner, her eyes closed, her hands to her head, dimly conscious all the while of the pandemonium that reigned. The grim significance of this sudden invasion was not lost on her. She knew that affairs were critical, that nothing short of a miracle could save them. And then, ringing clearly above the clashing of steel, the din of conflict, she heard a voice that set her heart throbbing with a new hope. A turbaned friendly head was thrust in at the window as she looked up, and a moment later was gone again. A renewed, spasmodic firing, a wild, exultant cheering, and the noise of battle moved gradually away, like the distant rumbling of a departing storm.

The room was flooded with light—and she saw Boyne. He was coming towards her through the open doorway, a grim smile on his lips, his great arms outstretched. The butt of a revolver stuck from a trouser pocket and his hands were stained and bleeding. He stooped and lifted her to her feet. She leant back from him, her cheeks flushed, a choking sensation at her throat. Through moist eyes she looked up at him, at the cut over his forehead, at the great chest that swelled beneath his short sleeved singlet.

"We've collared the whole bag of tricks," he cried in breathless enthusiasm. "At least, all that's left of 'em! It was a close shave, I can tell you. Thank heaven we got here in time!"

"They've hurt you," she said half shyly, conscious only of the question that hovered at his lips, of the answer she knew she could not help whispering.

"Me? O, I'm all right. So's Poindevin. He's looking after Lorrimer—Lorrimer's badly hit."

A sensation of relief swept over her. Nothing seemed to matter now.

"And Tuson? And the man from Ipoh—I don't know his name?"

"Dick Tarrant? He's not too bad. Put up a fine scrap, they tell me, with one arm. Tuson's bolted."

"You mean——?"

"I mean he funked it—and cleared just before we came."

For the first time Mona smiled.

"I thought he would," she said.

He held his head on one side and gazed steadily into her eyes.

"Lorrimer told me something when I picked him up. He said it was you who persuaded them to send for me. Did you really think I'd come?"

"I knew you'd come," she whispered huskily—and he swept her into his arms.

There came a clattering of hoofs from outside, and she drew herself away as a crowd of planters pushed its way in and a dozen hands stretched out to Boyne.

He stood—hatless, bronzed, immense—with the girl still clinging to his arm, before a semicircle of toilers in the backwoods, awkward, shambling men, anxious to make amends; and as he regarded them his face hardened. He held his hand in front of him, surveying it as if it were something quite apart from himself, something that did not belong to him and yet of which he was proud.

Presently he gazed from one to the other and shook his head.

"It's still the same hand, gentlemen," he reminded them—and stuck it deliberately into his pocket.

"Desmond!" she whispered imploringly, tugging at his arm.

He looked down at her for a space of seconds, then drew it out again and went towards them.

"MOTHER OF GOLD" MADRE d'ORO

by EMERSON HOUGH

Blue Ribbon Fiction

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

Mary's Secret.

"WITH scarce more than monosyllables—they both were rather genuinely abashed — the two walked toward the lake front, Mary's parasol unagitated, her eyes straight ahead. Finally they came to the little strip of beaten grass and scraggly trees known as the Lake Front Park; made their way to one of the short iron seats which served the public during the evening band performances which were given in a little wooden pagoda located midway in the park. The local band, the motion picture, the Carnegie library, the churches—these made pretty much the sum of social resources in Deneville.

They sat now, still strangely silent, staring out over the unebelievable blue of the great lake which lay before them, dotted with far smoke trails. A soft breeze stirred the lace of Mary's parasol, stirred also a long strand of her hair at a white temple, so that Allison suddenly felt half crased to take it and press it to his lips. There were few others besides themselves about—a man who read a paper, a maid with a baby carriage. The message of the time and place was one of calm, of completion, of the finish of all impatient effort.

In no corner of the world could there have been found a more perfect example of practical workday success, of common caution and risk. Never a chance had been taken by the generation which had built Deneville. Those men had played certainties all their lives.

Seeing that her young man was too silent, that something had chilled him, Mary touched him in gentle query, a hand on his arm, to make amends, to make some sort of beginning.

In her eyes he caught her shy wish to express her love for him, since he was so slow, embarrassed.

"I am so glad to see you, Barry," said she. "You don't know how lonesome it is here."

"Don't I, though? It is the dullest place on the surface of the earth. Don't I wish I could take you away from here!"

She checked a little sigh. He continued, turning to her half savagely.

"This time I said that you and I were going to have an understanding—or else I would call it all of between us. Time I came across with something. We can't wait forever this way—it's not right for you."

"Is it for you?" her slow smile challenged him.

"It's different for me. I can work alone all my life if I have to—of course, I would be alone. But you've only got one life to live, and ought to be a success. There'd never be anyone else—it's you or no one, that is one thing sure."

"Won't it be that way for me, too?"

"It has been, yes; but a girl can't wait forever."

They sat, again silent, for a long time, but the fringe of Mary's white parasol, whose staff was steadied by her hand, trembled a little bit, though he heard her laugh.

"I'd such a bad time of it yesterday," said she.

> ### THE START OF THE STORY
> IN a desert rendezvous in northern Mexico are encamped three Americans, John Palmer, "Pug" Hallock and Don Sibley. Palmer is a veteran of the gold mines; the others young engineers whom Palmer met while taking a post-grad course at Cornell. Palmer believes he has discovered the secret of the "Mother of Gold," and is to share it with the others. All are sworn to secrecy, as is Barry Allison, the fourth member of the party, whom they are now awaiting. Palmer voices the fear a woman is detaining Allison. He warns the youths they cannot have any thoughts of women if their venture is to succeed. Palmer is right. Allison, in Chicago, had not seen his fiance for three years. He has gone to Deneville, a small Ohio town, to bid her farewell.

"What, my dear?" He turned his moody face toward her, his eyes devouring.

"You know my aunt's old crystal sphere—the 'scrying ball' we used to call it? I showed it to you once."

"Why, yes. Spooky sort of thing—I would not go in for crystal gazing if I were you."

"Well, I did! I got it out yesterday for the first time, tried to use it. You know how it is done?"

"No, I don't think so."

"Well, I went into a darkened room—just a little light at one window. I covered my desk with a big piece of black velvet and put the crystal on the velvet. I sat there with my fingers on the edge and looked and looked into the crystal. Oh, I wanted to ask it all sorts of things. That was after you wired me that you were coming. I wanted to tell my fortune,—our fortune, you know? Well, I was frightened, of course."

"Of course. There is no good in monkeying with those things. It just upsets your nerves, that's all."

"Well, I'll say it was spooky, as you call it. I looked and looked—an hour it seemed to me—and I didn't see anything at all. I was about to quit it. Then it seemed to me I could see a kind of milky film starting down in the glass, deep, deep down. I couldn't be sure, so I went back at it again and tried once more. I looked straight into the middle of the crystal ball!"

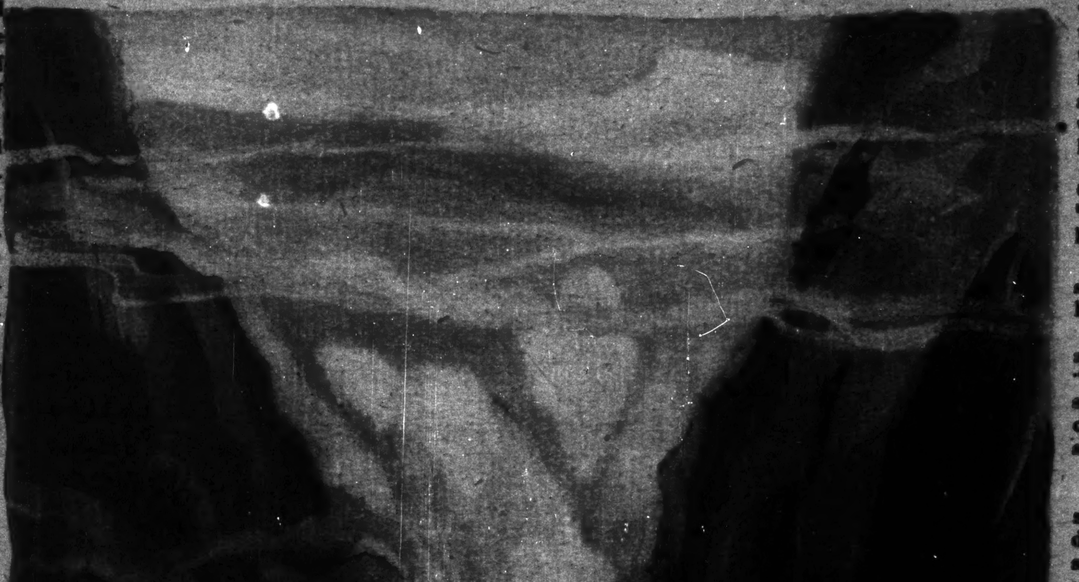
"And you saw nothing?"

"Oh, but I did see something! As I kept on, the streaks and films seemed to grow, to come together, and I tell you, honest as I sit here, there was a picture that showed in the middle of the sphere.

"Of course, it must have been something from my subconscious mind, something that must have been within my knowledge or my thoughts, or within the reach of my possible knowledge—or yours! But it came to me just the same as if it was the picture of another world and it was so strange! The silliest thing—you know how impossible dreams are sometimes? Well, I didn't have any Mr. Freud to help me."

"Tell me about it."

"I do tell you, Barry. It was there in the crystal—a picture as real as life! It was in the mountains——"



—the picture of another world, and it was strange.

"The mountains?"

"Yes. Maybe because you have been living out there so long. But it was not any scene in the mountains that you ever told me about or that I have ever seen. It appeared to be in a warm country—there were tropical plants, trees. Yes, it seemed to be in a warm land—palms, I thought. The trees grew down all sides of the hill into the valley."

"The valley?"

"Why, yes, the valley, Barry. But what should I say about it? It was a dream place. You will think me crazy, call me a child. I couldn't blame you. But I did see it!

"Yes, there was a sharp walled valley, and I was looking down into it. There was a great deal of color in the valley—some birds were flying, they looked like birds of paradise. But that was not the strangest thing."

"What was it?" He leaned toward her gravely, his eyes burning.

"I suppose it is because everybody is trying to get rich—it's money, gold, in our house, all the time! Well, Barry, true as I live, across the middle of that whole valley there ran a lode, a dyke, a dam, pure as solid gold! Why, I can see it as plainly as if it were out in front of me.

"It was solid gold, I tell you—and there in that dark I saw the raggedness of its walls; and sometimes there were little points of light like diamonds in the sun. And the sun was shining—it made the west ablaze, coming up all the way over the terrible shining wall that ran entirely across the valley. Oh, don't laugh at me."

SHE sat, looking straight ahead, not daring to turn to him, but his voice ended her laugh.

"I am not laughing, my dear," said he. He also sat motionless now looking out across the lake.

"Mary, dear," he began again, after a long time with a deep breath, "I don't doubt in the least that you saw just as you say! Neither do I doubt that it exists just as you describe it."

"That is so silly!"

"Indeed not, and you must not say that. On the contrary—now don't think me silly or crazy—you've seen what I have come here to tell you about. Gold? A valley? Yes, yes, yes! No more, no less. You have seen our valley—my valley!"

"Yours?"

"No, ours! I am on my way right now to go into that valley. We call it already found. Mary, my dear, my dear,"—he had her hands now—"I delayed my start to get away and talk to you about that very thing."

"I'm afraid, Barry."

"And so was I. I was so afraid you would think me crazy that I almost dared not tell you. It was utterly absurd, impossible. If you didn't listen to me I believe I would have been obliged to set you free. Because that very valley today is my one chance of any suddent fortune.

"I have wasted time enough for you. We can't go on this way. Only a gamble will do. Well, my dear, that was the gamble I was going to put before you. And so you have it—you have seen it just as clearly as I ever did. More so, I think."

"Was that what I saw, Barry?"

"God help me, yes! I do so believe. You leave me scarce able to realise that we are both awake and alive today. But, oh, if we are right! If indeed, my friends and I do find the Madre D'Oro!"

"Madre D'Oro!"

"I've never dared tell you before now. Let me do so—let me tell you what you truly did see in the crystal. I'll go back a bit.

"You see, during the war I was in Washington for a time, and being a mining man by profession, I used to prowl around the Congressional Library, reading all sorts of things in my line. Well, I found a dusty old book there, big as a family bible, put out once, many years ago, by the Bureau of Mines. It was a great collection of facts and fiction and methods of the mining industry all over the world.

"Well, Mary, true as I sit here, I saw there—saw again—four years ago, the whole story of the Madre D'Oro—the mother vein of all the earth's gold. My friends and I ran across the same thing years ago at Cornell. And I was going to tell you about it—of our secret—and now you have told me! You have seen the same thing. Well, what shall we believe? Was I crazy? Are you crazy also?"

"The mother of gold!"

"Yes, my dear. A belief in it exists in every corner of the world. In Thibet there is a great cavern where a people or a whole race of men disappeared hundreds of years ago. They walked down into another world. There is gold all through that country. Lots of it. And that is the tradition of the mother vein—and they all believe in it! The theory there is the same as all over the earth—it is the same crazy dream of all the prospectors of the earth.

"Somewhere there is a great solid vein of gold, from which all the gold of the earth comes. It comes up to the surface of the earth in places—places, shall I say? It may be also in mines!

"The ancient myths all have the same story. There is a valley hidden, known to no one. Across it runs a wall of gold. It lies between deep hills. It is open to the sun. Birds fly across it. A stream of water runs across the middle of the great lode."

"Oh, yes, yes, that is true. I saw the beautiful stream of water there."

"Precisely, my dear. And you will find that story you saw and that you describe in Peru, all through the Andes, in Colombia, in Central America—you will hear of it in Alaska, and I am told it crops up in Africa, too—that same impossible, insane dream of a great mother vein of gold, somewhere under the surface of the earth! But no man has done more than record the different phases of that dream, that tremendous myth which comes up spontaneously, independently, in every corner of the world!"

"Barry, you are talking crazily."

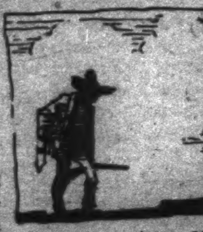
"Why, yes—I am. But what you saw there in your crystal sphere is set down in type by the United States Government."

"But I don't understand what you were going to tell me just now. You were going—where? You are not going to try to find the valley of the scrying sphere?"

"Don't jeer at me, Mary. Don't talk to me. I don't dare to tell you the truth—but that is the truth!"

She only sighed, deeply.

"Listen, my darling. At this very minute there are three friends, all mining men, waiting for me at the border of Mexico, while I am talking to my sweetheart. One of them, John Palmer, has been prospecting for years in lower Mexico. I told him years ago—you see he is an early alumnus of Cornell, the same as I am—what I had read in Washington. He had heard the same thing a dozen times—I tell you it is in all the air of all the earth, that legend.



"Well, there are three friends of us, all mining men, who swore with John Palmer that if ever either of us found a good thing he was to call the other three together; and we four were to make the adventure as partners.

"My dear, as you know, nothing but discouragements have happened to me in Colorado—the industrial situation closed down our mine and put me out just when I was going to telegraph you to set the day.

"And only the other day came a telegram from John Palmer, naming the rendezvous. The others are in camp now waiting for me. I couldn't start without coming to see you first."

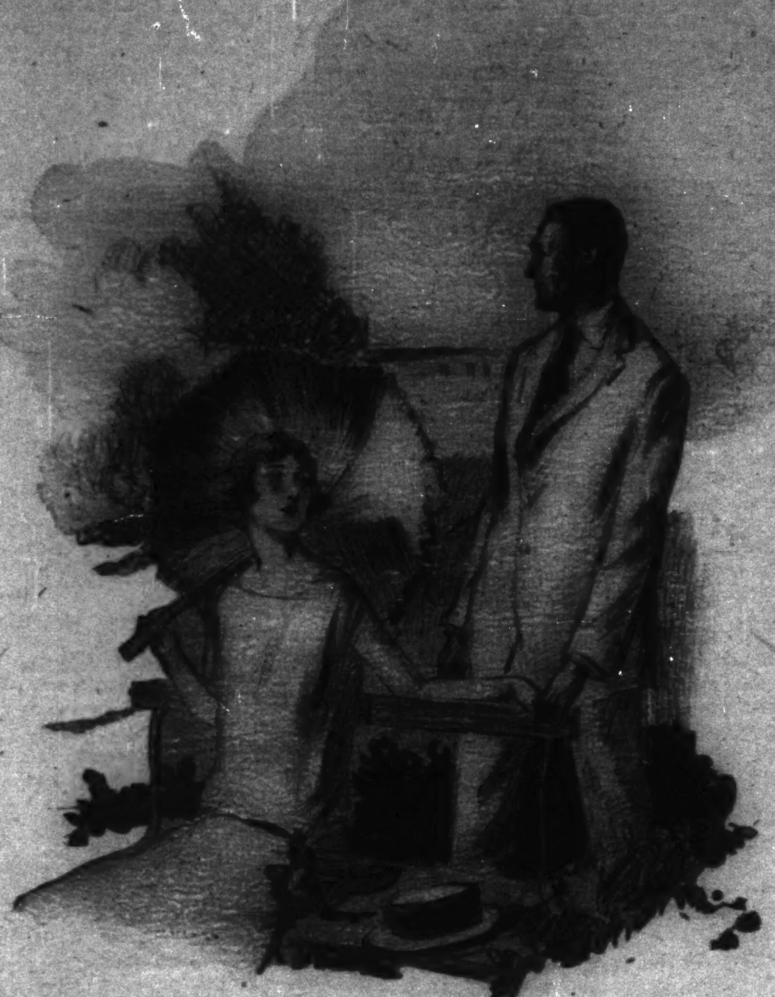
AGAIN her sigh, deep drawn.

"Listen, my dear—John Palmer is no visionary. He started as a mining engineer and then as a prospector—but he never has played for anything but big stakes. His wire means that he has in sight the biggest stake that ever was in all the world. I know his cipher. He has located the Madre D'Oro, as I believe with all my heart and soul!

"And he knows of the valley that you have seen and of which I read—that magic valley which holds the mother gold. If that isn't magnificent, I don't know what is. And if we are not crazy, we two sitting here in the dullest town on the face of the earth—then I don't know anything at all."

"Strange things have happened in the world, Barry," he heard her voice, quiet, unagitated. "Though I won't say stranger things than this."

"No," said he moodily, "I suppose it isn't strange that by radio you can talk across the world—that by wireless you can span the Atlantic—by submarine cross under the Atlantic. I tell you, there is nothing too big, nothing too impossible. And it all is as natural and commonplace as eating breakfast, when it does come.



"Give me a year."

"Now, I'll tell you what I have been thinking, Mary—I should just as well be altogether crazy as part way? Here is the entire currency of Europe gone to pieces—nothing under it in gold values, or anything over there normal except what is left of the British pound. But always, every time, when the world has needed a great discovery of gold, that great discovery has been made. It seems that the great mother of gold shows herself fractionally at least, just when there is need for it.

"Well, was there ever a more terrible crisis in all the industry of the world, a more terrible crisis of all humanity of the world, than there is now? Mary, do we dare dream this way—do we dare hope?"

"Why, Barry, since we have met I have been living in a wonderful world. Is this more wonderful than that you and I are here?"

His hand lay on hers now. "Nothing is more wonderful than that, no. But I want you to feel that what we dream is known all over the world. If our little party of fools ever found the entrance to the valley—why, then you would be the queen among the queens of all the world. What couldn't we do for you?

"But I mustn't talk that way—I must only remember that you took me on when I was poor and hadn't a prospect or a chance. I am not sure that I'm better off today.

"Now, let me tell you some more things about your picture—and see if they are not true. The upper end of the valley is sharp rock, straight up and down."

"Yes, it was there—a straight wall."

"Of course, no one could come down it; and a stream of water falls down there. And that is the little stream which passes through the entire valley, and passes midway of the entire vein of gold."

"Yes, I saw that."

"But you didn't see where it went? It disappears?"

"Why, yes, I think that is true."

"You don't know where that stream of water goes?"

"No, I couldn't guess from what I saw."

"Well, I'll tell you. I learned about that in the last book; and John Palmer has brought back confirmation of what the book said.

"Of course, there are lots of mine stories scattered all through every mineral bearing country. It does seem sometimes that these mines have actually been seen and then disappeared. Take the story of the Blue Bucket mine, up in eastern Oregon. A party of emigrants under Joe Meek as guide, who separated from a big wagon train in 1855 and tried to find a short cut across to the Willamette Valley—these people really had made a tremendous gold discovery. A woman came back with pieces of pure gold and said she could have filled her blue milk bucket. But they were lost, crazy. After they got through, twenty parties tried to find that place again—they were all for killing Meek because he would not lead them to it. And without doubt or question there had been a rich placer which was covered up with that outcrop of gold by some land slip. Now, that is what we can call straight history. The Blue Bucket placer has never been found since then. Yet they had lumps of gold from it to prove that it was there.

"Take the Pegleg mine, the Lost Cabin mine, the hundred-year-old placers, who shall say they never existed? True, the mother vein never has been found. In all our history of mining there is only one real mother lode—that is the Comstock. But the Comstock itself would prove the Madre D'Oro might be possible somewhere if only it were found. Well, who knows?

"I tell you, it is time for the Madre D'Oro! And I tell you also, it does exist. And I tell you also, John Palmer says that he has found it!

"Mary, your little valley was a hole punched down in the center of the earth. There was no way to get into it or out—only one. Your little stream of water disappeared in the side of the valley nearest to you where you looked. Well, it ran directly under the mountain. It came out under the foot of the rock—and there it seemed like an original well-spring, just a spring stream starting out as so many do, later to be lost in the sands.

"Now, where this stream comes out of the rock wall there is no trace or indication that there is an entrance into any place—no one would ever dream of going up after the water, because there the water is, ready for use. But—I know it as well as if I had been there with John Palmer—a leaning rock almost covers the spring where it comes out. The aperture is shaded by heavy tropical vines and bushes. No one with his senses or without them could dream that this is the entrance to the mother of all the gold of all the world.

"There she lies, shining, waiting, I think. Waiting for the day. I would rather say that than to say waiting for us."

"But, Barry, where is all this?"

"Mexico, my dear—Mexico—today. It is distinct, concrete, objective. We are not going on a wild goose chase. We know precisely where we want to land and what we want to do.

"You know about the great gold supplies of the Aztecs down in Mexico? You know how Cortes, the original conquistador, extorted gold from Montezuma?

"Well, our history agrees that the Aztecs had some sort of tremendous supply of gold, fine, pure gold. Montezuma used that gold, though they could grill him or pull out his fingernails and ask him where it came from, he would not tell them—because he did not know himself.

"Now, that is the truth about it. Not even the king of the Aztecs knew where lay his supply of gold! If that knowledge were general how long would it have lasted?

"But it was guarded, kept as the sacred secret of the Aztec people. It is always mysterious and baffling, as is the whole history of that people.

"Now, the story tells that only three men of all the world, chiefs of the war clan of the Aztec tribe, ever had the secret of the magic valley. There were only three of them—there will be four of us!"

"Tell me all about it, Barry."

SUDDENLY he drew up, to think at last.

"Mary, if you and I were not one, I could not tell you anything without breaking my own oath. You know what they say about giving a secret to a woman?"

"Why, Barry!"

"True, this is too big to be a secret of two—we simply are one. And we must remember that."

"Go on!"

"Well, then, I shall. When Montezuma needed gold, he left word at the council of the tribe that he must have it. As though he had rubbed Aladdin's lamp it came in due course. No one knew whence it came or who brought it—it only was there, that was all.

"Now, the tradition, as I get it, was that no one knew the identity of any of these three owners of the secret of the Madre D'Oro. No one suspected that they even lived. It was general knowledge of the Aztecs, of course, that there were rich placers in their country; but they did not live on the same stadards which we have—wealth meant little to them; they were happy in their own ways. When the king needed gold he wished for it—and, being king, he got it."

"But the three men, Barry? They could not live forever."

"No. That is true. But the secret came down for a couple of centuries perhaps, and only three men at one time ever had it.

"Those three men knew the identity of each of the three guardians. So when death took one of them in war or in disease the remaining two guardians must choose a successor. Kill all three of them, and you killed the secret, of course. Well, very likely all three of the guardians were killed by the Spaniards in the fighting around in Mexico, and that was how the Madre D'Oro disappeared for these centuries since then.

"Well, say our two remaining guardians held a conference at once. They agreed that a certain man, wise and mature, of their clan, might be candidate timber. One of them went to him and made some excuse to go back into the mountains alone

SECRETS by Lilliace Montgomery Mitchell

Stephanie Shouldn't Have Told Her Secrets to Melvin; the Poor Man Had Secrets of His Own to Worry Him.

STEPHANIE LEE arranged for the eighteenth time the cushions on the davenport. The room must look just right when Mel arrived. Stephanie clasped and unclasped her hands nervously. If only——

The bell rang and Stephanie ran to the house telephone and released the lower door. Mel, big and buoyant, bounded up the stairs two at a time and kissed her.

"You'd never guess what I brought you," he said as he dropped his coat on the settle in the reception hall.

Stephanie Lee did guess. When a girl has been engaged only twenty-three hours and when her new fiancé arrives as Mel arrived it was not very difficult to guess that a small jeweler's box lay within his pocket. He reached into his waistcoat pocket and withdrew something.

"Hold out your left hand and close your eyes," he said teasingly.

"Mel—" burst out Stephanie, "wait—just a minute—I—I want to tell you something."

The smile on his face died and he dangled the ring in his hand between his forefinger and thumb. "Put the box away a minute—and let me tell you—first," entreated Stephanie.

He glanced at her sharply. "Box—what box?"

"The—ring box," she answered simply.

"Come on, come on, hold out your finger," said Mel. Stephanie knew he was forcing a gaiety which he did not feel. "If you have any deep, dark secrets of the past—hang on to 'em. I don't care. Nothing my little Stephanie could do would be very bad, I guess."

And to look at Stephanie any one would believe that to be the truth. Her gold-and-white blondness reminded one of Haviland china and the deep blue eyes with their steady regard surely could belong to no one with wicked thoughts. A certain firmness of her chin made itself known to Mel now for the first time.

"I—must tell you, Mel," she said in a low tone.

He held up a square cut sapphire mounted in an extravagant basket setting of platinum. "Don't," he begged. "Let's be happy. Put on your ring and give me a kiss before I show you the tickets in my pocket."

She shook her head firmly. "I—must tell you," she said again.

With a shrug he dropped the ring into his pocket and tried not to notice the sigh which fell from her lips.

"Mel, my name isn't Stephanie Lee at all," she said after a slight pause. "It's Fannie Reagle. My father died when Rose and I were just little tots. Mother made a living by sewing for all of the swell ladies in Milkweed Grove. It was a living, just that and nothing more. Rose was three years younger than I—she was my little sister, you know," she added as an afterthought.

Mel nodded, a quick, decisive nod. "Don't tell me anything you'd rather not," he said quietly. "I'll take you at face value, girlie, and believe me with a face like yours—that's some value, I'm informing the world."

"Mother died when I was eighteen," Stephanie continued. "And I found that I could not earn a living at home and so I brought Rose to the city. I got a job in general office work at twelve dollars a week. That's not much, you know, for two girls to live on. We lived—and that was all. I saw Rose growing up to have none of the things she wanted. There would be school parties to which she would be invited, but, having nothing fit to wear, she stayed home. Well, one Washington's birthday there was a fancy dress party and Rose and I thought we could manage a little costume for that at home. She would re-make an old gown of mother's into a Marie Antoinette frock. The material suited that better than any other costume. We bought cheap little slippers which did not fit particularly well but which looked all right by artificial light. The night before the party Rose put everything on.

"'O, sis,' she said as she stood before the mirror, 'if only we had a fan. This costume really needs a fan.'

"Well, the costume did need a fan, but the slippers had taken every extra cent we had. The next day on my noon hour I went through one of the stores to get in out of the cold. There in the main aisle was a sale of huge feather fans—fans that would have made Rose's eyes shine with happiness. For some reason—I don't know what—I got into my head the idea that I could put one of them under my wrap unnoticed and—take it to Rose."

"Let's go up to the show—forget your troubles," suggested Mel.

Stephanie shook her head. "I—stole it. Of course, I was stopped by a house detective—and—well, you can guess the rest. It was ninety days"—she broke off with misty eyes. "Those were frightful days, Mel. The place itself was frightful, but, worst of all, little Rose—died while I was there. When I came out I was all alone in the world and so I changed my name. I—never did like the name of Fannie anyhow, and so I chose one that I'd always liked. I got a job in the store, told them I'd never worked before and so had no references or recommendations, and now I've worked up to head of the ribbons. I—Mel—Mel—you——"

MEL was staring straight ahead at the table with its home painted parchment shaded lamp. His lips were closed into a straight line.

"Mel," cried Stephanie, "you aren't going—to—throw me over—because I—told you! I—" She hesitated at the expression on his face.

He made no reply. "I—I only wanted to be honest," she said pitifully. "I thought about it and worried about it all day at the store. I—didn't have to tell you, you know," she said hopefully.

"That's right," he said slowly. "You—didn't have to tell me."

"Then why," she said wildly, "why punish me when I—when I was honest with you? No one would have ever known or guessed. I—I——"

"There's no use in talking, Stephanie—or Fannie," said Mel gently. "I'm sorry about it, as sorry as you. I—wish you hadn't told me at all. But a wife who would boast about serving time every time she had a spell of religion or frankness or—whatever you want to call it—well, Stephanie, it wouldn't do, that's all."

"I—wouldn't ever—tell any one, Mel," she whispered so low he could scarcely catch it. "I—why, Mel, I——"

He shook his head. "Here, take the ring, anyhow, Stephanie. I—got it for you and I want you to have it."

She shook her head.

"I'll leave it," he said calmly. "If you don't take it I'll drop it in your letter box down in the hall—and there's no use in letting nine hundred dollars lie in the hallway, is there? I'm going to leave town tomorrow."

"Mel!"

"Forget about me!" advised Mel. "And when you're engaged again take my advice and keep your secrets to yourself. What others don't know can't hurt 'em, you know."

He went to the reception hall and took up his coat. The ring was now on the table beside the telephone and neither he nor she glanced at it at all.

"Good-by," Stephanie," he said, holding out his hand formally.

She did not see his hand. One arm was on the wall and Stephanie's head was buried there. Quietly he went out and closed the door after him. Quietly he went down the stairs, not at all as he had come up. At the first floor he paused and raised his head to listen. No, there was no one up there. It was still. He bent his head now with his ear towards the door of the first apartment.

"They were out when I came in tonight. I—wonder." He knocked loudly.

There was no answer and no light within to be seen. He took a long, slender instrument from his pocket and inserted it in the keyhole. The door opened easily. Once inside he took a cylinder from his pocket and flashed a light about. A sparkle on the chifforobe before him through the open bedroom door caught his eye. He went in. He examined the articles, a pair of cuff links with emeralds. After a critical scrutiny he dropped them into his waistcoat pocket and went out into the hallway of the apartment.

"Nope," he said half aloud, "a wife with secrets—added to my own secrets—it wouldn't do, Melvin, my boy, it wouldn't do. Sorry, too, for she was a sweet little thing—and a real looker. With her——"

He turned and glanced towards the back end of the apartment, his light making clear the spaces. With a soundless little whistle on his lips he made his way to the dining room—and the silverware on the buffet.

MOTHER OF GOLD

with them for a few days. He never could suspect what was the actual reason.

"Well, the three of them now would camp out and talk of general things, the two guardians feeling out their candidate, whose fitness was pretty well determined in advance. Little by little they broke to him the purpose of their visit. By and by they told him outright—if they concluded he would be fit and worthy, and they killed him if they did not elect him.

"And then they sent him alone into the wilderness for a week of fasting and prayer. Patiently they waited in the wilderness for his return, purified, sanctified. If they did not accept him—well, then he did not go back to the settlements again.

"But we'll say he was accepted as the missing one of the Three Guardians. Now he was bound by oaths, whose terribleness you and I can only guess, to protect forever, as dearer than his life, this secret of his people. So now, with the wrath of their god impending over him in case of his faithlessness, the new man came into this terrible secret."

SUDDENLY Barry Allison straightened up, as if smitten of his conscience. "But today there are four—and you would make five!"

"Don't! Barry—I think that you and I—that we are one."

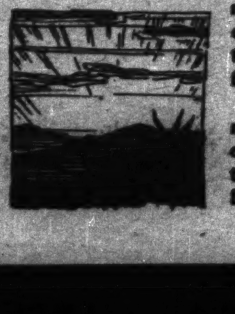
"So be it then. If I never come back it is still my secret and not yours to tell."

"Finish with it, darling. You can trust me, I think—we can trust one another. Finish!"

"Very well. Now, the Three Guardians went back to the villages, the temples, back to their lives, as though nothing had happened. In all the history of the Aztec people there is no hint or trace or suspicion that one of them ever endangered the secret. And the actual history of the Spanish Conquest shows that the source of the Aztec gold never was determined.

"Neither have we ever found the great mines of Peru, where the Incas got their gold. Nor was the actual secret of El Dorado, in Colombia, ever found by Drake or the Spanish pirates. The wealth that came from Carthage never really was traced back to its source in the mountains. The whole bloody, wild history of the Carthaginians never has been followed back to its source. At that time the world was crazy for gold—and great ships brought gold to Spain, France, England, tons and tons of it; because Europe needed that gold. But no one knew the actual secret of the source.

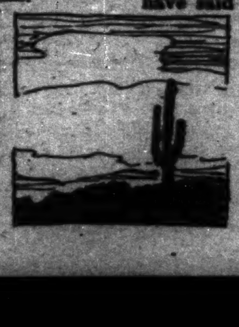
"Is it too much to suppose that some one of those old peoples knew the outcrop of the Madre D'Oro—some place where a natural, continuous deposit of gold, deep down in the middle of the earth, rises as if in the writhing of a great snake, and shows itself a little at a time here or there—just enough to show that the Madre D'Oro does not forget her people?"



"Well, Mary," he went on after a long silence between them, "it costs no more, since we are into this, to go on with the whole story. Suppose the Aztec king needs gold and says so in his council. No one shows a trace of having heard the message as for himself. But, silently, one man or two—never all three—stroll away from the village and disappear. If only one, he knows where the little river runs down in the sands. He follows it up slowly, and comes to the place where a spring seems to burst out from a solid rock. He knows how to push aside or to get under that leaning rock. He goes in—and the passage opens before him.

"In the pebbly valley of the stream he walks, or crawls, a long, long way, through the channel. And so at length he sees what no one but the Aztec guardians ever before have seen—that which you saw before you yesterday in your scrying glass—the face of the Madre D'Oro herself.

"My dear girl, the thought in my own mind is how John Palmer has stood at that leaning rock. He has seen the flash of the morning sun on the face of the Madre D'Oro—more. He could not handle it alone—he needed us. He came out. He sent for his three friends, as we agreed long ago, solemnly. We four—and you—are the guardians today. Well, am I crazy? I suppose I am.



"Yonder comes the smoke of a steamship of a man whose fortune was made in ore he mined and sold—but made by using the raw resources of the world. Well, gold is a raw resource, no better. Only, we must have it, as much as we must have youth. And there it is. There it lies, waiting.

"That is how I came," he added at length, simply. "Am I a fool?"

"Oh, glorious fool—yes, yes, you are!"

"You believe we'll find it, Mary?"

"Don't ask me that. I believe I love you; isn't that enough? Can you say so much for me?"

He choked as he turned to her. Then, forgetting even the wild vision that had burned his brain, in spite of all who might have seen he cast an arm about her, under her great umbrella. His lips burned at her lips, his cheek lay against hers—there in the open day, looking out on the open lake where the lazy smoke told of a steamship going out for the wealth of the world, proved and sure.

Now there could be no further talk between them. The great thought of their love outweighed everything else in all the world. Youth was theirs, and was hope.

He rose at last, seemingly ten years older than when he had come to that little seat where both had talked of magic.

"Give me a year," said he. "If I don't come back, forget me. If you find another man—well, you are free—but don't tell him, ever. Part of you is mine whether I live or die; and that you must never share with another man."

Her great gray eyes looked into his strangely, questioningly. Neither could have said when they actually parted. But presently she was walking back alone, advancing along a shady street of Deneville town. Her lover was gone—whither, and on what wild errand? A secret was buried in her heart, and never to be told to a living soul.

DO YOU REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN—

MARILYNN MILLER was first aspiring to be "a really and truly" actress? Yes, Marilynn began her preparations for a stage career when she was a little tot—born to it, her friends often declare. Still, that wasn't so very awfully long ago, though, as Marilynn herself will testify. The photograph is a treasured possession of W. W. Dunkle of South Bend, Ind.

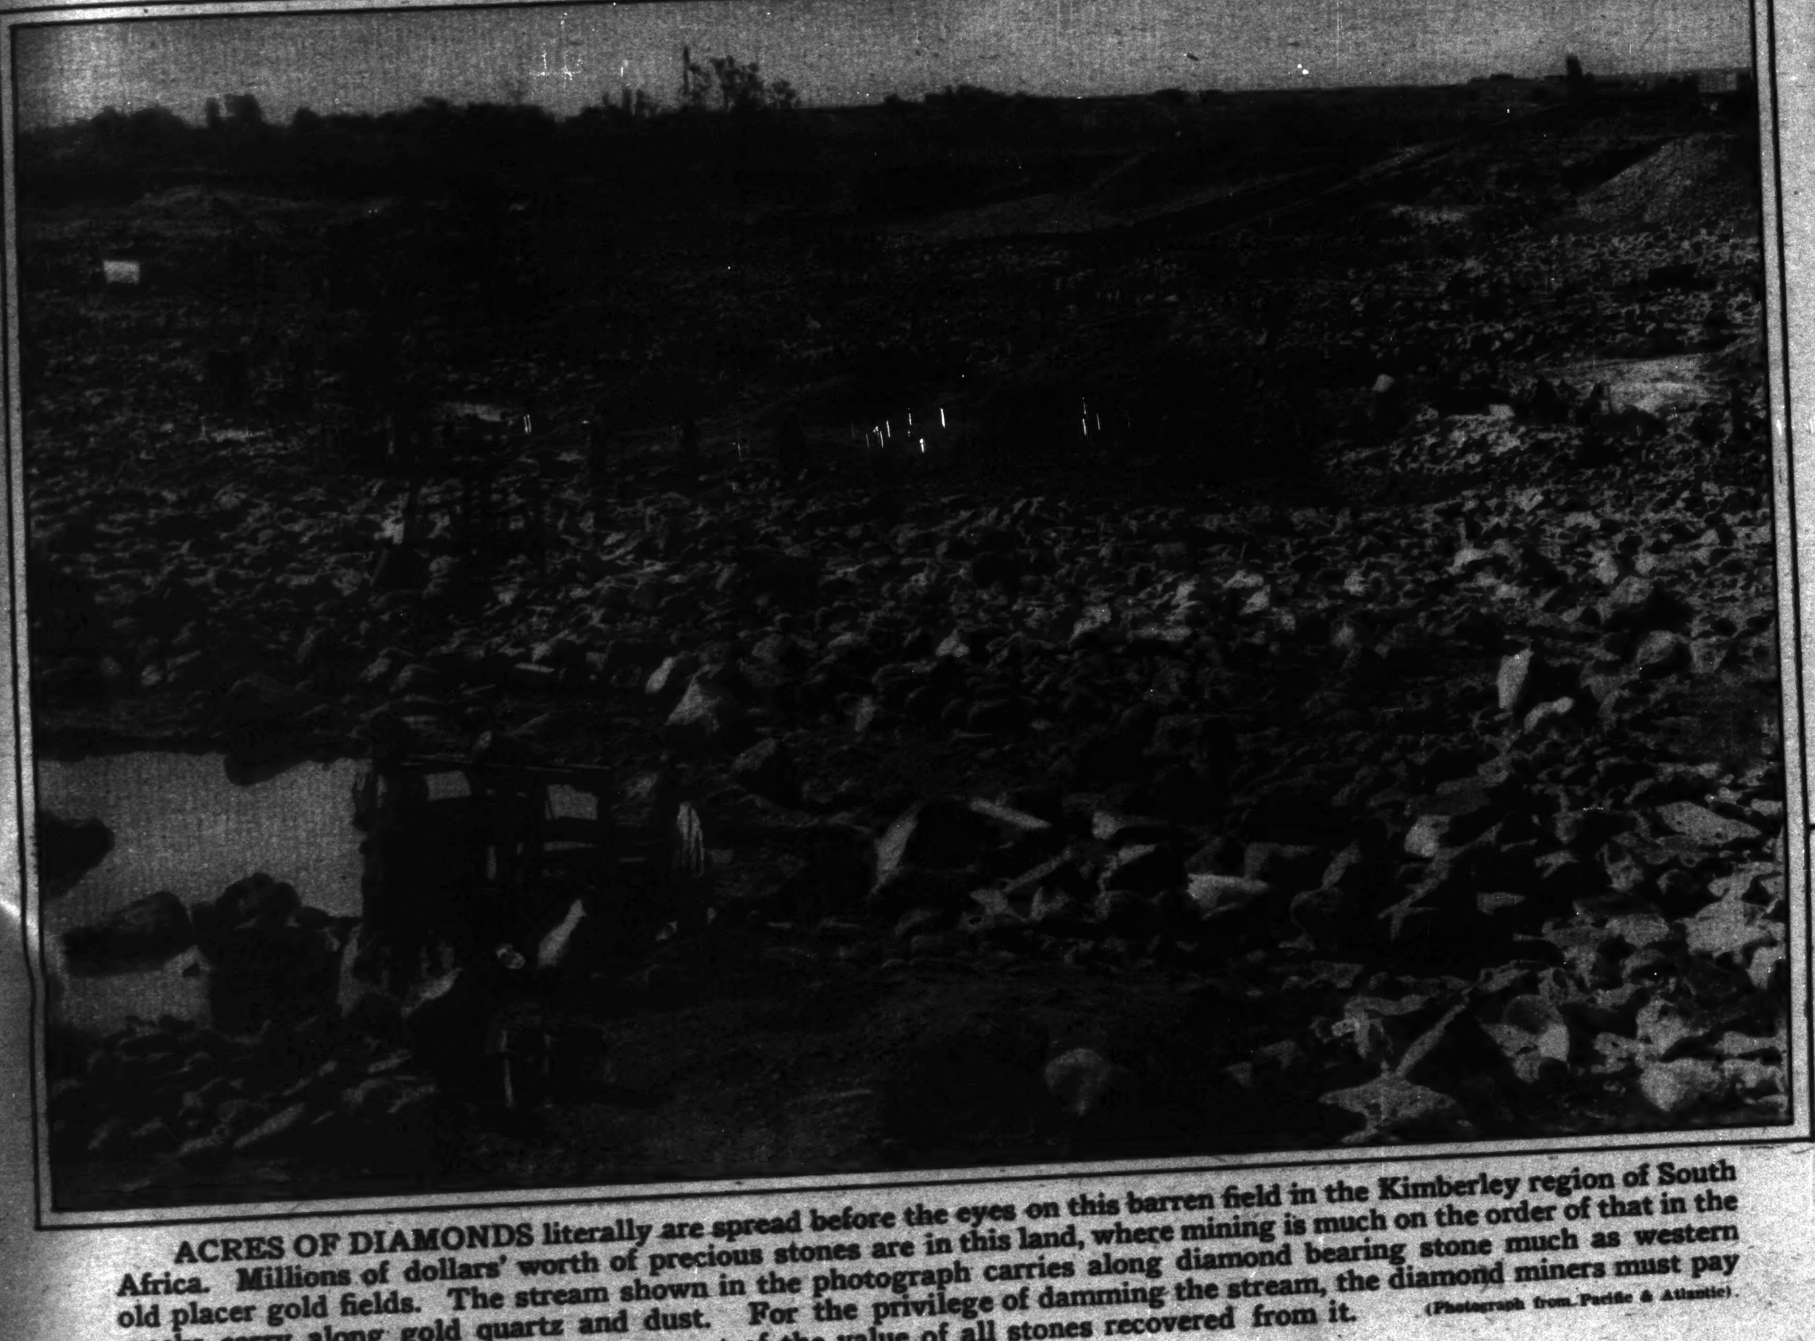
THOMAS A. EDISON — mind you, Prof. Edison then — was working on his first model of the phonograph? This photograph, taken in 1878, shows the great inventor with one of his early designs of the reproducer of voice and music. The picture is the property of E. R. Shepard, consulting electrical engineer of Chicago.



ACRES OF DIAMONDS literally are spread before the eyes on this barren field in the Kimberley region of South Africa. Millions of dollars' worth of precious stones are in this land, where mining is much on the order of that in the old placer gold fields. The stream shown in the photograph carries along diamond bearing stone much as western creeks carry along gold quartz and dust. For the privilege of damming the stream, the diamond miners must pay a royalty to the government of 50 per cent of the value of all stones recovered from it.

"Now Earl," Cornelia is saying, "you mustn't ask Mrs. Coldstream for ice cream and cake at this hour of the morning! Perhaps Mrs. Coldstream would like to hear your little piece about the bobolink. Come, mother will recite it with you. Now what was it the bobolink said?"

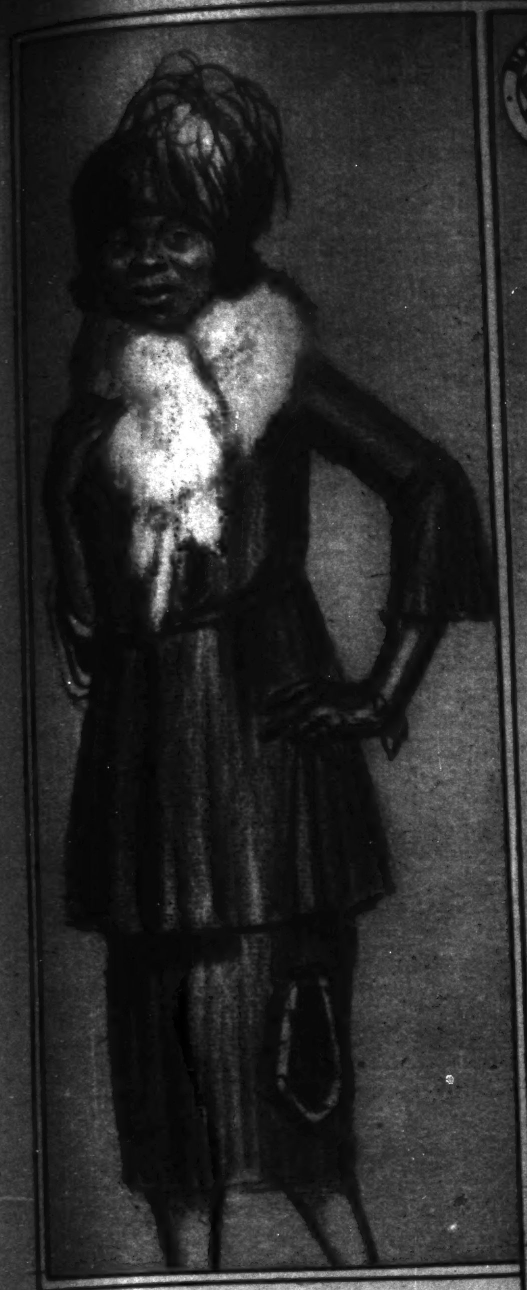
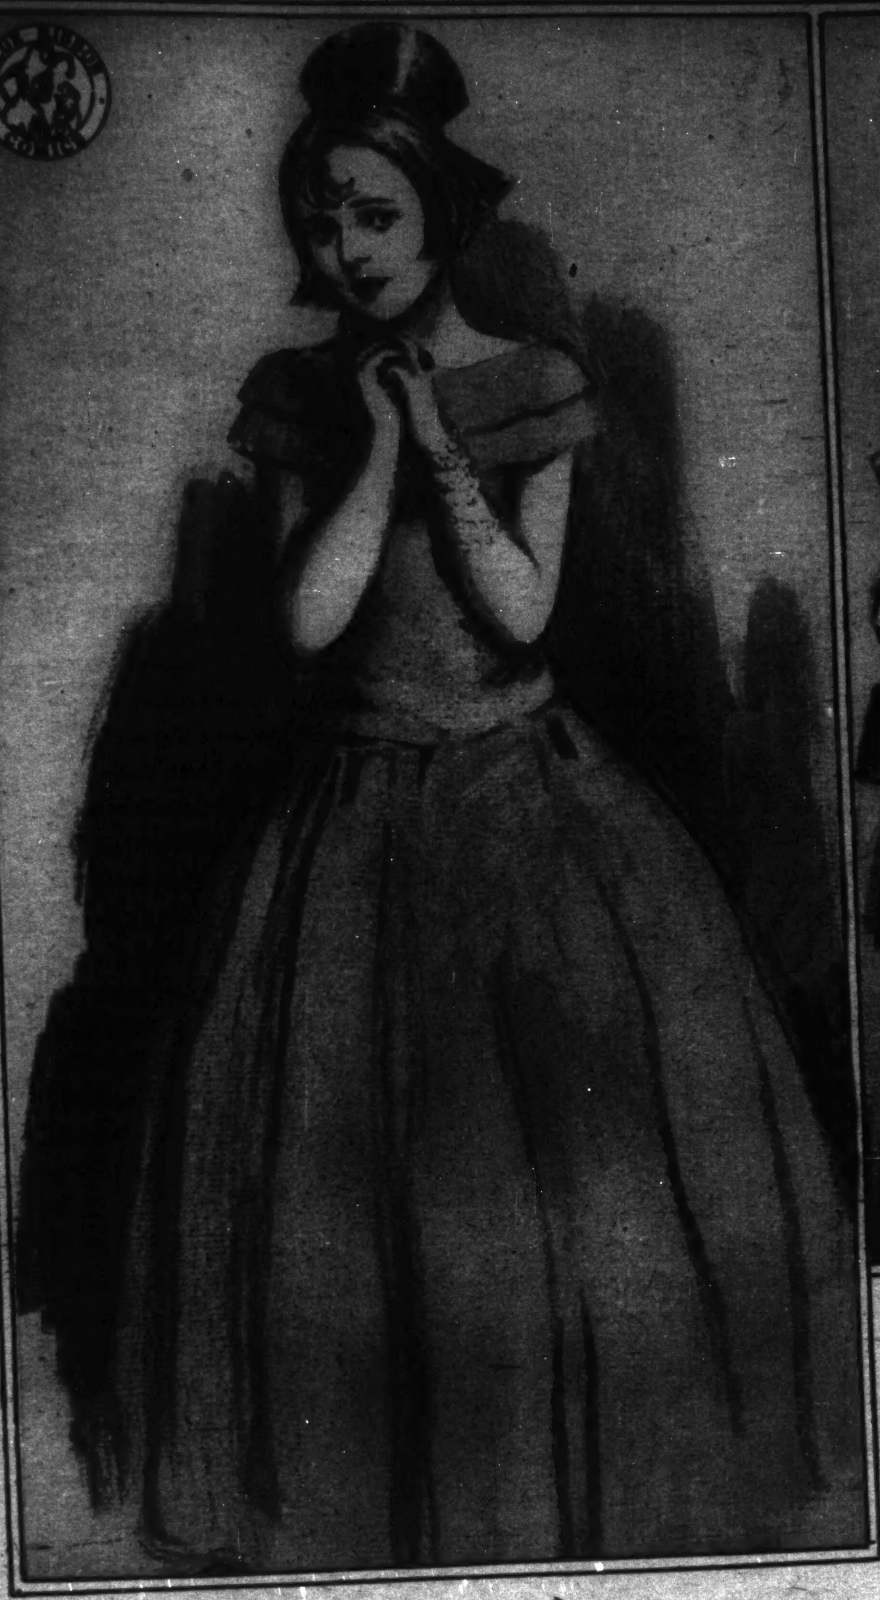
Gray hair and shiny black silk go with the little diamond earrings—mostly setting.



This Southern young lady has been cooking for a family in the suburbs. They regard her as a very precious jewel indeed. By tomorrow she will be only semi-precious in their estimation, or maybe just paste. For she is going to leave with only six hours' notice. That bracelet on her wrist was given her by her "fella." Four little gold hearts set with turquoises dangle from it. On each heart is a letter of the alphabet, forming the word "Baby."



The moving picture actress loves her pearls. They are on her wrist, as you see, and were not given her by her mamma.

"There's a Jewel for Every Use"

No More Gray Hair or Dandruff

No longer is it necessary to use dyes to restore the original color to the hair

THOUSANDS of men and women have restored the original color of their hair NATURALLY with a genuine tonic which feeds and nourishes the hair, restores its luster and life, promotes its growth, cleanses the scalp and banishes dandruff.

Realizing the need of such a tonic, an American chemist sought to develop one which would restore the original color of the hair by reproducing Nature's process and WHICH SHOULD NOT BE A DYE. After thirty years of patient experimentation he successfully produced a tonic which restored the color to all hair, whether it be black, brown or blond, by feeding and nourishing it with the coloring elements the body had ceased to furnish. He aptly named this tonic NOURISHINE.

NOURISHINE is wonderfully beneficial—so much so that many who do not have gray hair use it regularly to keep the hair healthy and the scalp clean and free from dandruff. NOURISHINE CANNOT cause the hair to become brittle, deaden or split. On the contrary, it revitalizes the hair. It restores the original color evenly, naturally—no streaks. Does not stain scalp or hands. NOURISHINE is not applied like a dye, does not operate like a dye—BECAUSE it is NOT A DYE. It is pleasant to use and can be applied by anyone at home. One bottle is usually effective. The one liquid restores for all colors, whether black, brown or blond.

If NOURISHINE did nothing else but remove dandruff it would remain a remarkable testimonial to scientific accomplishment. We have many cases where one-half of a bottle, used, has banished dandruff. The average case requires one bottle. It stops itching, cleanses, invigorates. Act today, for your hair health and regeneration. For dandruff alone it is worth many times the price asked. Whether you have gray hair or not, use it as a tonic and to banish dandruff.

No matter what you have tried—try NOURISHINE. Sincerely we tell you it is different. Price $1.25 per bottle, all drug and department stores.

The Most Delicious and Wholesome MAYONNAISE made at Home in 3 Minutes

You know it's Fresh and Pure because you use Fresh Eggs!

EVERY particular housewife likes home-made foods. Not only because they taste better, but because she knows they are pure.

That's why thousands of women are now making their own mayonnaise at home with Mazola. They now know, that by using Mazola, they can prepare in 3 minutes a rich, creamy mayonnaise—equal to anything you can get, even at the finest hotels.

You can be sure of the purity of Mazola-Mayonnaise, and of its wholesomeness. For you know that the eggs you use in it are absolutely fresh.

Mazola blends so perfectly with all your other salad ingredients that it brings out the fullest flavor and most perfect taste. And inasmuch as Mazola thickens more quickly, you save time and labor. Mazola-Mayonnaise always remains firm, fresh and smooth. It keeps longer without separating, or getting rancid.

* * *

USE the Mazola you have, or get a can from your grocer, and try the recipe given here. See how easy it is to make!

Even though Mazola is equal to the most expensive salad oils in flavor, quality and purity, you can buy it at practically half the price of imported olive oil.

Has the Greatest Sale of Any Brand of Salad and Cooking Oil

YOUR grocer sells Mazola in pint, quart, half-gallon and gallon sterilized tins, packed on our own premises under expert supervision. It is never sold in bottles or in bulk, as are ordinary salad oils.

We extend to you the privilege of using a can of Mazola, and if not perfectly satisfied, your grocer will refund your money without question.

Make this Delicious Mayonnaise Dressing
